U.K. Labor Backs Wilson on Viet

Peking, Hanoi Blamed by PM

BLACKPOOL, England (CP) — Prime Minister Wilson and his cabinet colleagues today beat down a rebel move in the Labor party against the government's support for United States policy in Viet Nam.

Resolutions at the annual party conference demanding cessation of U.S. bombing raids on North Viet Nam were defeated by big margins after Wilson and Foreign Secretary Michael Stewart argued that such action should be matched by a demand that the Communist withdraw troops and arms from South Viet Nam.

Wilson and Stewart firmly repudiated the note of anti-Americanism among campaigners for peace in Viet Nam.

"Some who carry banners do not want peace," Wilson said. "They want a Chinese victory on Chinese terms."

Wilson also denied suggestions that the Labor government's policy on Viet Nam was dictated by its dependence on U.S. help in protecting the pound sterling from devaluation during the past year.

"At no time has there been any attempt to link economic strength to any aspect of foreign policy," he said. "This nation is not to be bought. This nation is not to be corrupted."

Ready for Talks Any Time, Place

Wilson insisted he was ready at any time and any place for talks on Viet Nam with Communist Chinese Premier Chou En-lai or Soviet Premier Kosygin "if it will lead to peace."

Earlier Foreign Secretary Michael Stewart appealed for a conference on Viet Nam and called for a speedy end to the fighting there.

Stewart said he wants Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko to join him in calling the Geneva conference on Viet Nam back into session. Gromyko and Stewart are co-chairmen of the Geneva conference.

Wilson disclosed that when the pound sterling was recently under pressure—he did not say exactly when — the U.S. had asked Britain to put troops in South Viet Nam.

"We turned them down," he said. "And there was never any attempt to link this with economic co-operation."

Wilson urged his followers to accept that in its quest for peace the British government had been as active in Washington as it has been in other capitals.

"We have spoken up frankly in Washington on what we have felt about the use of napalm and the use of gas in Viet Nam," he said.

He squarely placed the blame for the continuation of what he called "a brutal and a bloody war" on the Communist side and more directly on the Hanoi and Peking regimes. They were against peace talks, he asserted. And he added:

"The enemies of negotiations are the enemies of peace."

Cut In Arms Spending Approved

Stewart preceded Wilson to the rostrum. The foreign secretary predicted the war in Viet Nam would be settled sooner or later by a compromise leaving the divided country neutralized.

"Since this is the sort of solution that will emerge in the end, I say why not now before more lives are lost," he said.

The conference approved by a show of hands a resolution urging a drastic reduction in military spending. An amendment calling specifically for a £500,000,000 ($1,500,000,000) a year cut was rejected.

Wilson in his speech declared that by 1970 Britain's defence budget would be no more than £2,000,000,000 ($6,000,000,000) a year. The estimate for the current year is £2,120,500,000.

The delegates also debated one of the issues that has caused a deep split in party ranks—the government's immigration policy.

A resolution urging the government to withdraw its curbs on Commonwealth immigration was defeated.

Left-wing Labor members of Parliament backed the move to rescind the government's new 8,500-a-year limit on work permits for immigrants from the British Commonwealth.

Opponents of the new regulation charge it embodies a form of racial discrimination and is aimed at preventing any substantial increase in the size of Britain's non-white population. The government has denied the charge. There are about 1,000,000 non-whites in Britain.

BY RED CHINA

U.S. Invited To Die

By VERGIL BERGER

PEKING (Reuters) — China invited the United States to invade it tomorrow — and be wiped out.

Foreign Minister Marshal Chen Yi climaxed a marathon press conference here today by shouting:

"I hope that tomorrow U.S. imperialists will come to China.

"Let them come when they like. Let the Indians come with them. Let the British come too. Let the (Soviet) revisionist leaders in the north combine with them."

For the U.S. and its "puppets" to send a few million troops would not be enough, Chen said.

Racing ahead of his interpreter and waving his arms, he said China would recognize no limits nor restrictions in the pursuit of the Americans who would be "thoroughly wiped out."

300 REPORTERS ATTEND

Chen's outburst came as he was talking about Viet Nam and alleging that the U.S. used Hong Kong as "an American base."

In an unprecedented series of policy declarations in answer to questions from some of the 300 correspondents who attended his four-hour press conference, the Chinese leader:

1. Demanded an assurance of success in advance if China were to support the holding of the second Afro-Asian summit conference in Algiers this fall.

2. Expressed the hope that more Asian and African nations would develop their own nuclear weapons on a "do-it-yourself basis."

3. Set two new stiff conditions for Peking's acceptance of a seat in the United Nations in the event of the Chinese Nationalists being voted out. These are: The world body would have to declare openly that the UN resolution condemning China for aggression in the Korean War was wrong; all countries should review the UN charter together, all independent countries should then be admitted and all "imperialist puppet states" should be driven out.

ATTACK U THANT

In a bitter attack on both the UN and its secretary-general U Thant, Chen said neither should have anything to do with the Afro-Asian conference.

The U.S. and the UN were identical — "the head of the United Nations is the United States, not U Thant."

China, Chen said, has nothing to gain for itself at the Afro-Asian conference, but he feels that unless the parley's main purpose is an open condemnation of U.S. imperialism, it would be better to postpone the meeting "until conditions are right."

VISIT to London next week by Rhodesian Prime Minister Ian Smith is anticipated by British cabinet ministers. Talks would concern independence for his internally-self-governing colony, British sources said.

WIRE BRIEFS

Last Rebels Pressed

LEOPOLDVILLE (UPI) — Two mercenary-led columns were reported advancing today over rugged mountainous terrain toward the last rebel stronghold in the eastern Congo after capturing an important town in heavy fighting.

Ford Drops Prices

DETROIT (UPI) — Ford Motor Co. of the U.S. today announced prices for its 1966 model cars that are slightly below comparably equipped 1965 models.

Flooding Threatens

PENSACOLA, Fla. (AP) — Tropical storm Debbie, its faltering winds reduced to 45 miles an hour, hung off the Alabama-Florida Gulf of Mexico coast today. Forecasters saw local flooding as its worst threat if the storm moved inland.

'Candy' Obscene

REGINA (CP)—Saskatchewan District Court Judge R. H. McClelland of Regina has filed judgment declaring the novel, Candy, obscene, as defined by the criminal code of Canada. The code says a publication is obscene when a dominant characteristic is undue exploitation of sex.

Subway Opening Set

TORONTO (CP)—The $160,000,000 east-west subway, now under construction, will officially open Feb. 26, the Toronto Transit Commission announced today. The opening of the eight-mile subway had been scheduled for Dec. 31 but was delayed because of construction strikes.

'Infiltrators' Leave; Homes, Bridges Burn

NEW DELHI (UPI)—India said today fighting continued in the Sind Desert but reported 1,000 Pakistani infiltrators were withdrawing from Kashmir. It said they were burning bridges and houses as they left.

The defence ministry also accused Pakistani of loosing what it called "bad characters" to loot Indian villages in the Khem-Karan sector of the Lahore front in areas still under Pakistan control.

By CONRAD FINK

NEW DELHI (AP)—The outlook for the India-Pakistan ceasefire remained bleak today as both sides made new demands and neither showed any signs of withdrawing from positions seized during their undeclared war.

A spokesman for the Indian foreign office said the withdrawal of armed personnel should include an estimated 3,000 guerrillas which the Indians claim Pakistan trained, equipped and sent into the Indian sector of Kashmir for subversion and sabotage.

Pakistan has denied the Indian claim, contending that the guerrillas whose operations touched off the war are Kashmiri nationalists fighting for freedom from Indian control.

Reuters news agency quoted an authoritative Indian source as saying Tuesday night that India would keep its forces on the ceasefire line in West Pakistan despite the United Nations demand that both sides honor the conditions of the ceasefire, which called for all troops to be pulled back to the positions of Aug. 5.

The source estimated that 5,000 guerrillas invaded the Indian-held part of Kashmir last August and 3,000 still remain. The source said the infiltrators were hiding in forest areas but held fortified positions and some were being supplied by air drops.

The source added, however, that although the ceasefire that came into effect last week was an uneasy one, India expected it to last.

Indian Prime Minister Shastri told reporters the most urgent task facing the UN Security Council "is to ask Pakistan to desist from its declared path of aggression."

Shastri said Pakistan had been threatening in the Security Council to unleash a wider conflagration if its desires were not met. He said India had acepted the ceasefire vote by the council "in complete good faith, unconditionally but not unilaterally."

Shastri said Indian forces were under strict orders not to violate the ceasefire, but he added: "Indian forces are under instructions to defend themselves wherever and whenever attacked by Pakistan."

AVOID resorting to force, French Foreign Minister Maurice Couve de Murville told the United Nations today in a major policy speech. He said the world organization not only lacks the material means for military action but such action would result in disuniting the UN.

AIR UNIT DEPARTS

TRENTON, Ont. (CP)—The 117th air transport unit, a nine-aircraft formation mobilized Thursday to operate out of Rawalpindi, Pakistan, left here today on an 18-hour flight to the area.

Departure of the unit, controlled operationally by the United Nations, was two hours late due to heavy fog which delayed the three Hercules transports and six Otter utility aircraft.

New Tensions Building

SANTO DOMINGO (UPI)—A heated confrontation between Provisional President Hector Garcia Godoy and powerful Dominican military leaders created new political tension in this divided capital today.

'Prevent India From Moving In'

UNITED NATIONS (UPI)—Pakistan declared today that it would not withdraw its forces from Kashmir unless a UN peace force or other machinery is present to prevent India from moving in.

Pakistani Foreign Minister Zulfikar Al Bhutto said today Pakistan was not interested in offers by Russia and Canada to mediate its Kashmir dispute with India until the security council had exhausted all efforts to settle it.

He said Pakistani President Mohammed Ayub Khan had accepted President Johnson's invitation for a visit to the United States and would come to the United Nations when he came to this country.

But, Bhutto said, Ayub is commander-in-chief of Pakistan's armed forces as well as its president and could not leave the country in the present emergency.

Bhutto said Pakistan stood ready to implement fully the security council resolutions which call on it and India to honor a ceasefire, withdraw all forces to positions held at the outset of hostilities on Aug. 5, and consider steps for a political settlement of the future of the disputed former princely state.

"But," he added, "it is dangerous to create a vacuum. If we withdraw our forces from Kashmir, India will fill the vacuum.

"We will not vacate unless machinery is brought in to take its place on the ground. This could be a UN force or any other machinery."

Security Force Makes History

United Press International

NEW YORK — The largest security force ever assembled here will be on duty next Monday when Pope Paul makes his unprecedented visit to the UN and confers for an hour with President Johnson.

Johnson and the Pope, who will spend 13½ hours in the city, will meet in the Waldorf-Astoria suite of U.S. Ambassador to the United Nations Arthur J. Goldberg, beginning at 12:30 p.m. (EDT). The president, who arrives Sunday night, is expected to leave the city shortly after the visit with the Pope.

Eighteen thousand police will be on duty at a cost of an estimated $1 million in overtime pay. In addition, secret service agents, FBI agents and Port of New York Authority policemen will be used. The security force will dwarf those assigned during the visits of Khrushchev and Castro.

A total of 10,000 men will line the 24-mile route between Kennedy airport, where the Pope arrives at 9:30 a.m., and St. Patrick's Cathedral and residence house, which the Pontiff will use as headquarters.

The Pontiff in addition to seeing Johnson will make a two-hour motorcade tour of the city including Harlem and Central Park, address the United Nations on behalf of world peace, recite low mass at Yankee Stadium in evening and meet with representatives of other faiths.

There's almost as much shootin' durin' th' Kashmir truce as there wuz durin' th' peace.

Ottawa to Continue Giving Housing Aid

TORONTO (CP)—Prime Minister Pearson said today the objective of decent housing "simply has to be achieved in our democratic society."

In a non-political speech to the Ontario Association of Housing Authorities, Mr. Pearson said the federal government will continue to pour millions of dollars into housing.

"Do we have to organize everything today by state action in the interests of mechanical efficiency which will ultimately reduce us all to cyphers in an equation? I hope not.

"Voluntary and private action, however, will be quite inadequate without governmental support and assistance."

Mr. Pearson said "we no longer accept the fact that skid row and Park Avenue should co-exist."

PRETTY SQUEEZE-PLAY ON B-A

Bunnies Hop Picket Line

CLARKSON, Ont. (CP) — Two bunny girls paraded on behalf of 380 striking oil refinery workers in a picket line set up today in front of the downtown Toronto headquarters of British-American Oil Co. Ltd.

The girls, members of the American Guild of Variety Artists (CLC) carried signs reading: "B-A stop hopping around. Bargain."

The workers went on strike against the B-A refinery here Sept. 15 for higher wages and certain fringe benefits. About 800 of the company's hourly-paid workers are on strike at several refineries and storage depots in other parts of Ontario, Saskatchewan and British Columbia. They are members of the Oil, Chemical and Atomic Workers Union (CLC).

John Kane, president of Clarkson local 9-593, said B-A is running the refinery here with salaried personnel brought from across Canada and is ignoring its striking workers.

"We will use the 'don't buy B-A' campaign to bring the company to the bargaining table," he said.

ROUND-A-BOUT

A few days ago we laughed at ourselves for writing about the demand for "shorter hours" when we meant a "shorter work week." H. L. Talbot, 308 Denison Road, writes that the world is filled with such inaccuracies.

Toothpaste ads claim to reduce cavities, but his dentist says once a cavity exists no toothpaste will reduce it. He sees signs which say "Bus stop—no stopping" next to a stop sign.

We don't believe those signs which say "Dresses—half off." And if "No admittance" signs meant what they said, why would they build a door there?

What's small and yellow and grows by the side of Shawnigan Lake?

That's what Miss M. C. Melburn and other members of Victoria Natural History Society wanted to know when they spotted a previously unidentified plant on a recent botany field trip.

Experts and reference books consulted revealed the plant had one of four unpronounceable Latin names, and that the only other specimens of it were from New Westminster—most dated 1895.

It is supposed to grow mainly along the eastern seaboard, from Nova Scotia south, and no further west than Manitoba.

Now, asks Miss Melburn, if it took the plant 70 years to get to Shawnigan Lake from New Westminster, how long did it need to cross the continent?

Elections always turn up odd scraps of information.

Some people have been surprised that British subjects, as well as Canadian citizens, may vote in November.

A great surprise, and probably little known, is that citizens of the Republic of Ireland may also vote.

And to cap it all, according to the chief electoral officer's department in Ottawa, Irish citizens are regarded as "British subjects" under the Canada Elections Act!

Mayor R. B. Wilson bore the brunt this week of agitated verbal assaults by people who found fault with a Times story on Centennial Square.

The city published a colorful brochure on the square in which reference was made to artist Jack Wilkinson, one of few persons named in the booklet.

Mr. Wilkinson created the mosaic motifs that decorate Centennial Fountain monoliths, although the actual fountain concept was the work of former architectural and special projects consultant Rod Clack, who goes unnamed.

Mayor Wilson said the city was blamed because the Times said Wilkinson designed the fountain.

U.S. SUBS COLLIDE UNDER THE SURFACE

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP)—Two U.S. Navy submarines collided at a depth of about 70 feet Tuesday, surfaced with minor damage and limped 30 miles to their home port here, the navy said.

There was no reported injury to any of the 80 enlisted men and eight officers aboard each submarine—the Pomfret and the Bream, the navy said.

The collision occurred at 5:30 p.m. south of here during a routine training operation. Neither submarine is nuclear-powered.

Fall Tasks Pleasant, Rewarding

By HILDA BEASTALL

It seems only yesterday we scanned the horsechestnut trees for the unfurling of tender leaves, our own private sign that no more hard frosts would plague us.

Hilda

Now the shiny brown "conkers" are falling and nearby maples have already shed the first of their withered leaves.

Still, the air is warm in the sun, and better even than that, the soil is warm.

Days spent at fall work in the garden are among the most treasured of the year. Gone is the rush of spring, the fullness of summer, but here and now is the quiet preparation of early fall.

PLEASANT TASKS

Each day will bring a pleasant task. It may be the lifting of one favorite plant to be divided and replanted in two groups of three which next year will delight all eyes.

Another project can be the making of a complete wide border of a combination of two kinds of plants, behind which the daffodil and tulip bulbs are to be planted.

GENTLE SIMMERING

For another day's pleasure we may pick the bright crabapples from the tree and the fallen ones from the ground, for gentle simmering in light syrup for a few minutes. Into small jars they will go for good eating with meat in winter.

A final gathering of fragrant herbs can be made in early afternoon. The dew on the leaves must be allowed to dry before picking. Particularly we should gather stems from the annual herbs, such as summer savory, sweet marjoram and sweet basil. The first sharp frost will spell their doom outdoors.

Silver Dollars Not Imperfect, Says Mint Master

OTTAWA (CP)—The master of the mint says that the so-called imperfect silver dollars will continue to be turned out until the end of the year.

Norval A. Parker said that the mint doesn't consider the 1965 silver dollars to be imperfect.

He was commenting on references to a slight difference in the tail of the numeral five on the date of the 1965 coins. Imperfections increase the value of coins among collectors.

But Mr. Parker said that the mint will keep on producing the silver dollars. He said that anyone paying more than the face value for the coin would be wasting his money.

WEATHER SYNOPSIS

An active Pacific disturbance crossing the Queen Charlottes today gave rain and gale force winds to the north coast.

A moist onshore flow south of the system was giving cloudy skies to southwestern B.C. but precipitation was to be confined to occasional light rain or drizzle along the west coast of Vancouver Island.

In the southern interior well removed from the disturbance skies were to be mainly sunny.

The next storm in the series will approach the north coast near noon Thursday giving B.C. a weather pattern much the same as today.

Taal Toll Heavy

184 Bodies Found, Red Cross Reported

By MARIO ROXAS

TAGAYTAY, Philippines, (AP) The first rescue workers reached the blackened shores of the Taal volcano today and reported a "wide expanse of death and destruction."

There was no immediate casualty estimate from the first party to land on the 12-square-mile island in Lake Taal where the volcano erupted at 2:30 a.m. Tuesday. But officials feared a heavy toll among the island's 2,000 inhabitants and in villages along the lakeshore five to 10 miles from the island.

The party reported the 984-foot volcano had subsided to occasional rumbles and belches of smoke. But the local military commander ordered the evacuation of all persons from low areas around Lake Taal as a precaution against another eruption and an accompanying tidal wave.

The Red Cross reported 184 bodies recovered on the mainland, 104 of them in the lakeside town of Agoncillo. Many were killed by the great chunks of rock the volcano hurled through the air. Some were enveloped in hot ash and mud and died of burns. The Red Cross said many appeared to have died from fear and shock.

The rescue group on the island reported two villages completely submerged in debris. The party said half the island appeared covered with the volcano mud that rained for eight hours or more after the first erution.

Survivors who escaped across the lake during the eruption told of a rain of boulders that capsized frail fishing boats in which the island's farm families fled.

SEARCH FOR BODIES

Frogmen began a search for bodies in the lake, parts of it 600 feet deep. The once-clear waters were murky with volcanic ash.

Police said they believed at least 27 drowned when a boat capsized.

The Red Cross reported 55,000 persons huddled in evacuation camps or along the roadside. Most had fled from homes around the lake.

Before the eruption, the volcanic island 40 miles south of Manila was a garden spot of meadows, grain fields, thriving farm villages and neat schoolhouses.

Agoncillo, which had 10,000 inhabitants, was a ghost town. Its population was scattered among the evacuation camps hastily set up by the government.

Newspapers, radio and television stations made appeals for clothing and food for the refugees. The defence department sent trucks through Manila collecting donations.

The eruption was the 19th in Taal's recorded history. The last was in 1911. Estimates of the dead in that eruption range from 1,335 to 3,000. The exact toll never was determined.

DUMBELLS

First War's 'Marjorie' Dies at 76

HALIFAX (CP)—Ross Hamilton, the popular Marjorie of the First World War's entertaining Dumbells, died in Camp Hill Hospital here early today. He was 76.

The Nova Scotia soldier, who took to skirts and falsetto song to lift the morale of Canadian troops overseas, had been ill for seven weeks. A hospital spokesman said he died of heart disease.

The inspiration for Hamilton's portrayal of Marjorie, singer, actor and vaudeville queen, was born on a gloomy French battlefield. Her popularity spread like wildfire through the troops and for 10 years after the war across the North American continent.

Then the theatre spotlights on the 11 Dumbells faded and Hamilton retired to a lonely log cabin near the central Nova Scotia community of Pleasant Valley.

The story of the Dumbells began just before the battle of Vimy in 1917 in which nearly 4,000 Canadians were killed. Eleven soldiers of the 3rd Canadian Division obtained permission to put on a concert for the troops in an old barn.

After a few performances, the Dumbells, who took the name from the insignia on their shirts, formed a group and toured France. Five of the players dressed as women with Hamilton as leading lady.

Later, the group played in London and before the king of Belgium. Back in Halifax they disbanded but soon reorganized, travelling across Canada from coast to coast and in all the major cities in the United States.

$200 for No Licence

A man who was barred earlier this year from driving anywhere in Canada for three years pleaded guilty Tuesday in city court to driving while suspended.

Robert Hugh Smith, Lincoln Hotel, Broad Street, was fined $200.

He was stopped by police Sept. 7 as he proceeded along Rock Bay Avenue.

Smith was fined $250 and lost his licence May 31 in Vancouver on an impaired driving conviction.

Jail Cruelty Alleged In South Africa Trial

DURBAN (AP) — Allegations of brutalities in South African jails were involved in the trial today of a former political prisoner, Robert Harold Strachan.

He pleaded not guilty to three charges of perjury and publishing false information about prison conditions.

The trial arises from a series of articles published earlier this year in the Johannesburg Rand Daily Mail.

A police officer testified to a statement which he said Strachan had given to him voluntarily in Durban.

In this statement, read to the court, Strachan told of how he had given a Rand Daily Mail reporter Benjamin Pogrund details of his prison experiences.

In his statement to the police, Strachan said the information he had given Pogrund was true and correct and that he adhered to it.

A Durban lawyer testified to a statement brought to him by Strachan and Pogrund having been attested before him. He said Strachan told him the statement was true and correct. This statement, according to the lawyer, was not intended for publication but was to be used as background material for investigations being conducted by The Rand Daily Mail.

STRONG CONSUMER BUYING

GNP Breaks Record; Tops $50 Billions

OTTAWA (CP)—The bureau of statistics estimated today the pace of the Canadian economy reached an annual rate of $50,948,000,000 during the second quarter of this year.

Actual product of the whole economy for April, May and June was $12,566,000,000, surpassed only by the third quarter of last year in the current four-year expansion.

It marks the first time that the annual rate of gross national product—the total dollar value of all end-product goods and services produced in the country—has topped the $50,000,000,000 mark.

The bureau reported today that record grain harvests prospects in the Prairies, continued business expansion, and strong consumer buying contributed to the increase.

The figure for April, May and June was more than six per cent greater than during the final quarter of 1964 and two per cent greater than the bureau's revised estimate of gross national product in the first quarter of 1965.

The bureau said about half the increase in the second quarter resulted from price increases. Just over half the increase was a gain in real terms," inclusive of inflation.

To take account of the lessened purchasing value of money, the bureau estimated that in terms of 1957 dollars the gross national product—which was $41,678,000,000 for the whole of 1964—was at an annual rate of $44,060,000,000 during the second quarter of 1965.

REVISES ESTIMATE

The bureau reported three months ago its estimate of the gross national product for the first quarter of this year was $49,676,000,000 in dollars of current value. It said today it has revised this estimate upwards to $50,040,000,00 because of the big grain harvest expected this year.

This revision meant that the first - quarter gross national product rate was more than four per cent greater than in the final three months of 1964. Partly as a result of this revision, the second - quarter increase to $50,948,000,000 represents a gain of just under two per cent.

The current expansionary period now has run through 17 three month quarters, or four years and three months.

Consumer spending was the predominant upward thrust in April, May and June this year. Further impetus came from the already large industrial program of plant expansion and from high rates of spending by all governments.

TRADE DEFICIT

The bureau said that while there was a further widening in the foreign trade deficit, the change was less pronounced than in the preceding three months.

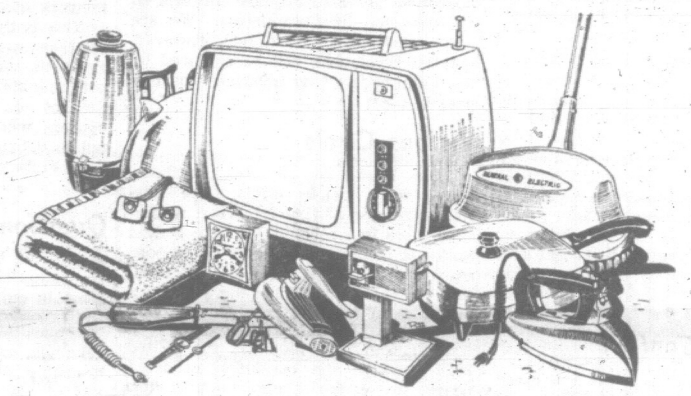

Consumer spending rose nearly three per cent, "the highest rate of growth since the beginning of the current expansion," and the main thrust was in personal consumer spending. There was a substantial increase in spending on non-durable goods — food, clothing, supplies, and the like—and this was accompanied by higher prices in that field. But durable goods purchases also ran high.

Business spending on fixed capital—plants and equipment—rose two per cent, and spending by governments rose 2½ per cent. The bureau said the latter increase mainly resulted from capital outlays by municipal governments; federal government's spending was somewhat lower than in the first quarter because of reduced outlays on military equipment.

The bureau said labor income continued to rise during the second quarter but less rapidly than in the first quarter, when the rate of increase was unusually high. Corporation profits were virtually unchanged in the second quarter.

Settlement or Else

THE KASHMIR DISPUTE HAS faced the United Nations with a crucial decision. Pakistan has given notice that unless an acceptable settlement of the whole question is quickly achieved it will leave the UN, and that failure to enforce the truce will result in catastrophe. To avoid the latter result, Pakistan urges the UN to send in a police force composed of African, Asian and South American troops to take control of the disputed territory.

The initial acceptance by India and Pakistan of United Nations' proposals for a cease-fire provided a promising preliminary to attempts to find a permanent solution. But the cease-fire was only partially successful. Even though no major damage has been inflicted by either side, the reported violations by each have served to inflame national passions still further. The cease-fire has not provided a much better environment in which to talk of agreement on the main issue.

Pakistan insists on a plebiscite as the major item of a settlement, pointing out that such a vote has twice been recommended by the United Nations as a means of determining Kashmir's future. India, of course, refuses this method, claiming that Kashmir is Indian by right of the Kashmiri ruler's legal choice.

It seems clear that neither side can gain its full demands in this matter; the settlement will have to be a compromise. But the UN would suffer a serious setback if Pakistan were to walk out of the organization. This would be a greater blow than the withdrawal of Indonesia, for Pakistan holds an important place in the Western program of defence, and its departure from the UN would create, with Red China, a bloc of three non-members in Asia that could encourage still others to leave.

This would be serious enough in itself, but it would also give Pakistan a common ground and association with Peking that could further complicate the Asian picture.

It is obvious that vigorous measures will have to be undertaken by the UN. The two antagonists are so bitterly divided that no mutual co-operation can be expected from them. It is equally obvious that the moment of truth has arrived. For more than a decade the United Nations has had this problem before it without taking effective action. Unless it acts now it will risk losing Pakistan, perhaps India, and certainly prestige.

Who Will Run Victoria, and How?

AS THE PICTURE SHAPES UP two months before nomination day, Victorians will be required in December to elect a new mayor, vote for four candidates for two-year aldermanic terms and, in a byelection, fill one single-year seat on the council.

Mayor Wilson has made definite his decision to retire at the end of this year. Aldermen Alfred Toone and Millard Mooney have announced their candidatures for the senior office. To contest the mayoralty, Alderman Toone must resign from council where his most recent term is only half completed, hence the byelection.

Between now and noon, November 29, Victorians aspiring for office must submit nomination papers. This calls for self-analysis by potential candidates that is particularly significant at this stage of the city's development.

Victoria is now on a wave of development, revitalization and advance. Its ability to continue to ride that wave will depend on the type of leadership afforded by the civic administration. The city needs elected representatives who will continue the imaginative and forward-looking policies that have marked the last few years of civic rejuvenation.

The Essential Green Acres

THE DECISION OF SAANICH Council to purchase land from former Reeve Lambrick for possible creation of a much-needed green park in the Gordon Head area shows an admirable appreciation of the municipality's requirements, and quick action on an offer inspired by the good community spirit of the owner.

It is to be hoped that the additional uses to which the 44-acre tract will be put will not be stressed to the detriment of the green-belt program. The projected school grounds and a residential subdivision may not leave much of the property for public use unless park needs are kept well to the fore.

Another welcome news item refers to the provincial government's purchase of 60 acres of land on De Courcy Island, near Nanaimo. This is part of the recreation department's program of providing small parks within readily accessible distance for land or water travellers and should make an excellent addition to the chain of parklands now established or in prospect.

Parklands in this rapidly accelerating age of industrialization and automation are an investment by governments of any level which will never be regretted. They are part of the answer—and an increasingly important part—to the question of how humanity is to cope with the tensions and demands of urbanization. These sites will be the irreplaceable breathing pores for communities whose density of population becomes greater each year. They may still be thought of as luxuries today but they will be necessities of the not distant future.

Oak Bay's Opportunity

THE BENEFITS OF FLUORIDATION have been demonstrated for so many years in so many localities that little can be added to the case for this form of dental health.

Communities which have fluoridated their public water supply, at very little cost, have gained their reward in a startling reduction in the occurence of cavities in their children's teeth. This has been illustrated over and over again. Fluoridation as a dental health measure has been described as the most carefully studied and best documented treatment in medical annals.

Yet there are still a few persons who for one reason or another raise vociferous objections to fluoridation of the water supply: they quote "authorities" whose evidence responsible medical men repudiate, they impute wildly improbable motives to fluoridationists, even seeing a Communist plot in this recommendation of doctors' and dentists' local and national organizations.

Next Dec. 4 the people of Oak Bay will have a chance to separate the wheat from the chaff: they will vote on the question of whether their municipality's water supply should be fluoridated. It will be Oak Bay's opportunity to step into the twentieth century in this regard and show the way for the adjacent districts. By voting for this obvious improvement, Oak Bay could stir Victoria, Saanich and Esquimalt into early similar action. It should not be necessary for these latter to wait six years to see the inevitable results in Oak Bay's children's teeth—those results have been shown in scores of other communities.

Has Oak Bay a sufficient number of parents who will follow the advice of their doctors and dentists and vote in this boon for their children?

Prickly Ally

By Wendell S. Merick
From Saigon

ONE of the more intelligent things the United States did in the early days of its involvement in Viet Nam has returned to haunt the Americans.

The Montagnards, primitive tribesmen inhabiting the highlands, again are threatening revolt. And unless the Vietnamese government does something more than make hollow promises, the Viet Cong will become a second-class enemy in that region.

The problem is rooted in the hatred the Montagnards have for the Vietnamese. The French, when they ruled in Indo-China, made use of the Montagnards to keep rebellious Vietnamese in line.

In 1961, the U.S. recognized that the Montagnards could be invaluable allies against the Viet Cong, and "bought" their allegiance.

The original idea was that the best people to protect the Montagnards against the Viet Cong were the Montagnards themselves. Also their knowledge of the jungle and of the mountains made them most useful as spies and scouts.

The Saigon government looked askance at this American "interference."

But Saigon realized that it was better to have the Montagnards fighting against the Viet Cong than fighting for them. Although not accepted into the regular Vietnamese army, the Montagnards were given the identity of Civil Irregular Defense Group forces (CIDG). Their job simply was to protect their own homes.

Unfortunately, certain American agents, in trying to lure the Montagnards into service, broadly hinted that co-operation might some day result in autonomy for the Montagnards. This was what the tribesmen wanted. But little or no effort was ever made to fulfil pledges.

Last autumn, the Montagnards revolted. But once the blood had been washed off the battlefield, the Montagnards seemed ready, although reluctant, to return to a tenuous alliance with the government. U.S. agents again had a hand in effecting a truce.

Sensitivities Increased

Saigon's sensitivities increased. During the summer, most American advisers in the highlands working among the more dissident groups were removed. About this time a movement called the United Front for the Struggle of Oppressed Races (FULRO) was formed. Its leader, Y B'Ham, was hiding in Cambodia—a price on his head.

In July, FULRO began making demands on the government for complete autonomy, its own flag, army, the works. The government refused. In August, Corps Commander Brigadier General Vinh Loc warned FULRO to disband or be destroyed.

Prime Minister Nguyen Cao Ky issued a similar warning. FULRO turned to banditry.

In August, FULRO emissaries contacted American authorities and offered to surrender if guarantees were given that they would not be punished. The government more or less agreed and the surrender went peacefully. New promises of schools, hospitals, and integration of Montagnards into the armed forces were made.

For their part, the Montagnards softened their demands. Thus there seemed some prospect of peace. But not all the FULRO surrendered.

Meantime, 700,000 Montagnards await fulfilment of Saigon's promises. If it is not forthcoming quickly, a rebellion in the Highlands is inevitable. And not only will the Montagnards no longer help fight the Viet Cong, they will do their job for them.

The U.S. is caught in the middle. The Montagnards generally are friendly towards Americans and for the most part trust them. But the U.S. may go just so far in befriending the tribes without offending the government.

IF THE COLD WAR ENDED

A Glimpse of What Might Be

By WALTER LIPPMANN

LAST week the world had a fleeting but tantalizing glimpse of what might become possible if the cold war subsided. The U.S.S.R. and the U.S.A., acting on their parallel interests in averting a war between Pakistan and India, made it possible for the United Nations to order a cease-fire. This show of unanimity discouraged the Chinese from intervening in the quarrel.

Lippmann

Parallelism is a long way short of positive co-operation, and there is no assurance that a settlement of the quarrel is in sight or even that the underlying hostility will not smoulder on for a very long time. Nevertheless, the events of last week were a spectacular demonstration of how all hope and prospect of a reasonably peaceable world is tied up with an improvement in Soviet-American relations.

Is an improvement possible? What is there between us that now sets us against against each other? It is, quite plainly, the conflict of ideology and interest, of emotion and of prejudice, over the revolutionary condition of the so-called third world—the world of the underdeveloped and emerging nations of the Southern Hemisphere—in Asia, Africa and Latin America. The revolutionary condition is an objective historical fact of this century, and it will continue to exist no matter what the Russians or we say or do about it.

Change In Conflict

The Soviet-American conflict is about this revolutionary condition. Thus, the conflict is no longer, as it was a generation ago, about what kind of social order is to exist in the highly-developed countries of Europe and North America. As a matter of fact, in this whole area, which includes European Russia itself, the old argument between the Marxists and the laissez-faire capitalists has been by-passed by events. For example, the economic philosophy of Gen. Eisenhower and Sen. Goldwater in America is as dead as the economic philosophy of Marx is among the European Socialists. In the whole developed, progressive, industrial world, the prevailing economic order is a mixture in varying degrees of planning and the incentive of profit, of fiscal management and social regulation.

It is in regard to the turbulence of this third world—which was not forseen a generation ago—that the Soviet Union and the United States find themselves locked into what has the appearance of an irreconcilable conflict.

In its official ideology, the Soviet Union is committed to the support of the revolutionaries, to the incitement and supplying of "wars of national liberation."

In the American ideology, we are not absolutely opposed to wars of national liberation, provided they are not inspired or supported by Communists. We are very much disposed to feel, however, that all revolutions will be captured by the Communists who invariably participate in them.

Vicious Circle

Thus, Russia and America find themselves in a vicious circle. The Russians are disposed to intervene wherever there is a rebellion and the United States is inclined to intervene to oppose as aggression the Communist intervention. In the Soviet Union there exists a prejudice in favor of rebellion as such. The Soviet Union is the product of a fairly recent revolution. In the United States, where the revolution occurred nearly two centuries ago, there is now a prejudice against revolution. The result is a vicious circle in which dogmatic communism and dogmatic anti-communism incite and exasperate each other.

The improvement of Soviet-American relations, which is prerequisite to an accommodation between the West and China, requires the breakup of this vicious circle. How? Essentially, I believe, by fostering the ascendancy of national interests over global ideology, by the reassertion in both countries of prudence and calculation against semi-religious fanaticism and frenzy.

We had a glimpse last week of how this can happen. The hostilities in Kashmir began with an infiltration of guerrilla troops, recruited as a matter of fact from the Pakistan army though they wore different uniforms. The purpose of the guerrillas was to arouse the population and to liberate Moslem Kashmir from Hindu rule. Here was a war of national liberation which the Soviet Union, according to its theoretical doctrine, was bound to support.

However, the fact of the matter is that it did not suit the Soviet Union that Pakistan, in cahoots with Red China, should defeat India, which is a tacit ally of the Soviet Union. So the Soviet Union acted in favor of peace, which is its real interest, rather than on behalf of an ideological prejudice.

At the same time, the United States, having learned something in recent months, resisted the temptation to take a lofty position against aggression, and instead, reticently and prudently, chose to work quietly and behind the scenes.

This is the way that Soviet-American relations can be improved—by encouraging the prudent and the practical to predominate over the ideological and the hot. In this country, at least, the process will require the resumption of public debate—the kind of debate which Sen. Fulbright has once again opened up.

Question of Toleration

For the issue which he has posed in his remarkable speech is the essential issue in our attitude and policy toward the revolutionary condition of our time. The question he posed is how to tolerate rebellion, which is often necessary and desirable, without surrendering the control of the rebellion to the Communists who will always be part of it.

There is no rule of thumb for answering this question. But there has to be some kind of accommodation, such as the Soviet Union made about the Kashmir freedom fighters and such as we made about the Chinese threat of military aggression. The discussion of this serious and difficult problem cannot be monopolized by the assorted hangers-on, often more Johnsonian than Johnson himself, who are presuming to lay down the rule that only those who conform with the current political improvisations are altogether respectable and quite loyal.

TASTY LIVING

One of the major pleasures in life is appetite, and I think one of our major duties should be to preserve it. Appetite is the keenness of living; it is one of the senses that tells you that you are still curious to exist, and that you still have an edge on your longings and want to bite into the world and taste its multitudinous flavors and juices. By appetite, of course, I don't mean just the lust for food, but any condition of unsatisfied desire, any burning in the blood that proves that you haven't yet used up your life.

Mr. Johnson and the New Canal

By CHARLES BARTLETT

CONGRESS' reaction to President Johnson's concessions on the Panama Canal will be clouded and complicated by the emotionalism that persists from the Dominican intervention.

Fanned afresh by the Fulbright speech, this emotionalism has hardened the divergence on Latin policy between the sympaticos, primarily attuned to the sensitivities and aspiration of the South Americans, and the hard liners, whose prime concern is the menace of the communists. Their disagreement has an increasing tendency to deteriorate into bitter distrust.

Having been opposed by the sympaticos in the Dominican crisis, Mr. Johnson now lays claims to their favor in his generous position on the Panama Canal. His negotiators have gone further than most Panamanians expected, and much further than the hard liners like, towards meeting the grievances of a nation that has devoted most of its short history to marshalling its grievances. The last imperialistic fruits of the "Big Stick" era are being yielded up.

In return for conceding sovereignty over the Canal Zone and partial control of the canal operations, Mr. Johnson has gained one grace that was important. This was the right to negotiate the treaty for a new canal simultaneously with the abrogation of the old treaty.

The Panamenistos and other agitators had frenetically insisted that the two steps be unrelated because they disliked to dilute their humbling of the United States and because they feared that the advantages to Panama of the new canal would be used to weaken the concessions on the old one. Since the promise of the new sea-level canal will divert this country's concerns with the old one, the president's victory on this point has actually facilitated his generosity.

But the sympatico approach will not carry the president all the way on the canal dispute. The Panamanians' essential aim is to secure the control which will permit them to raise the tolls. They view the canal as a prime resource that must be exploited more fully to meet their national needs.

'Reasonable' Tolls

In justice to its intercoastal commerce and to the Latin nations which ship their commodities to northern markets, the United States cannot allow this ambition to prevail. The Johnson-Robles agreement calls for "reasonable" tolls on the old and new canals and the subsequent necessity to define "reasonable" will be a strenuous negotiating exercise.

The option of building the new sea-level canal in Colombia or Nicaragua may help to induce the Panamanians to moderate their demands for new toll schedules. But this is a limited option, as the president indicated, because the difficulties of maintaining the old canal until the new one is ready will become formidable if the sea-level project is begun in another country.

A more sobering restraint may be Panama's recognition that the sea-level canal will cripple the economy that now exists. The negligible numbers of people needed to operate a canal without locks will create a necessity for new industries and agricultural endeavors. This important step toward economic maturity will summon guidance and aid from the United States. This will be the crucial opportunity for Panamanians to learn to relinquish their unrealistic view of the canal as the answer to all their problems.

The hard line on Panama has long been that any erosion of the United States' position in the Canal Zone will reflect adversely as a show of weakness on its standing throughout the Caribbean and Latin America. Some close students of the problem have argued strongly that no good can emerge from basic changes in the Treaty of 1903.

Neither Satisfied

Mr. Johnson's disregard of the hard liners in his Panama concessions has not assuaged the sympaticos, who insist now that the White House should have forcefully resisted the House resolution of September 20. This restated the proposition that the United States will take whatever steps are necessary to avert communist incursions in the Western hemisphere.

The timing of this resolution flowed more directly from the Fulbright dispute than from the national interest. The Dominican intervention left no pressing necessity to underscore this country's determination to act, alone if necessary, against communist penetrations. At this stage the resolution was an unnecessary irritant.

But the president could not oppose the House's expression once it has gained momentum, without dangerously misleading the world. All the bitterness of Juan Bosch and the other consequences of the intervention have not changed the fact that an American president, faced with a possible communist takeover that only his forces can avert, will respond to his nation's security interests.

The contention between the sympaticos and hard liners will continue but as presidents must, Mr. Johnson will seek his policies in the alternatives that embrace both the aspirations of the South Americans and the menace of the communists.

DENNIS THE MENACE

"OH, WE DON'T WANT ANY BOOKS. WE JUST CAME IN TO CLIMB YOUR LADDERS."

Looking Back

From The Times of Sept. 29, 1890:

Nanaimo: Most of the 40 men brought to Wellington from San Francisco to work in the mine have refused to take the place of the locked-out miners for $3 a day. They have come into Nanaimo where they intend to work until they have enough money to return to California. Some of the men said when they get back they will take action against the Dunsmuir company for bringing them here under false pretences. They said they were told the trouble was practically over.

Do Canadian Voters Look For Strong Leadership?

By DOUGLAS FISHER
Former NDP MP for Port Arthur

Do Canadians want strong leadership? I sense that party is becoming less important, the leader more important to the average voter. So many voters seem to feel the country is in a bind between internal Quebec pressure and external American influence. Won't someone show them the way out from between these forces? Television prompts the voter to look to one because it focusses so much on the party leader. When were solid politicians like Mike Starr, Arthur Laing, Stanley Knowles and Alvin Hamilton last shown at any length on TV news?

Fisher

Despite this emphasis on party leaders there is skepticism and cynicism about leaders in Canada. Many of the party faithful in each party have to keep reassuring their acquaintances that their particular leader is just great.

Much of the skepticism is of recent origin. It was in 1957 and 1958 that the intense TV intimacy with leaders got under way—with a bang; An unprecedented number of Canadians turned to a new prime minister who held out the hope that Canadians could do grand things. He offered a "vision." What followed faded into fratricidal argument and cabinet conflict.

Much less certain, Canadians turned in 1963 to another leader, a Nobel Peace Prize winner. He was presented as a man "leading a team" who would bring back the C. D. Howe days of "administrative expertise." "Sixty days of decision!"

The crisp promise faded into a succession of parliamentary crises. Twice-bitten, twice given less authority in direct leadership than expected, the voters may shy away the third time.

And yet, they want leadership. In the earlier days of my generation, in fact until recent date, there were few qualifications upon our pride in being Canadians. Then relations with a quiescent Quebec were a periodic, not a constant problem. American civilization pressed less heavily upon us.

Whatever the verdict of historians when they sum up these post-war years, their concern is certain to be with the failure to establish a national direction and identity. They will examine our leadership. Let us anticipate them, with an opinion and a comparison of the leaders of the three parties which will contend in most of the ridings.

First, it is fairly clear that Lester Pearson and Tommy Douglas inspire almost fanatical loyalty in their followers while John Diefenbaker, on the record, has excited rather enthusiastic disloyalty. Of course, the record does show that Canadian Conservatives have a tradition of devouring their leaders. The success of Mr. Pearson in this aspect of leadership is more surprising. He is not what comes to mind when one thinks of a "true leader"; there isn't any suggestion of "charisma" about him; nor do Canadian Liberals remind one of a host of "true believers."

To understand Mr. Pearson, one must never forget his training as a history student, teacher, and as a civil servant. He amasses information, weighs the pros and the cons, and then tends to feel his job is done. For example, he shared with the public much of his agony over whether to call this election. Even in announcing the election on television he was weighing the "fors" and "againsts."

Mr. Diefenbaker is no mediator; he is the prosecutor, the cross-examiner. Not for him the bulging brief case! Two or three arguments will do, spun out in a familiar liturgy: ". . . they said we were wrong . . .; "they were against it . . ." The continuity of the argument can largely disappear, often in brilliant asides, but the chorus is consistent.

Just as Mr. Pearson must possess all the pros and cons, just as Mr. Diefenbaker is content with two or three simple arguments, Mr. Douglas is obsessed with the general idea, the philosophy behind the matter, and especially in its embodiment in a clear policy. He is policy-conscious and much more the classic politician in the British style. He demands working papers from his aides on almost every subject in order to have a policy which expresses the general viewpoint of his party on the subject. This is a characteristic of left of centre parties everywhere.

★ ★ ★

Many journalists have noted that Mr. Pearson is "paralyzed" in the Commons by the leader of the opposition. It doesn't follow that Mr. Pearson would act much differently if faced with another opposition leader less convinced of his sense of destiny. The PM hates electioneering, dislikes partisan controversy, admires reasonableness. The rip of party fighting conflicts with his long career training.

What are the main fields of interest of the leaders?

Mr. Pearson is intent on foreign affairs, English-French relations, and the civil service. With Mr. Diefenbaker, it is justice and agriculture. With Mr. Douglas it is federal-provincial relations, welfare and, increasingly, the national economy.

★ ★ ★

The main weakness of both the major party leaders is a common one of Canadian politicians. It is economics. Mr. Pearson is vaguely Keynesian and Mr. Diefenbaker indistinctly Adam Smithian, with a dash of William Jennings Bryan. Mr. Douglas has his teeth into the new economic orthodoxy of Samuelson and Gunnar Myrdahl, giving him an academic advantage that is not popularily recognized. An Ottawa wag has said that "Pearson doesn't have to know anything about economics because he has Walter Gordon behind him, and Gordon doesn't have to know anything about economics because he has John Diefenbaker in front of him."

Mr. Douglas has two weaknesses. In foreign affairs "Sawdust Ceasar" still comes too easily to his lips. There are still sawdust Ceasars to be dealt with but you can leave the impression that you have mixed up your priorities in the modern world. The evidence isn't too clear but another weakness may be a failure to discriminate between different elements in the labor movement. (This will be the subject of a later column.)

Two Sides to Understanding Between Students, Professors

The mythical ivory tower from which university professors were once supposed to view the campus, would seem to have collapsed. The long distance binoculars with which they were credited as viewing their students, have been cast aside.

Forbes

Today, university professors are presenting a new image, far removed from towers of any sort.

Take last Saturday, when University of Victoria students were doing their bit for this year's United Appeal, by sawing, chopping and selling beach wood at Clover Point.

Who manned the barbecues and served their supper? It was members of the faculty.

With coats off and sleeves rolled up, two of the busiest men on campus, Dr. Malcolm Taylor and R. R. Jeffels, assisted in cooking the beef roasts.

Casual observers thought they were "two of the gang." Few, except the wood choppers themselves, knew that here was the university president and the registrar, respectively.

This is only one of many occasions on which professors have deserted their ivory towers to rub shoulders with those whose lives they hope to influence.

I only hope young men and women to whom the hands are held out are mature enough to realize that understanding has two sides, and that one of those sides is in front of the lecture desk.

What makes me a little dubious about this maturity is a small booklet produced by University of British Columbia's students' council and titled "Black And White."

It purports to be a guide to first year students in "signing up" for classes.

Every UBC faculty member is named. Close to each name appears praise or indictment of teaching methods, ability to impart knowledge and some brutally frank sentences about popularity, or lack of it.

"It's all true," a third year student told me, "so why shouldn't we pass the information on to the frosh?"

He couldn't see that such truths, once printed in bold lettering, become cruelties it is impossible to erase.

No one is naive enough to believe that every university professor is in the top echelon. No one thinks that all professors have the same ability to impart knowledge or to hold the attention of students.

At the same time, it is commonly known, that while one student may find a certain professor a complete "wash out," another student will learn much from the same professor.

So, why pin labels on them and name them good, or bad or indifferent?

To my mind, the booklet is rude, calloused, and, at the same time, childish.

Certainly, it gives some professors full marks, with extra golden stars. (One wonders how they will cope with the rush of students it should send to the doors of their lecture rooms.)

In few instances, it does point a finger at places where change is needed.

But, for the most part, it crucifies well-meaning men and women and, through the bluntness of its words, it threatens their life work.

Resounding Title Important To Many Leaders in Africa

BLANTYRE, Malawi (AP)—What's in a name For some African leaders, struggling to make something of their recent independence, the right title enhances their chances of topping the African popularity poll.

Presidents of prime ministers don't really mean much to millions of Africans living in dusty, mud-hut villages and clinging to age-old tribal adoration of their chiefs and clan elders.

They prefer something more resounding — like redeemers, saviours, messiahs and lions.

Ethiopia's Emperor Haile Selassie has a long string of Biblical titles. Legend has it that he is a direct descendant of King Solomon and the Queen of Sheba.

His titles include King of Kings, Conquering Lion of Judah and Elect of God. Among the septuagenarian's royal courtiers he is referred to as Imperial Majesty. But the people of his country prefer the title of Conquering Lion.

On Africa's steamy West coast, Ghana's President Kwame Nkrumah has taken the title of Osogyeto, which broadly translated likens him to redeemer, saviour or messiah.

The fact that he has survived bullet and bomb attacks on his life adds weight to his spiritual title, which impresses the Ghanian people. Some of them believe their messiah immune from killing.

Down on the palm-fringed East African coast, Tanzania's President Julius Nyerere, architect of Tanganyika's independence and a former school teacher, is known as Mwalimu—a Swahili term for teacher.

Kenya's President Jomo Kenyatta, elder statesman of African nationalism and the man the British believe was leader of the country's former Mau Mau terrorist organization, originally was called Burning Spear.

This now has been replaced with a simple "Mzee"—a Swahili term meaning old man. Among Kenya's white population, many of whom recall the fertible jungle savagery of Mau Mau days, he is sometimes jocularly known as Jolly Jomo.

Malawi's fiery Dr. Hastings Banda, prime minister of a land-locked Central African country (formerly Nyasaland), has taken the title of Malawi. In official government records he is referred to as founder of the nation.

Moise Kapenda Tshombe, prime minister of the bloodied Congo, is best known by his real name, which means Moses, My Darling.

Demand for Indian A-Bomb Increased by Pakistan War

By SELIG S. HARRISON
The Washington Post

NEW DELHI—Prime Minister Lal Bahadur Shastri had just announced the cease-fire ending the Indo-Pakistan war. As he gathered up his papers and turned toward the Parliament corridors, K. C. Pant, the influential young secretary of Shastri's governing Congress Party, dashed after the prime minister and handed him an envelope with a big red seal.

What Shastri carried away to his office was an appeal by 106 members of parliament—from the Hindu nationalist An Sangh (Peoples Party) on the right to the Communists—demanding a crash program to make nuclear weapons. Nearly 80 congress deputies joined in the manifesto, which attacked the great powers for their neufrality in the war and declared that "the security of India can no longer be left to the mercy or whim of the so-called friendly countries."

Index of Change

The rapid crystalization of sentiment last week for a nuclear program as part of a general militarization is an index of the profound change in the mood of the country generated by the war. India has thrown off much of the defeatism left by the Chinese military successes of 1962, and the question people are asking is not whether the war with Pakistan should have been fought but whether it should have been stopped so soon. It is widely assumed that this was only round one in what will be an intermittent struggle over a period of years to decide the regional balance of power in South Asia.

Even if the military post-mortems gradually reveal somewhat less of a resounding Indian triumph than the nationalist press here has trumpeted so far, the mere fact that the Shastri government had the grit to respond with a counterattack in the Punjab folowing the Sept. 1 Pakistani armored offensive in southern Kashmir has given the country an enormous lift. India has lived in psychological misery for the past decade in the face of an assertive Pakistani posture on Kashmir and other issues which implied in Indian eyes an unforgivable lack of deference on the part of their considerably smaller neighbor. The defensive stance of the Indian Army during the Kutch crisis in May left the country seething and very nearly resulted in a serious challenge to Shastri's leadership by hard-line Hindu leader Morarji Desai at the Bangalore Congress session in July.

Outraged

For the army, in particular, the deepening sense of outrage at Pakistani "provocations" was compounded by the fact that Rawalpindi's posture was backed up by U.S. arms which were more sophisticated than anything in Indian arsenals. "They used to put their American tanks out in front," remarked a general's wife, "and say 'This shall be done.'"

Now that the army's image has been more or less restored, the country, too, has regained some of its self-respect and is searching for ways to make the world acknowledge India as the central power in South Asia. This is where the bomb comes in. Economist Ra Krishna, a leading advocate of an Indian nuclear build-up, likens India to an individual who has shaken off an inferiority complex and feels impelled to prove his new strength dramatically in a spiral of ambitious ventures. "This is all to the good," he argues. "We believed the BBC when it ran down the Indian army and gave us the image of the spindly-legged Hindu. With this out of our minds, we can get down to work and build."

In contrast to the transient and superficial sense of national unity felt here in 1962 after the attack by China—a relatively unknown and distant enemy—the conflict with Pakistan has touched visceral feelings focused on an old, familiar rival. Together, Pakistan and China are evoking a spirit of Indian unity surpassing the spirit of '62 yet it is far from clear whether this wartime nationalist feeling can be transferred to peacetime as a constructive force. Many observers are concerned that Indian leaders may instead fall into the habit of using the Pakistan bogey as a diversion for failures of leadership on the home front—gradually embracing a negative, belligerently Hindu nationalism.

Secularism

India gave a resounding demonstration of its secularism by getting through the war period without communal disturbances. It appears obvious though, that this was made easier by the fact that the country suffered no serious reverses. Hindu nationalists could afford to be large-hearted in a time of success. There have also been discernible anti-Moslem undercurrents in the statements of some local politicians. And one of the more significant political changes growing out of the war has been the new respectability conferred overnight on Hindu nationalist groups.

Shastri included the leader of the para-military, Hindu extremist Rashtriya Swayamsevak Sangh (RSS)—who had been blackballed in Nehru's day—in his war briefings with opposition leaders. To the distress of Moslems, RSS "volunteers" took over traffic management in parts of Delhi to free the police for civilian defence duties. The RSS and its political offshoot, the An Sangh, appear to be gaining sympathizers rapidly in the North Indian political climate accompanying tension with Pakistan.

Economically, experts say, the full impact of the war is not likely to be felt for months until shortages resulting from the emergency military procurement and defense production of recent weeks eat into reserve stocks of scarce raw materials such as zinc, copper and alloy steels. Initial economic dislocations have resulted mainly from transportation snafus. With railroads taken over for troop movements and trucks commandeered in many areas for defence purposes, many industrial firms have found their deliveries behind schedule. But there has been a compensating effect in a spurt of defence contracts and in the unloading of blackmarket hoards by traders briefly caught up in the wave of patriotic sentiment.

Clamor for Arms

The most serious economic implications of the war do not lie in the damage done to the civilian economy during the period of the fighting but rather in the growing clamor to increase future defence spending—or at least to rebuild the Indian army to what it was before the conflict started.

No one seeks to disguise the continuing hopes entertained here that U.S. and Soviet help will make it possible to have both guns and butter. Where the present atmosphere differs from what has been known in the past, though, is that a growing number of people now feel India should try to go its own way whether or not the great powers help.

Bishops Set Church On Road to Freedom

By GEORGE ARMSTRONG
Manchester Guardian

ROME—One of those now familiar midnight manoeuvres—when it appears that the Curia is determined to live up to its worst publicity——was stopped by the Pope himself.

The Curia and its fearless band, The Glorious Minority, as they call themselves, had devised a plan which would have resulted in the document on religious liberty not being brought to a vote, at least at this time and in its present form.

Meeting early in the morning with the Council's four moderators and his personal theologian, Cardinal Colombo of Milan, the Pope decided that it was time for him to stop the manoeuvre.

●

The issue of religious liberty, after four years' deliberation and four days of debate, should be brought to a vote. Not a final vote, but a vote of simple approval of the basic outline from which the final, doctrinal decree will be taken. The vote was called: 1,997 bishops in favor, 224 opposed.

Everyone seemed greatly cheered with the hurdle behind them and with no attempt at any secondary manoeuvre to take the draft out of the hands of its original authors. The same small group of two bishops and five periti (experts in the material) will now prepare the final version. This cannot differ much from the version approved.

For Pope Paul's forthcoming trip to the United Nations, the vote will be a handsome piece of additional luggage. Its value was indicated by the non-Catholic observers in St. Peter's who broke into a rare outburst of applause when religious liberty became (in the practical, if not yet official, sense) the binding doctrine of the Roman Church.

●

Schema 13. "The Church and the Modern World," returned to the Council floor as a modified 30,000-word document which all speakers agreed was too long and in atrocious Latin. Cardinal Bea, the 84-year-old floor manager for religious liberty, seemed to be getting his second wind with "13" as he began scolding the Schema's authors for not remembering their Scripture. He also gave them zero in Latin.

"For example, it is stated here that the Church seeks no domination just as Christ refused all earthly authority. The authors seem to forget that Christ declared that 'All authority is given me in heaven and on earth.'" As for their Latin, well, Cardinal Bea said that, even after 50 years of teaching it, he had to turn to the French version (the original but unofficial version) to find out what "13" was all about.

Two concrete suggestions were made for bringing the Church face to face with the modern world. Cardinal Spellman, of New York, would like the virtue of the Church's authority emphasized and the citizen reminded that it is the State who must decide if he is to bear arms.

Cardinal Jaeger, of Paderborn, said that when the Schema was approved he would like to see a compendium of theology for modern man drawn up, "just as the Catechism of the Council of Trent served as a compendium of the teaching of its time," guiding layman and priest through the thicket.

Minor Bulbs

FOR FALL PLANTING—These minor bulbs give big rewards to each and every gardener, particularly since so many of them flower in late winter and very early spring. At that time little else but a few early shrubs are showing color, and we are all looking for those very first signs of growth beginning again, symbolizing the end of winter. Who of us doesn't react to word of the first crocus.

The following varieties are available at lowest market prices:

Crocus, separate colors or mixed, Chionodoxa, Fritellaria, Allium, Anemone, Winter Aconites, Galanthus, (Snowdrops), Iris, Muscari, Oxalis, and Scillas.

A Special Collection of Spreading Junipers
including the following: Green Pfitzer, Golden Pfitzer, Skandia, Armstrongi, Arcadia, Tamariscifolia, and Sabina. Your choice, each 2.49

THUJA (Cedar) Occidentalis pyramidalis
—Compact columnar type, grow up to 20 feet, having a diameter of no more than two feet at the base. Foliage, bright green all year.

Occidentalis rosenthali—quite similar except it grows wider at the base. 2'-2½', each 1.79

COMMUNITY AFFAIRS OR POLITICS

Business Not Doing Enough

TORONTO (CP)—Labor and management combined forces Tuesday to criticize business for not doing enough of the right thing in community affairs and not doing enough in political affairs.

William Dodge, executive vice-president of the Canadian Labor Congress, told the Canadian Chamber of Commerce business had "abysmally failed in its responsibility to the community" in certain areas.

In the face of rapid technological and social change, business has remained almost motionless in dealing with associated problems, he said.

Businessmen as citizens are, no doubt, concerned about the solution of community problems, said Mr. Dodge. "But businessmen as management seem to resist any solutions which are costly to business.

"I know of no business which has voluntarily undertaken to make the heavy expenditures necessary to reduce pollution of the air or to cut down the discharge of noxious waste material into our waterways."

Slum clearance and urban redevelopment, he said, are urgent problems in many communities. "Unhappily, I see very little disposition on the part of the business community to join in this kind of campaign."

Mr. Dodge said another field in which business can assume some responsibility is on the stock market.

People have been enticed into the market by propaganda and sales techniques only to lose a lot of money, he said. Business can try to protect the small investor from the predatory type of operator.

Mayor Maurice P. Finnerty of Penticton, B.C., told the meeting Canadian businessmen are eunuchs as far as the country's political affairs are concerned.

They exert almost no influence on the basic government decisions being made, he said. "... The Canadian businessman, generally speaking, cloaks his political feeling with anonymity, exercises little influence on the affairs of the nation, and is in fact a political eunuch on the Canadian political scene."

He urged businessmen to exert influence on the professional advisers of government by personal political activity.

OFFERS A SUGGESTION

The new president of the chamber, Maj.-Gen. R. H. Keefler of Montreal, suggested another responsibility that should be accepted by the business world.

"The trend of the whole business world, despite occasional setbacks, has been established since the Second World War as one of joining together rather than dividing up into small camps."

The future of Canada and the free world also depends on the degree to which it develops greater unity, he said, and as the head of Canada's biggest businessmen's organization he intends to see that nothing hampers the progress of national and international unity.

As a start, he said he will attempt to discourage the practice by many provinces of preferential treatment for industries.

"It will mean the consumer will have to pay more for his products and it will mean that industry will be unnecessarily fragmented and inefficient by having to put up plants where there is no real economic justification for them."

Thursday Deadline For Voters

Non-property owning Victoria city residents have until 5 p.m. Thursday to register as voters in December civic elections.

Owner-electors are automatically on the voters' list, but others must declare themselves eligible.

Tenant and resident electors who were registered last year must confirm in writing that they are still eligible, and newly-qualified tenant and resident electors must sign a declaration with the city clerk.

To date this week, about 2,000 persons have confirmed or registered for the first time.

General qualifications are that a person is a British subject and 21 years of age.

A resident-elector must have lived in the city for six months prior to registration and a tenant-elector—whether person or corporation—must have occupied property in Victoria for six months before registration.

Licence Suspended

Arthur James Hill, 1012 Oliphant, was fined $150 and had his licence suspended when he pleaded guilty in city court Tuesday to failing to remain at an accident scene.

Court was told he struck another car when pulling out from a parking space on Humboldt Street Sept. 11. A total of $95 damage was done to both autos.

FISHING IS FUN— FOR SOME

SHEFFIELD, England (AP) —This is a real fish story. George Holland dropped his bait can into the Derwent River, then dropped his car keys trying to recover the can.

Worse followed. He fell into the river trying to recover the keys. He had to force a side window to get into his car and, without keys, had to short the ignition to start the engine. But he couldn't turn the wheel since the anti-theft device on it was locked.

"The whole affair," George said, "was a triumph for the fish."

Five Perish In Blaze; Man Held

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — A mother and four of her children died at dawn Monday in a fire that swept a two-storey house in north Philadelphia. Five other children fled to safety.

Homicide detectives said later they had taken a man into custody for questioning. They said one of the surviving children told them that a man had shattered the glass in the front door, emptied a can of inflammable liquid over the entry and tossed in a lighted match.

Neighbors said they were roused by screams and shrieks from those trapped inside the house.

Authorities said the victims were Mrs. Lucille Miller, 53, and her children, Rupert, 12, Byron, 14, Raymond, 6, and Anthony, 9.

The father, Byron Miller, was at work when the fire broke out.

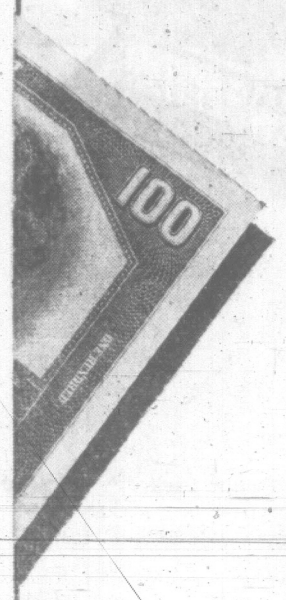

Japan Prince To Visit B.C.

OTTAWA (CP) — Prince Mikasa of Japan will spend six days in Canada, ending a month long tour of North America, the Japanese Embassy announced Monday.

The youngest brother of Emperor Hirohito, accompanied by his wife and 21-year-old daughter Princess Yasuko, will arrive in Montreal today and visit Toronto, Niagara Falls, Ottawa and Vancouver before returning to Japan Oct. 3.

In Vancouver Oct. 2 they will visit the University of British Columbia and attend a reception and dinner prior to their departure for Tokyo the following day.

The 1966 Studebaker: a breath of fresh air in the automotive industry

For 1966 Studebaker introduces Refreshaire — a completely new and built-in ventilating system.*

It noiselessly distributes air so effectively that your Studebaker stays cooler in summer, warmer in winter. Expels smoke and de-fogs windows with a breath of fresh air and without mechanical equipment. Refreshaire combined with Studebaker's proven Climatizer provides a 'no extra cost' substitute for air conditioning.

And wait until you see Studebaker's beautiful, new interiors. New colors, luxurious new fabrics fashioned by a leading designer. Like a breath of fresh air.

What's more, the smart new side moldings on the '66 Studebaker also serve as functional rub rails... allowing you to say good by to parking lot scars on your doors. Refreshing? You bet!

Yet, perhaps the most refreshing breath of fresh air is this. The '66 Studebaker offers more safety features as standard equipment than any other Studebaker in its over 100 year history. To name just a few: rugged armor-guard frame, aluminized rustproofing, big 15-inch wheels, padded dash and sun visors, dual safety brakes, two-speed electric windshield wipers, windshield washers.

Now doesn't the '66 Studebaker really seem refreshing?

See your Studebaker dealer now for your personal breath of fresh air.

*Wagonaire excepted.

DELEGATION TO ATTEND INTERNATIONAL CONFERENCE

Be Prepared, Canada's Motto on Desalination

OTTAWA (CP) —Scientists and government officials from 58 countries will exchange and discuss research methods in Washington Oct. 3-9 at the first international sympoisum on water desalination.

While Canada is one of the few countries without a serious fresh water shortage, it will have a 15-man delegation at the meeting. Most will be there as observers.

"We have vast resources of water now but we have to make long-range plans now to ensure we keep it," said J. A. MacDonald, assistant deputy minister of the resources department and leader of the Canadian delegation.

"We don't want to be caught in the position of having to start a costly crash program if we should run short in the future."

Dr. Srinivasa Sourirajan of the National Research Council has been studying the removal of salt from sea water for 10 years and is sure he has found the answer with a thin membrane that allows only fresh water to flow through when salt water is pumped into a simple vessel under pressure.

"I'm confident we can even double this figure in a short time," he said.

Dr. Sourirajan, who will deliver a paper on his method at the symposium, said his cellulose acetate membrane has produced more than 20 gallons of fresh water a day per square foot of membrane. The only other equipment required is a pump to keep the salt water under pressure.

Canada has also been removing salt from water with nuclear reactors. The enormous heat produced in the nuclear fission process is used for flash distillation. This type of operation is expected to become practical in the near future, especially if it can be used in a combination station producing electric power as well as fresh water.

BOWLING, SWIMMING C. SAANICH CHOICE

Central Saanich centennial committee has recommended to council the construction of a swimming pool and bowling green as the municipality's 1967 centennial project.

It suggested the two projects for Centennial Park on Wallace Drive.

Councillors will meet members of the centennial committee today to inspect the proposed sites and discuss costs.

Some councillors estimated the projects would cost at least $30,000.

Guard Against Culture Invasion

VANCOUVER (CP) — Quebec's Premier Lesage Tuesday criticized the press of Canada, saying French-Canadian culture is a guard against threatened invasion by so-called American culture.

His audience of more than 2,000 at the University of British Columbia was the biggest Mr. Lesage has addressed since he left Quebec 10 days ago on a tour of Western Canada to explain the aspirations of French-Canada.

He continually compared the economic growth of Quebec and the "new state of mind" of its people with the intellectual growth of students.

AMBASSADOR

He called himself an ambassador from French-Canada and denied one student's charge his trip was designed to boost the chances of the Liberal party in the Nov. 8 federal election.

There was lack of knowledge of the two cultures of Canada because of lack of contacts between East and West, he said, blaming this in part on the lack of truly national press.

Newspapers in Eastern Canada were preoccupied with international news and coverage of Canadian news was parochial and regional. The same applied to British Columbia newspapers.

Eastern newspapers did not have correspondents in the West and western papers did not have correspondents in the East.

Press reports of sensationalist stories from Quebec do not reflect the thinking of the masses, he told a questioner.

Mr. Lesage received applause when he said French-Canadians have an important cultural contribution to make to all of Canada, "even if it is only to wipe out the threat of an invasion by American culture."

Because of its French culture French-Canada is in the best position to wipe out the threat of what he termed the "so-called American culture."

Quebecers had no desire to impose French - Canadian culture on the rest of Canada. "They wish rather to offer it to the rest of the country in the sincere hope that it will be accepted in such a way that the two main cultures in Canada may meet without colliding."

LESAGE TRIPS OVER THE 'L' IN LIBERAL

VANCOUVER (CP) — Premier Lesage of Quebec described himself left of centre politically Tuesday after tripping over the "L" in liberal.

In a talk to more than 2,000 students at the University of British Columbia, the Liberal premier described his audience as "liberal in thought."

"Boo," cried a member of the audience.

Mr. Lesage amended himself to say that the students are "more to the left in your thinking."

"My political thoughts are to the centre-left, or left of centre if you like."

The students applauded.

GIVEN GREEN LIGHT BY CASTRO

Cubans Can Join Relatives in U.S.

HAVANA (Reuters)—Premier Fidel Castro said Tuesday night Cubans with relatives in the United States who want to leave will be permitted to do so.

Castro, addressing a mass rally here, also said he would clarify within the next few days the mysterious disappearance of top Cuban revolutionary leader Ernesto (Che) Guevara.

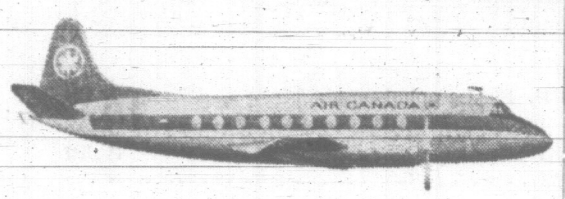

Castro said he would speak about Guevara at a ceremony establishing the central committee of the Cuban Unified Socialist Revolutionary Party.

He added he would read a document from Guevara explaining his absence during the last few months.

The Argentine-born Guevara has not been seen in public for six months. Many rumors have circulated, some saying he is organizing revolutions in other Latin American countries and others that he is ill or working on a special task within Cuba.

Castro told the rally that Cubans who want to rejoin relatives in the U.S. could do so and should apply to the interior ministry, which would supply boats if it had any.

Fertilizer 'Raid' Hits 3,000 Acres

DUNCAN—Largest commercial application of fertilizer from the air ever carried out in North America is under way in the Cowichan Valley.

Pacific Logging Ltd. is spraying 3,000 acres of Douglas fir.

Two Stearman aircraft of Skyways Air Services, Langley, make their runs from Rajindi Mayo's private airstrip at Paldi.

In 1963 Pacific Logging experimented by air spraying 350 acres at Lake Cowichan, Port Alberni and Paldi.

The next year some 1,500 acres in the Malahat, Lake Cowichan and Port Renfrew areas were sprayed.

This year the program will cover 3,000 acres at Lake Cowichan, Paldi and new Pacific Logging holdings in the Chemainus River Valley, according to the company's forest manager, Ian Macrae.

70-FOOT SWATH

The two aircraft, flying in formation, carry 1,120 pounds of fertilizer each, and each run covers a 70-foot path.

Fertilizer being used is Urea which has 46 per cent nitrogen.

The present Pacific Logging operation is twice as big as anything carried out elsewhere.

Mr. Macrae said: "We are fertilizing young Douglas fir, covering stands from 50 years up to about 90 years.

"We expect an increased yield in the region of 25-30 per cent."

He said it required up to 200 pounds of nitrogen to trigger a response from Douglas fir.

The response would last anything from five to eight years.

DOMAN'S PLAN SUPERMARKET FOR LUMBER

NANAIMO—Doman's Lumber Co. is planning a $200,000 lumber supermarket on the Island Highway south of here.

Work on the project will begin as soon as plans have cleared city zoning regulations.

The retail outlet will include one-and-a-half acres of parking.

Rain Douses Forest Fire At Gold River

GOLD RIVER — Rain today put the final damper on a forest fire which swept across four miles in three days.

At the height of the blaze, firefighters feared the flames might reach the new Gold River townsite.

Water bombers were called in but eventually had to give up due to the intense smoke.

During its north-westerly rush along the Nimpkish Valley, the fire destroyed 2,000 acres of prime timber.

The blaze was eventually brought under control Tuesday. No-one was injured.

S. Wellington Backs Incorporation Move

NANAIMO—South Wellington this week voted in favor of a district municipality in principle.

The municipality so far has the backing of North Wellington and Chase River. South Cedar is against the idea.

'KEEP IT FOR ELDERLY PEOPLE AND NEEDY FAMILIES'

Pensioners Protest Sale of Sunshine Camp

By HUMPHRY DAVY

A last-ditch attempt to stop sale of the Fred Lansberg Sunshine Camp at Sooke is being made by old age pensioners' organizations.

They want the land retained as a camp for elderly people and needy families.

The Family and Childrens' Service, which owns the land, has decided to sell the property, which overlooks Sooke Harbor, and develop a new camp.

Gordon R. Wright, executive director, said today the money from the sale would permit the service to continue with its children's camp program.

"We haven't sold it yet, but a committee is working on the matter," he said.

UNSUITABLE

He said the the service feels the present camp is not suited for a full summer program, such as boating and swimming or any sort of winter program. The water is too cold.

The area is largely becoming residential and no longer suitable for camping, he said

Mrs. Phyllis Johnson, president of the Sooke branch, Old Age Pensioners Organization, conducted a poll in her district and found most residents oppose the sale.

"Many Victorians also feel that the land should be retained for elderly people and needy families," she added.

GAVE TIME, MONEY

She felt it was wrong to sell the property because many private individuals, and organizations such as the Junior Chamber of Commerce, the carpenters and electrical unions, have given time and money to develop the site.

The 4.7-acre camp was originally founded for the benefit of children, but over the years the property has also been used as a holiday place for elderly people and welfare mothers.

"The land in time could be used as the site for a nursing home," said Mrs. Johnson. "I've heard the argument that it's too far from the city, but Toronto has established a nursing home miles outside the city limits."

She felt certain a logging company would donate land for a new camp.

"B.C. Forest Products has already offered acreage at Grassey Lake, near Sooke, to the Boy Scouts," she said.

She proposed that Sunshine camp be developed as a year-round camp for elderly people.

"This would mean winterizing the cabins," she said. "This could be done at not too great a cost."

The property has been evaluated at about $35,000. It is the only publicly-owned waterfront property left in Sooke.

ISLAND DIGEST

Jury Dismisses Dying Man's Final Words

LADYSMITH—A dying man's last words were dismissed here by an inquest jury.

Just before he died in hospital, Sidney Charles Townsend, 85, said he had been hit by a car.

However, the jury Tuesday decided he died Aug. 29 as the result of a fall.

SAW HIM FALL

Anne Wright, of Saltair, said she was driving along First Avenue and saw Townsend fall.

Bystanders, including his friend Daniel Swanson, helped him to his hotel room.

It was to Swanson the deceased complained about being hit by a car.

Swanson told the inquest Townsend had been drinking in the Legion prior to the fall.

CHEMAINUS—His own negligence caused the death of Herbert Richard Collins, 20, on Sept. 21.

Collins was electrocuted at Crofton pulp mill when he put his hand into a console control box containing a 550-volt live wire.

An inquest jury Tuesday night recommended B.C. Forest Products Ltd. mark all equipment "dangerous" where it carried high voltage.

WARNING SIGN

Jury also suggested signs warning unauthorized persons not to tamper with electrical equipment.

Chief electrical inspector of B.C. Leslie Robson testified the company was not negligible. He had examined the console.

Colins put his hand into the console trying to retrieve a button which had dropped down inside.

Over to You, Chilliwack!

LADYSMITH — The White Heather concert will go on here Wednesday, Oct. 13, as scheduled.

Burns Club officials were confused Monday when it was learned Chilliwack also had the Scots' entertainers booked the same night.

But Tuesday it was confirmed the itinerary brings the troupe to Ladysmith as planned.

If anyone has a problem now it's Chilliwack.

The sponsors there are still waiting word from New York promoter Neil Kirk but hope to have the party headed by Andy Stewart in the Fraser Valley Tuesday, Oct. 12.

FAST BIRTH FOR B.C.'S LARGEST

EAGER TO GO TO WORK

Powerful Tug Launched

By RON SUDLOW
Marine Reporter

B.C.'s newest towboat, Gibraltar Straits, looked eager to go to work Tuesday afternoon.

The 140-foot vessel, most powerful and largest of its kind ever built in the province, slid down the ways in one of the fastest launchings ever seen at Yarrows Ltd.

But the all-steel beauty will have to wait for work orders until Dec. 5. That's when the $1.2 million vessel will be handed over to her owners, Straits Towing of Vancouver.

The towboat was sponsored by Mrs. Fred Brown, wife of one of the company's directors.

BARGE TOWING

She was designed principally for coastal barge towing but will be available for deep-sea work.

The vessel will work with a $1.5 million log barge built earlier this year by Yarrows for Straits Towing.

The self-loading and dumping barge can carry up to two million board feet of lumber and the Gibraltar Straits will be just the ticket for towing her.

The tug's silhouette is characterized by the long raised forecastle deck carried back close to midships.

Anchors are placed in recesses so no damaging protuberances extend beyond the rubber hull fenders.

Propulsion for the twin screws is provided by two Fairbanks-Morse 12-cylinder diesels which will crank out 1,920 h.p. at 720 rpm.

The towboat is fully automated with controls for propulsion machinery located in wheelhouse, flying bridge and engine room.

Deck machinery includes a windlass capable of handling a 3,500-pound anchor and an enormous drum towing winch with a capacity of 2,500 feet of steel cable.

12 CREW MEMBERS

She will carry 12 crew members comfortably.

Tuesday, Yarrow's general manager John Wallace blamed indecision by the federal government on federal subsidies to builders for holding back towboat construction in B.C.

PTA Plans Membership Campaign

The Greater Victoria Parent-Teacher Council is planning an all-out membership drive.

It will highlight Parent-Teacher Week in B.C., Oct. 4 to 9.

Council president Mrs. G. M. Whittaker said an extensive publicity campaign is planned to attract new members to the various PTAs in Greater Victoria.

Parent-Teacher Week will be officially proclaimed by mayors, reeves and municipal clerks throughout the province.

QUEBEC PROJECT RESUMED

Minister Asks Probe Of Strike 'Capture'

BAIE COMEAU, Que. (CP)—Labor Minister Carrier Fortin has asked the Quebec justice department to investigate the "criminal act" of a group of wildcat strikers who detained him for two hours Monday at the huge Manicouagan power development project north of Baie Comeau.

Mr. Fortin made the statement Tuesday before continuing his tour of northeastern Quebec.

As provincial police investigated the incident, work on the power project resumed. The 1,600 men involved in the walk-out returned to their jobs Tuesday.

The group of strikers who detained Mr. Fortin had approached the minister's party to air their demands for a longer lunch hour nd trnsportation from job to job on the site.

Mr. Fortin listened, then tried unsuccessfully to seek out some Hydro-Quebec officials to complete his understanding.

When the labor minister and his party tried to get on with their trip, they found the road out of Manicouagan blocked by strikers. They returned to the site and waited two hours before being able to resume their drive to Baie Comeau.

Churches Related But Separate Agrees Rebellious Shelter Nun

Mother Cecilia Mary said this morning the old Catholic and Roman Catholic churches are "related but separate."

She was commenting on a statement from Archbishop Nelson Hillyer of the old Roman Catholic of all Canada that the Old Catholics are not part of the Roman Catholic Church.

"He is definitely correct," said Mother Cecilia.

The relationship between the two groups is similar to that between the Eastern Orthodox and Roman Catholic churches, she added.

"We are not Papal Roman Catholics any more," she continued.

"The Old Roman Catholics preserved the old teachings and don't bother with all the (Roman Catholic) new-fangled things."

Archbishop Hillyer explained the Old Catholics broke away from the parent religion in 1870 after disagreeing with the doctrine of papal infallibility, reached at a Vatican Council meeting.

Mother Cecilia, 76, who has conducted a running battle with her superiors over animal care at the Good Shepherd Shelter, said she and the six other sisters now belong to the Sovereign Order of St. John of Jerusalem.

By becoming members of this order, "we automatically become members of the Old Roman Catholics," she said.

UNIVERSAL CHURCH

Mother Cecilia, who led her order of nuns into the Roman Catholic Church from the Anglican faith in the 1930s, said the new order "accepts the Old Catholic and Roman Catholic churches as one and the same universal church."

This view isn't shared by the Roman Catholic Church, which recognizes the Old Catholics as a schizmatic sect.

Mother Cecilia said the sole reason for the change is to "safeguard our vows" following word from Rome that secularization would be forced on the seven shelter nuns if they did not obey two church orders.

These orders said the nuns must return to St. Mary's Priory in Colwood—founded by Mother Cecilia—or become lay persons and continue to run the animal shelter if they wish.

The 24-acre shelter property is up for sale following refusal by the municipal affairs department, under a recent zoning bylaw, to allow construction of a stable.

Mother Cecilia is looking for another location somewhere between here and Duncan.

NAMED president of NATO's North Atlantic Council is Canada's external affairs minister, Paul Martin. He succeeds Paul-Henri Spaak, foreign minister of Belgium and will serve for one year.

Isherwood Seeks Tory Nomination

Ex-Grit Ends Weeks of Speculation; Three Others In the Running Tonight

Weeks of rumors were confirmed today when former Liberal Foster Isherwood said he will stand for the Victoria Progressive Conservative nomination tonight.

The lawyer said this morning he was prompted to declare himself a candidate "because so many people asked me to stand.

He added: "That is the only point."

Mr. Isherwood was the unsuccessful Liberal candidate in Victoria constituency in the 1962 federal election. He was defeated for the nomination in 1963 by David Groos.

Following an internal upheaval at that nomination, Mr. Isherwood ran as an independent candidate polling 2,460 votes. He later joined the Progressive Conservative party.

THREE OTHERS

Three other persons also are seeking the nomination at tonight's meeting in the Empress Hotel.

They are realtor Eric Charman, unsuccessful candidate in the 1963 election, Rev. J. A. Roberts, rector of St. Paul's Naval and Garrsion Church, and former navy chaplain Clifford Waite.

Also meeting tonight, in the Club Sirocco, are members of the Victoria Social Credit Association. No candidates have announced themselves.

Victoria New Democrats will choose between two persons at their nominating meeting Thursday night at 1316 Government.

They are Richard Gravil, 25-year-old English teacher at the University of Victoria, and Lloyd Brereton, 64, retired director of examinations at Cambridge University.

Mr. Gravil taught in England and did research on industrial training, retraining and the problems of automation.

RETIRED

Mr. Brereton retired four years ago from Cambridge University and has conducted a study of examinations in different parts of the world. They are to be published in a book Exams—Where Next.

Both were prominent in the founding of the Fabian Forum of B.C., modelled on the British Fabian Society.

BETTER BEDPAN BOON TO BUYERS

OTTAWA (CP)—If some Canadian will build a better bedpan a major hospital will beat a path to his door.

The industry department announced this Tuesday in one of its bulletins advising what is needed by architects and buyers for their centennial projects.

"A major hospital is seeking a radically new system," the bulletin notes under the bedpan heading.

Among other things, the hospital wants an end to any unpleasantness occasioned by slipping a chilly porcelained metal bedpan into a warm bed.

The hospital seeks "a disposable receptacle that includes the following features—warm to touch, stackable, folding or nesting for storage, disposable via regular plumbing fixtures either by patient or staff, simple, convenient and foolproof to handle."

Although all these features might be hard to achieve, the bulletin notes that "an outstanding design obviously has tremendous potential."

British Staff Cut Sought by Red China

PEKING (Reuters) — China has asked Britain to reduce its staff and remove its flag at the British compound in Shanghai, China's largest city, reliable sources said Sunday night.

China has also requested removal of a brass plate on the main door, which describes the compound as the office of the counsellor of the British charge d'affairs, and asked that the counsellor should stop flying the consular flag on his car, the sources said.

The counsellor was also asked to stop granting visas for people wating to visit Hong Kong, and to refer applications to the office of the British charge d'affaires in Peking, which handles visa applications for the rest of China.

In making the requests earlier this month, the Chinese government referred to verbal agreement dating from 1954, under which the British charge d'affaires may station a member of his staff in Shanghai, these sources said.

This arrangement has never been officially regarded as constituting a consulate, and now China is seeking to divest it of all appearances of a diplomatic mission, observers said.

British officials here said the requests now were being discussed with the Chinese government.

The staff at Shanghai has up to now consisted of the counsellor and one attache assisting him.

Judgment Reserved On Treatment Plant

Judgment was reserved by the cabinet Tuesday on an appeal against extension of a sewage treatment plant in Saanich.

Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell said after the closed meeting the cabinet findings will be made only after full study.

He said this could take some time.

The appeal was against the Pollution Control Board's decision earlier this year to allow the Northridge treatment plant to double its discharge to 70,000 gallons daily.

The discharge enters Colquitz Creek which flows into Portage Inlet and thence to the Gorge.

Esquimalt municipality and Lloyd Smith, 137 Kingham Place, made the appeals. A submission was also heard from Saanich, which made the original application for the plant's extension.

Boy, 3, Strangled

CHILLIWACK (CP) — A mother found her three-year-old son hanging in a tree at nearby Vedder Crossing Tuesday and rushed him to hospital, but he was pronounced dead on arrival. Police believe the boy was strangled by his clothing as he played in the tree.

'U.S. PILOTS TO BE TREATED AS CRIMINALS'

GENEVA (AP)—North Viet Nam has informed the International Red Cross committee that all enemy pilots captured on its territory will be treated as war criminals.

The Communist government made its statement in a letter dated Aug. 31. The letter, which the Red Cross disclosed today, answered a Red Cross appeal to the warring powers in Viet Nam to observe the Geneva convention for the protection of prisoners and civilian population.

The North Vietnamese answer charged that air and naval bombing of its territory has been "deliberately" directed against such objectives as hospitals, schools and villages.

Newsmen Oppose Press Sale Curb In New Zealand

WELLINGTON (Reuters) — The New Zealand Journalists' Association declared today its opposition to a bill now before Parliament which would limit overseas control of newspapers.

The association sent a telegram to Prime Minister Keith Holyoake urging that the news media bill be held over for the next session of Parliament.

The bill limits total overseas interests in any newspaper or private broadcasting company to 20 per cent and any overseas individual to 15 per cent.

It does not apply to daily newspapers with circulations less 5,000.

The association will suggest to Parliament that a tribunal be set up to examine any changes in news media ownership which would lead to monopoly control, whether initiated by New Zealand or overseas interests.

Nickel Takes Drop

NEW YORK (UPI) — International Nickel Co., Inc. today announced a reduction in its price for refined nickel in the United States to 77¾ cents from 79 cents per pound.

The reduction, which reflects the suspension of a 1¼-cent import duty on refined nickel, will be in effect from Sept. 27, 1965, to June 30, 1967, at which time the duty is to be re-imposed.

Car Exports Up

LONDON (Reuters) — Britain exported a record £742,700,000 ($2,223,100,000) worth of cars in 1964—six per cent more than in 1963—says the Society of Motor Manufacturers. Some 40 per cent of the exports went to Europe.

'Sex Appeal' Engine GM's Claim to Fame

DETROIT (AP)—Pontiac division of General Motors announced today an enlarged lineup of 33 models in its 1966 car series and unveiled a new engine described as having "sex appeal."

More than 200 reporters heard Pontiac general manager John Delorean predict division record sales of 825,000 cars this calendar year. The old mark of 693,716 was set last year.

"Pontiac continued to solidify its third-place standing in the industry and should finish a strong third this year for the fifth consecutive year," he said.

The new lineup—seven cars more than last year—places heavy emphasis on hardtops, sports coupes and convertibles.

Discussing a new overhead cam engine which Pontiac showed today, Delorean said:

"This new six-cylinder engine is the most outstanding development anyone has offered in six-cylinder engines in quite some time. It's an engine with sex appeal."

In general, the 1966 Pontiacs have been restyled for a lower silhouette and wider appearance, and there is considerably more use of double chrome, particularly on the horizontal twin tail lamps.

FUNERAL services will be held Friday at Montreal for Herbert James Symington, 64, a former president of Trans Canada Air Lines (now Air Canada). He also was a director of the CNR and held several senior posts during Second World War.

Trade Expert Heads Brewers

MONTEBELLO, Que. (CP)—Melville R. (Mel) Jack, 56, of Ottawa—the man behind the man when George Hees was trade minister in John Diefenbaker's cabinet—today was elected president of the Canadian Brewers Association.

His acceptance of the post, which is reported to carry a salary of $50,000 a year, appeared to squelch rumors that Mr. Jack would return to be Mr. Hees' right-hand man if the former trade minister and his party win the Nov. 8 general election and Mr. Hees returns to the cabinet.

STRIKE NOTICE GIVEN BY CRAIGMONT MINERS

VANCOUVER (CP)—Workers at the Craigmont Mines Ltd. copper mine in Merritt have served 48-hour strike notice on the company, a spokesman for the United Steelworkers of America (CLC) said here Tuesday night.

Pen Baskin, a union representative, said 92 per cent of the 394 mine workers had voted in favor of strike action. The government-supervised ballot was held earlier in the day.

Mr. Baskin said the union strike notice expires at 6 p.m. Thursday.

"However, we are holding ourselves ready to attend any meeting."

The miners earlier rejected a conciliation board wage recommendation. The union is seeking an increase of more than $1 an hour on the current wages which range between $1.80 and $2.40 an hour.

Coal Strike Continuing; More Talks Set Thursday

SYDNEY, N.S. (CP)—The strike of Cumberland Railway Co. employees entered its 11th day today amid signs of a possible settlement before the end of the week.

Three-way talks in Ottawa Tuesday failed to settle the dispute, but another conference is scheduled Thursday and there was a slight note of optimism that a solution may be found.

J. E. Clubb, president of Dominion Coal Co., said in a telephone interview from Montreal reasonable progress had been made at the meeting, arranged by Labor Minister MacEachen.

In the government-sponsored talks, Bernard Wilson, industrial relations director of the federal-labor department, met Bruce McDade, Dosco's industrial relations director, and W. P. Kelly, vice-president of the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen CLC.

Mr. Clubb said the general strike, which has closed two big coal mines and stalled the movement of thousands of tons of coal, could only be described as "desperate."

COSTS SPIRALLING

Gaglardi Sounds Warning

VANCOUVER (CP)—Highways Minister Gaglardi Tuesday warned labor and management to consider the future effects of contract settlements on the province.

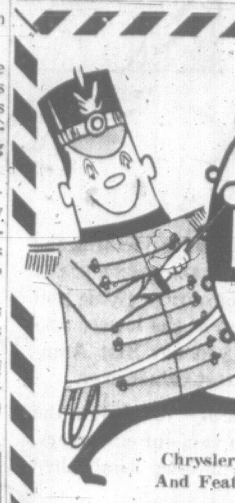

"It's either that or we're going to face the disastrous situation of pricing ourselves out of the world markets because of fantastic, spiralling costs," he said in an interview.

He was expanding on a statement he made Monday to heavy industry contractors that labor-management settlements this year will increase construction costs by $100 million.

He said contractors' figures indicate contract settlements will cost $1.50 an hour per man. Side effects—such as free board for workers at the Peace River dam—added to the increased costs.

The B.C. Hydro and Power Authority had estimated the Peace and Columbia River dams were going to cost an extra $60 million and Dr. Gordon Shrum, hydro co-chairman, had indicated power rates will increase.

Lou Picked Great Time To Do Some Battering

Homer Wins for Dodgers, Giants Blasted By Cards

By Associated Press

Lou Johnson has been battered with baseballs from front and behind. Once in a while though he does some battering of his own.

One of these times of retaliation was Tuesday night when Johnson lined a 12th-inning home run that gave Los Angeles Dodgers their 11th straight victory, a 2-1 decision over Cincinnati Reds, and a one-game lead in the furious National League pennant race.

The Dodgers had been tied with San Francisco, but St. Louis Cardinals trounced the Giants 9-1, sending them one game back with their fifth loss in seven games. Third - place Cincinnati fell five back and virtually out of the race. The three teams each have five games remaining.

The Dodgers grabbed the top spot all by themselves for the first time in three weeks when Johnson connected off Joey Jay with one out in the 12th. The homer was his 12th of the season but still left that total three behind his record for being hit by pitches.

That's happened a league-leading 15 times this year, which is just about normal for the 32-year-old outfielder who spent 12 years with 15 minor league teams and three major league teams before he got a break with the Dodgers this season.

He got the break because of a break in Tommy Davis' ankle early in May. But no sooner had he been called up from Spokane Indians of the Pacific Coast League than Johnson was hit in the head by a pitch from Houston's Bob Bruce. That pitch punctured Johnson's batting helmet and put him in the hospital for three days.

Then, in June, New York's Al Jackson put him out of action for 13 days by hitting him on the thumb.

Usually Lou Can See Them Coming

But Johnson at least had the advantage of seeing those balls before they did the damage. There was the time a few years ago when, as a rookie, he was given the last day of spring training off after hitting .500 for Chicago.

He was sitting with 30 other players watching the Cubs play the Dodgers when Del Rice hit a grounder into the dugout. The ball bounced off the wall and hit Johnson on the back of the head. That one earned him a week's stay in the hospital.

In other National League games, New York Mets edged Pittsburgh Pirates 1-0 in 12 innings, Milwaukee Braves whipped Houston Astros 7-1 and Chicago Cubs nipped Philadelphia Phillies 2-1.

BROKE DEADLOCK

Los Angeles broke a scoreless deadlock in the seventh when Jeff Torborg singled, and pinch runner Nate Oliver stole second and came home as Maury Wills singled. But the Reds tied it in the eighth on a walk to Tommy Harper, a sacrifice and Vada Pinson's double.

St. Louis' Larry Jaster scattered 10 hits in only his second major league start, shutting out the Giants until Willie Mays hit his 51st homer in the eighth. Jaster also singled across two runs while Bill White lashed four hits, driving in three runs.

TWO-OUT SINGLE

Pittsburgh's Tommy Sisk and Roy Face battled New York's Dennis Ribant and Darrell Sutherland through 11½ scoreless innings, but the Mets finally broke through for a run in the last of the 12th on Ron Hunt's two - out, bases - loaded single.

Tony Cloninger stopped Houston on six hits as he won his 24th game against 10 defeats. He also triggered a three-run Milwaukee third inning with a single and drove in a run with a sacrifice fly in a four-run sixth inning.

In the American League, Minnesota lost to Baltimore 4-2, Cleveland beat New York 6-3, Detroit and Chicago exchanged 4-3 decisions, Kansas City defeated Washington 8-6 after a 6-1 loss and California nipped Boston 4-3.

SPORTS PARADE

Feller Better As a Pitcher Than Diplomat

By MILTON RICHMAN

NEW YORK (UPI)—Bob Feller, who may have been the greatest pitcher in the world but certainly never the greatest fielder, booted another one a while back.

He did it from a standup position, and even though it's a bit difficult to put your foot in your mouth that way, Feller succeeded magnificently.

He was in Portland, Ore., when he was asked what he thought of Sandy Koufax' chances of breaking his all-time major league record of 348 strikeouts, which he set with Cleveland in 1946.

Feller said he thought Koufax would break the mark, but then added:

"In 1946 there were 5,200 strikeouts in the American League and last year there were close to 9,500. You can't compare me with Koufax."

The comment here to that remark is: Meeow!

Feller sounded as if he was trying to be a little coy but his meaning was clear enough. Any way you look at it, he was saying the current crop of pitchers couldn't carry the gloves of those 20 years ago, especially his.

It Isn't Feller's Day Any Longer

Graciousness, apparently, is not one of Feller's more redeeming qualities. This was nothing whatsoever to do with the ability he showed as a pitcher.

The 46-year-old former fireballer is a member of baseball's Hall of Fame and belongs in it beyond any question. I remember voting for him without even a second thought. He was that good in his day. Maybe not the greatest pitcher I ever saw, but close enough to make it a contest.

He ought to bear in mind, though, that this isn't his day any longer.

He ought to remember also that when he broke Rube Waddell's strikeout record in 1946, a record, by the way, which was long in dispute in some quarters, that he didn't particularly enjoy hearing how much tougher it was in Waddell's day.

Feller is right in one regard. You can't compare him with Koufax. But he should remember that for a long time people compared him with Hal Newhouser and there's hardly anyone around now who doesn't agree Koufax is a far better pitcher than Newhouser ever was.

Figures Support Case for Koufax

Feller made a big mistake citing statistics. What do they prove? If anything, they strengthen the case for the Los Angeles southpaw.

He pointed to the increased number of strikeouts between 1946 and 1964. What he didn't point out, however, was that there were eight clubs in each league compared to 10 now and that they play 162 games today instead of 154.

And when Koufax snapped Feller's record last Saturday, he made sure they wouldn't need to stick an asterisk beside his new mark. Sandy did it in the Dodgers' 154th game of the season, striking out 12 St. Louis batters and boosting the record to 356.

As long as Feller brought up the 1946 season, why didn't he also point out the fact that he still was facing a substantial number of wartime leftovers?

Hitters like Jack Wallaesa, Russ Derry, Frank Mancuso, Gil Torres, Sherry Robertson and Jerry Witte, to name a few. Feller should have no trouble recalling them. He struck them out quite a bit that year.

Feller won 26 games and lost 15 in 1946. His won-lost percentage of .634 was only sixth best in the American League. Koufax' .750 percentage, based on 24 wins and eight losses, is the best in the National League at the moment.

How about their earned-run averages, you say? Okay, how about them?

Feller's average during his record-breaking year was 2.18. Koufax owns a 2.12 mark.

Size of Home Plate Is Still Same

Getting away from figures, Feller touched on another area that day in Portland when he said one of the things the increased total of strikeouts could be attributed to is a larger strike zone.

If he bothers to look up the 1946 rule book and the one in use for 1965, he'll discover they haven't changed the dimensions of home plate even one fraction of an inch.

In case Feller doesn't know it, either, records are made to be broken. He ought to be aware of that, too, because he has broken a number in his time.

The standard procedure in such cases is for the former record-holder to congratulate the new one, not knock him.

Feller won't find that in any rule book, but he'll find it isn't a bad rule to follow anyway.

Fans Can Travel With United Club

Several fans will be able to accompany Victoria United when the Pacific Coast Soccer League club journeys to Vancouver Sunday.

United is scheduled to tackle New Westminster Royals in the semifinal round of the Anderson Cup competition. The club will leave Royal Athletic Park at 9 a.m. and there will be room in the bus for additional passengers.

Persons interested in making the trip are asked to call team manager Fred Magee at EV 3-3303.

ONLY ROOM FOR TWO

When big rookies Gary Holland (right) and Mike Berridge get in front of net, there isn't room for anybody else. That left veteran Al Millar on outside at this point of practice session of Victoria Maple Leafs Tuesday at Memorial Arena. Things are expected to be different before Western Hockey League season opens. Millar is slated to be regular Victoria goalie with either Berridge or Holland staying with club as reserve netminder. NORRIS THREATENS . . . . . . $1,000-A-DAY FINE

Hull Like 'Spoiled Boy'

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Chicago Black Hawks owner Jim Norris said Tuesday Bobby Hull was "taking a spoiled boy's attitude toward training rules."

Norris threatened to fine Hull $1,000 a day if he doesn't return to the National Hockey League club's training camp within a couple of days, the Miami News said. Hull, who has asked $100,000 for the coming season, left camp when his sons, Blake, 5, and Bobby, 4, were barred from practices.

The News quoted Norris as saying at his Coral Gables home: "It's hazardous having little children running all over the place unsupervised during practices. We certainly couldn't make an exception in Hull's case. It looked as if he were trying to call the bluff on our rule."

Norris said also "the economy of our league can't afford that kind of salary. We don't intend to pay him any $100,000."

Milt Claims Isometrics Keep His Boys Skating

By The Canadian Press

Reports from the National Hockey League training camps today sound like the agenda for a Canadian Medical Association convention.

Items:

—Goaltender Roger Crozier of Detroit Red Wings is on a special diet that cuts out ice cream and fatty foods.

—Ron Ellis of Toronto Maple Leafs, who had cartilage fragments removed from a knee in July, reported the joint felt fine after his first scrimmage.

—Goalie Terry Sawchuk of Leafs was sent home to recover from two cracked ribs.

—Ed Lanyon, 26-year-old defenceman with Cleveland Barons of the American Hockey League last season, became the first serious casualty of Montreal Canadiens' camp with a cracked bone in his right forearm.

Amazingly enough, Boston Bruins—last-place finishers in the NHL for six seasons—seemed the healthiest of the lot.

STRESSES EXERCISE

After the Bruins went through their second day of workouts without injury, coach Milt Schmidt credited their good health to isometric exercises. He's convinced that the muscle strengthening exercises are responsible for the lack of groin injuries, of which the Bruins had seven at this stage a year ago.

Only centre Bobby Leiter was missing in body contact drills. He's recovering from an operation on an arm fractured last season.

The Leafs' Ellis reported on his doubtful knee after his first scrimmage at Peterborough:

"I was really happy with it. The stops and starts didn't bother me at all."

He scored a goal as his team, the Blues, lost 4-3 to the Whites.

TWO MONTHS FOR LARRY

Centre Larry Keenan, a 35-goal scorer for Leafs' Victoria farm club in the Western League last season, was reported out for about two months after having torn cartilage removed from his knee.

The Canadiens had 86 players divided into six teams at their Montreal workouts and coach Toe Blake seemed satisfied with their conditioning and hustle.

Signings reported Tuesday included: Right winger Yvan Cournyer with Canadiens; defenceman Leo Boivin with Bruins, and centre Jean Ratelle with New York Rangers, who are training at Kingston.

Turf Race Slated For George Royal

TORONTO (CP) — The four-year-old colt George Royal makes his second start at Woodbine Thursday.

Owned by Ernie Hammond, Bob Hall of Vancouver, the colt will run in the featured sixth race, a 1 1/16-mile allowance event for three-year-olds and over on a turf course.

The horse who won the $125,000 San Juan Capistrano in March, made his eastern debut at Woodbine Sept. 24, placing second to Garden King in a six-furlong allowance test.

Sunday Meeting For Mack League

Annual general meeting of the Connie Mack Baseball League will be held Sunday in the Jaycee Little League Park clubhouse, starting at 8 p.m.

Business will include election of officers and discussion of plans for the 1966 season.

HOOP LOOP MAY FOLD

Chiefs Making Plans To Play U.S. Teams

Victoria's Haida Chiefs and Alberni Athletics will look to the U.S. for competition if the Inter-City Senior "A" Men's Basketball League folds.

That was the suggestion submitted by a member of the Victoria team after it was learned that the B.C. league appears to be in danger of folding.

Adding to the considerably-confused picture is the fact that even the executives aren't too sure about what's what.

League commissioner Denny Wotherspoon of Vancouver apparently has resigned, a move apparently prompted by the fact that only Alberni and Victoria bothered to send delegates to a meeting in Victoria last week.

Vancouver entries IGA and CYO, both ticketed to play in a four-team circuit, apparently have backed out.

Harlem Merchants, out of the picture last year, and Vancouver Bakers, who said they wouldn't return, are now seeking admittance.

Victoria manager Ken King and Alberni's Elmer Speidel are "definitely interested" in continuing and Tuesday night arranged a meeting to discuss the situation.

King feels convinced "we can get this league going again. All we need are two teams from Vancouver. John Braithwaite has one (Harlems) and I'm sure somebody can come up with another.

"Braithwaite is to do some checking in Vancouver, and he'll call me back later in the week."

New Wingers Sparkle At Maple Leaf Camp

Two newcomers sparkled at Memorial Arena Tuesday as coach Frank Mario chased Victoria Maple Leafs through their first scrimmages of their training camp.

Michel Labadie, who scored 18 games for Springfield in the American Hockey League last season, and Bob Barlow, who notched 30 for Seattle Totems in the Western League, were working well with centre Milan Marcetta, a 34-goal man with the Leafs last winter.

As might be expected after only two days of skating, Mario plans to try several different forward combinations before selecting lines for Victoria's first exhibition game, Saturday at Nanaimo against Vancouver Canucks.

Mario ran into one problem when winger Gordie Redahl was forced to take it easy because of aggravation to a bone spur on one foot. Redahl will continue skating this week but his usual place on a line with winger Lou Jankowski and centre John Sleaver was filled Tuesday by veteran Steve Witiuk and the trio was handling the puck smoothly.

One of the rookies catching eyes Tuesday was goalie Gary Holland, who is battling Mike Berridge for the No. 2 goaltending spot behind Al Millar.

Clarke May Join In Mexico Tests

MELBOURNE, Australia (AP) —Ron Clarke, holder of many of the world records in distance running, may represent Australia in Mexico City Oct. 11-17 in tests to determine the effects of high altitudes on athletes during the 1968 Olympic Games.

Clarke will go directly to Mexico City from Japan, where he is competing in a marathon earlier in the month, if it is decided that he will represent Australia.

YOUNGEST PRO ATHLETE . . . . . . BIG MAN ON WATER SKIS

He Can Do Anything on Water

By TOM TIEDE
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

LAKE OF THE OZARKS, Mo. (NEA)—At an age where interests normally run to Little Leagues and little girls, 13-year-old Ricky McCormick simply isn't interested in either.

"I get a sore arm playing baseball," he says. "And as for dames, well, they just make me sore period."

What he is interested in, however, is water skiing and this pursuit of the aquatic acrobatics has made him one of the youngest professional athletes in the country. Certainly, he's the smallest—at 4-feet-7, 82 pounds, his only worry on the water is that a fish might get him.

Says he: "I must look just like bait on the end of that ski rope."

The joke here is that when his mother needs him to run an errand, the kid goes down to the lake and hides behind a ripple.

His competitive record's not so funny, however. At least not to the opposition. Since age nine (1962), he's been washing out aquanuts with twice his size and half his skill. In this year's national water ski tournament, he won the tricks category, was second in jumping, third in the slalom and first overall in the junior boys' division.

"He can do anything on water," says a rival. "Even walk."

So terrific to tow is he, in fact, that a Midwest water ski troupe hired the lad this summer as their top banana . . . skier. He's also dickering with commercial houses for endorsements . . . provided he's old enough to sign his name, of course. Not bad for a sprout who otherwise would have to earn gum money by turning in used soda bottles.

This pro status, oddly enough, doesn't finish him as an amateur. Water ski rules make no distinction. A Peso without say so is legitimate. A guy can turn either a buck or a 360-degree trick in competition.

And while Rick does both, he does the latter better. So much so, he says, that the naked eye can't see everything he does.

"In my routine I make two short passes in front of the stands. I do 540-degree turns, step-overs, slide skiing, etc. If the average person watches real close, he can tell I've done maybe five or six tricks. Actually, I've done 30 or more."

But in fairness to the spectators, perhaps the boy's trick total is eroded because their naked eyes are really watching the half-naked cuties who, with Rick, also, uh, display their talents in the ski show. Wearing suits that fit like banana peels on grapefruit, the gals often join the audience to watch their boy buoy strut his stuff.

These dames, by the way, aren't the kind who make Ricky sore.

"They're nice," he says. "I mean, they're different from girls my age."

Obviously.

Maybe the kid isn't all wet after all.

'HE'S CHANGED'

Kempf Ready To Drop Scowl

VANCOUVER (CP)—A wordless scowl has been Peter Kempf's trademark during a 2½-year wait for starting flanker's job with British Columbia Lions.

It looks today as if he's in for a change in disposition.

Injuries on the Western Football Conference club gave him a starting shot 11 days ago against Montreal Alouettes.

He caught all six passes thrown at him, gained 77 yards and proved to be the best offensive player the Lions had in an 11-6 loss.

TIED FOR LEAD

His second start was Monday night in Regina, where he grabbed eight of nine passes for 149 yards and scored 13 points as the Lions beat the Roughriders 26-14. He is tied with Jack Abendschan of Saskatchewan for the WFC scoring leadership with 52 points.

"If he continues to play like this he'll stay there," B.C. coach Dave Skrien said Tuesday.

"All of a sudden I'm there," Kempf said in an interview. "It's pretty wonderful."

The WFC knows the tough, 26-year-old player as a place kicker who won the Rookie of the Year award in 1963.

'MOODY LONER'

He has been held to that single assignment ever since, chafing on the bench and earning the title "Moody Loner."

Kempf is often wordless when he is with the team, and admits he was "disappointed and discouraged" when the chance at first string didn't come along.

"Lack of playing is the thing that has bothered him," replies Skrien. "But he's changed a lot since last year. He has started to grow up and understand things and become a better person. One of the reasons he is playing better is that he is working in with the squad."

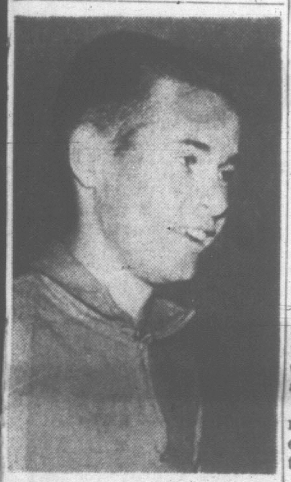

At six-foot two and 200 pounds Kempf is taller and heavier than Sonny Homer, who has at least temporarily left the flanker spot for defensive halfback.

Kempf also admits that he is slower. And he says he has been nervous.

"But I didn't let it get out of hand."

PETER KEMPF
. . . 'all of a sudden'

FUN AND FUNDS AWAIT BEST COHO CATCHERS

Fishing is fun, amateur anglers contend. On the weekend of Oct. 9-10-11 it can be profitable too.

To the angler weighing in the largest coho on each of those dates the Cowichan Bay Salmon Club will pay $100. Additional daily prizes will be rewarded to lucky fishermen in the club's annual Coho Derby.

A trophy will be presented to the contestant weighing in the largest fish during the three days.

Each contestant may weigh in any number of fish on each $1 ticket on any day with the largest fish only qualifying for a prize.

Fishing hours are from dawn to 4:30 p.m. Artificial lures only are allowed and fish must be on the Government Wharf no later than 4:30 p.m. each day.

'One Personality' Forcing Softball Group's Breakup

KELOWNA—A suggestion that interior softball leagues break away from the B.C. Amateur Softball Association has been advanced by an officer of the B.C.A.S.A.

Art Stewart of Kamloops, B.C.A.S.A. district 6 supervisor, said that unless the Interior can get better co-operation from "the Vancouver head office" of the association, it might be wise to pull out and form another organization.

"It seems there is dissension within the ranks from Prince George through to Trail.

POINTS FINGER

"We may not have the Kamloops area in the association next season," he said. "It all boils down to one personality, and unless we can get him out, the problem will remain. He was out once before, but is back again."

Stewart was obviously referring to a member of the BCASA executive but he did not name the person.

He said the association holds a tight rein on tournament ball which must be broken.

"They are trying to deprive us, especially in the Interior, of tournament ball. They can have tournaments in Vancouver without any problems, but we always have difficulty getting sanction for a tournament in the Interior."

'Pitfall' Selected By Lema

MADRID, Spain (AP)—Tony Lema, winner of the recent World Series of Golf, took a good look at the Canada Cup course Tuesday and warned players from all over the world the hole to master was the long sixth.

The sixth is a 448-yard par 4 with a sharp dogleg that hides both the green and a brook that bisects the fairway.

"The sixth hole is the tough one," said Lema. "You've got to have a good drive, correctly placed to the right, or you could find yourself hitting the second shot blind to the green."

Lema was among players from 35 countries who marched over the 5,096-yard Madrid layout in readiness for the start of the Canada Cup Thursday.

WITH NICKLAUS

Lema's partner on the United States team is Jack Nicklaus, the world's top money winner in any one year.

"This course is made for Nicklaus," said Argentina's Roberto de Vincenzo after shooting a three-under-par 69 in practice.

"The fairways are very, very soft," de Vincenzo said. "The ball plugs into the fairway. Often it kicks back. . . . A big hitter, like Jack, is going to have a big advantage.

Rossland Skier Receives Award

MONTREAL (CP) — The Canadian Amateur Ski Association has announced that Nancy Greene of Rossland, B.C., is the winner this year of the John Semmelink Award.

The award is given annually to the skier who, in international competition, best represents Canada. Previous winners are Anne Heggtveit in 1962, Verne Anderson in 1963, and Linda Crutchfield Bocock last year.

Mustangs Try Ross Swanton In Pivot Spot

The news isn't as bad as first feared for JBAA Mustangs of the Vancouver Island Juvenile Football League.

An injury to quarterback Dave Hutchings has been diagnosed as a "badly-bruised rib cage." Hutchings, injured in Sunday's league clash with Cowichan Timbermen, should be able to rejoin Mustangs before the playoffs, said coach Bob Coutts.

Coutts said end Ross Swanton will be converted to quarterback for Mustangs' next games, including Sunday's crucial meeting with the Redmen at Nanaimo.

Two other league games Sunday will be played in Victoria. Hornets will entertain Cowichan at Macdonald Park while Farmer Construction will play Campbell River at Carnarvon Park.

Kerbow Leads Esks To Stunning Upset

HAMILTON (CP)—Don Getty couldn't start at quarterback for Edmonton Eskimos Tuesday night, so rookie Randy Kerbow engineered them to a 9-3 upset over Hamilton Tiger-Cats in a Canadian Football League game.

Kerbow was destined for the bench after disgracing himself in Edmonton's 40-1 drubbing by Ottawa Rough Riders Saturday. Getty, lured out of two years' retirement by the Esks last week, was to handle the signal-calling.

But Getty showed up with a sore arm he got by throwing nine passes in the last five minutes of Saturday's setback and Kerbow got a reprieve.

He made the most of it, setting up Edmonton's first point with a long pass and plunging two yards for the game's only touchdown.

NEW FORMATION

Tommy Joe Coffey kicked the single and Kerbow added the touchdown, which Coffey converted, all in the first quarter.

The points came off Edmonton's new I-formation, in which two backs line up directly behind the quarterback. Two other Western Football Conference teams, British Columbia Lions and Winnipeg Blue Bombers, use the formation but the Eskimos tried it out for the first time Tuesday night after working on it in two practices.

Edmonton coach Neill Armstrong, disgusted with his club after Saturday's sorry effort, cancelled a scheduled sightseeing trip to Niagara Falls Sunday and called a workout. That's when the team first attempted the new formation.

The Eskimos, who trail in the five - team WFC, perfected it enough to baffle Hamilton's vaunted defence through the first quarter. By the time the Ticats adjusted to the surprise formation, the damage was done.

Edmonton centre Bill Mitchell added another single on a field goal attempt in the third quarter after Don Sutherin got Hamilton's three points on a field goal in the second quarter.

The loss left the Ticats with 12 points in the Eastern Conference standings, the same as Ottawa, but Hamilton has lost three games to Ottawa's two.

The victory was Edmonton's fourth in 11 games and broke a two-game losing streak.

The key to Edmonton's victory was a stout defence led by linemen Jim Battle and Al Ecuyer and halfback John Skolpan, a recent recruit from New York Jets of the American Football League. Skolpan hit hard and knocked down several passes despite playing with a cast on his right wrist which protected a broken bone.

TURNED ON SPEED

Kerbow, a substitute for injured quarterback Bill Redell in Saturday's game, went all the way against Hamilton. The I-formation suited him well as he utilized the additional room to roll out and turn on his speed. He also made excellent use of his backs for running plays.

Hamilton's offence, sporadic at best this season, fared poorly under the guidance of quarterback Joe Zuger. Zuger repeatedly threw passes astray when he had the team in scoring position and when he wasn't errant with his tosses, his receivers missed.

Kerbow connected on six of 13 passes for 98 yards and guided the Esks to 146 more yards on the ground for a total of 17 first downs. Hamilton got 15 first downs on 146 yards rushing and 79 passing as Zuger clicked on six of 18 tosses.

Kerbow also handled Edmonton's punting and outkicked Zuger, averaging 44 yards to 43.

Coffey and halfback Butch Pressley led the winners, Pressley gaining 72 yards in 19 carries and Coffey catching four passes for 99 yards.

Dave Fleming, a recruit from Pittsburgh Steelers of the National Football League, and Stan Crisson were the pick of the Tiger-Cats. Fleming rushed 11 times for 59 yards and Crisson snared three passes for 43 yards.

Neither offence was able to mount a consistent drive, but Edmonton moved the ball when it had to. Hamilton, on the other hand, bogged down five times in scoring position, the Eskimos stopping the Ticats on third down situations.

You Can't Credit Yanks For Sellout at Stadium

NEW YORK (UPI)—For a team that's headed for its worst finish in 40 years, the badly beaten Yankees are being swamped by the greatest ticket demand in all history.

One thing you have to say for them, they're used to it.

Ordinarily, the Yankees are deluged with requests for tickets this time every year. World series tickets, though.

This time it's different. Everyone knows the sixth-place Yankees won't be within 1,018 miles (the airline distance between New York and Minneapolis-St. Paul) of the world series this year.

That isn't keeping people from flooding the Yankees' switchboard and asking for tickets, however. They wish to know how to get them to see Pope Paul VI celebrate a mass at Yankee Stadium next Monday.

The Yankees tell the callers they have absolutely nothing to do with the occasion and refer them all to the chancery of the Archdiocese of New York.

"We've received ticket requests from all over the world, including Australia, England, Alaska and South Africa," revealed Bob Fishel, the Yankees' vice-president and public relations director.

"We've gotten calls from every conceivable quarter. Big businesses, small businesses, the entertainment world and the sports world," Fishel added. "We told them all the same thing: We don't handle it.

"The Chicago White Sox called us the other day. 'We always get world series tickets from you, so how about helping us see the Pope?' They said. We told them we couldn't possibly help them."

The Yankees' only part in the Pope's appearance is that they have made Yankee Stadium available to the Archdiocese of New York free of charge.

90,000 TICKETS

A total of 90,000 tickets for the Pope's appearance have been printed and 22,000 were distributed to local parishes. The remainder will go to parishes around this country and those in other nations.

The Yankees have turned over their entire facilities for the occasion and that includes the stadium club, where the fans normally eat and drink, the clubhouses, the dugouts and the bullpens.

According to information the ball club received, the entire actual ceremony will take about an hour and the Pope will be at the stadium only 15 minutes longer than that.

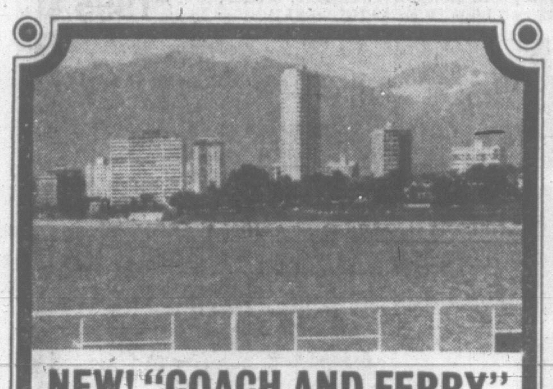

The largest crowd ever for a baseball game at Yankee stadium was 81,841 in 1938 to see the Yanks play a doubleheader with the Red Sox. That figure certainly will be surpassed on Monday.

During its 42-year history, the stadium has been the site of various non-baseball events, including 29 boxing championships, three football championships, soccer games, a Billy Graham crusade and even a circus.

LEADS NFL RUSHERS

Brown Takes Over Familiar Position

NEW YORK (AP) — Jim Brown of Cleveland Browns has resumed his familiar spot leading National Football League rushers. His two leading challengers today are rookies Ken Willard of San Francisco '49ers and Tucker Frederickson of New York Giants.

Brown gained 110 yards Sunday as Cleveland lost 49-13 to St. Louis Cardinals. Willard gained 88 yards on 19 carries in San Francisco's 27-17 victory over Pittsburgh Steelers and Frederickson, the Giants' No. 1 draft choice, gained 76 in 17 attempts.

Brown's total is 175 yards, Willard's 125 and Frederickson's 124.

John Brodie of the '49ers hit with 16 of 20 for 236 yards and one touchdown, maintaining his passing lead. Charley Johnson of St. Louis is out front in total yardage with 693 and nine touchdowns.

Herb Adderley of Green Bay intercepted two passes against Baltimore Colts in a 20-17 Green Bay victory. His four interceptions, tops in the league, have accounted for 155 yards.

Sonny Randle, who caught three touchdown passes for the Cards last week in their rout of the Browns, leads the league in scoring with 24 points.

SHIFT TO BOMBERS

WINNIPEG (CP)—Blue Bombers of the Western Football Conference have picked up guard Morley Rolhiser on waivers from Edmonton Eskimos.

SATCH RESENTED . . . . . BEING OVERLOOKED

No Business Being Out

BALTIMORE, Md. (AP)—Satchel Paige does not feel fortunate at pitching again in major league baseball.

"It was no big deal for me to come back up here, because I had no business being out," Paige, who has been pitching 40 years, said in an interview.

"You can put it this way. You can say I resent being overlooked by organized baseball all these years while I threw away most of my best years pitching for a barnstorming club."

Kansas City Athletics hired Paige 10 days ago for his third stint in the American League.

In his first appearance Saturday he held Boston Red Sox scoreless for three innings and allowed one hit.

"Everybody thinks it's remarkable how I keep getting batters out in my 40th year of pitching — that's right, 40 years of straight baseball," Paige said.

NOBODY ASKS

"But nobody asks me why I stayed out of the major leagues for 15 years.

"I know the answer, but I won't tell that neither—like I won't tell my age."

Paige pitched two seasons with Cleveland Indians and three with St. Louis until the Browns franchise was transferred to Baltimore in 1954.

Paige said he is glad Kansas City hired him only because "now folks can see that I must have had a lot more going for me and deserved to be in the big leagues when I was in my prime."

Flag First Says Mays, Then . . .

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Willie Mays of San Francisco Giants said Monday he hadn't given any thought to asking for $150,000 in 1966 but he added "I'd sure like to get it."

Mays, the highest salaried baseball player with an annual pay of $105,000, said he never had any trouble talking contract with Horace Stoneham, San Francisco owner.

"Right now I've got a pennant to think about," said Mays. "Salary talk will come later. I never had any trouble with Mr. Stoneham and I don't expect any this time."

There have been reports Mays will ask for $150,000 next year.

'FIGHT ALCOHOLISM,' U.S. COMMISSION TOLD

WASHINGTON (Reuters)—One out of every 13 U.S. men over the age of 20 is an alcoholic, the Interstate Commerce Commission of the House of Representatives was told Tuesday.

Representative G. Elliot-Hagan (Dem., Ga.) also said that alcoholism is the fourth most important health problem in the United States and should be fought by the federal government just as it fights cancer, heart disease and mental disorder.

HOLLYBURN STUDIOS

'Tush' to Make Film in B.C.

LONDON (CP) — Rita Tushingham, the North-Country actress with the wide grin who found fame in A Taste of Honey and recently starred in the prize-winning British movie The Knack sailed for Canada Tuesday.

She will star in the first feature film to be produced in Canada with joint Anglo-Canadian financial backing.

Entitled The Trap, the $1,500,000 movie will be produced in Vancouver for the J. Arthur Rank organization by George Brown, who helped make the famous wartime film 49th Parallel in Canada.

It will be an unusual role for the 23-year-old Tush, as she is affectionately dubbed in Britain. She hasn't a word of dialogue to say. She plays an orphaned mute in the British Columbia of 1849, with British co-star Oliver Reed, 27, playing a French-Canadian trapper.

The rest of the cast will be Canadian.

Reed is scheduled to fly to Montreal Oct. 2 and spend some days "roaming around the city and docks" to add authenticity to his French-Canadian accent before linking up with Miss Tushingham, who arrives Oct. 5 with her husband, a television cameraman, and their 14-month-old daughter.

Shooting of the film, which starts Oct. 11 at Vancouver's rarely-used Hollyburn Studios, will take 10 weeks and cover miles of remote territory in the province. There are sequences involving grizzly bears, wolves and cougars in the original screenplay, written by a former Canadian trapper named David Osborne.

The Canadian half of the financial backing for The Trap is being provided by a "group of Vancouver investors," said a spokesman for the Rank organization.

Producer Brown says: "We hope this film will stimulate many more big-budget feature films with this kind of partnership in Canada."

STUDENTS TO FAST 60 HOURS

OTTAWA (CP) — Twenty-one university students will take part in a 60-hour fast on Parliament Hill during the Thanksgiving Day weekend.

The students, from the three universities here, will go without food from 9 a.m. Oct. 9 to 9 p.m. Oct. 11 to launch the young world mobilization appeal as part of the freedom from hunger campaign of the United Nations.

A second campaign takes place the week of Oct. 16-24 when students throughout the world will be asked to devote 21 hours of their time to international development activities and projects.

A national youth conference will be held at Quebec City Oct. 15-17 in connection with both programs.

Dinah Denies Multiple Adultery

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Actress-singer Dinah Shore is accused by her former husband of committing adultery with five men, court records disclosed Tuesday.

Miss Shore declared the charges are "outrageous" and "utterly," completely false."

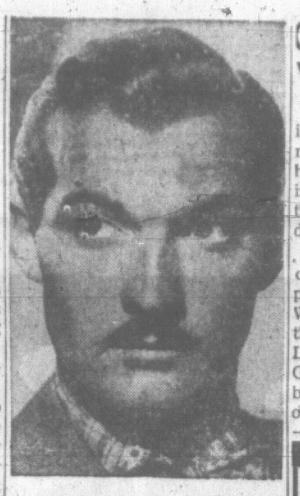

The charges were contained in a divorce suit brought last Friday in Superior Court by contractor Maurice Smith, from whom Miss Shore received an interlocutory divorce decree Aug. 21, 1964.

Under California law, Miss Shore's divorce would become final a year later. But neither she nor Smith had filed for the final papers before he offered a counter-suit for divorce, listing five John Does.

Smith, 44, charged Miss Shore, 47, with extreme cruelty. He alleged in his suit they were reconciled last May, nullifying the interlocutory decree obtained by Miss Shore.

Miss Shores lawyers petitioned the court Monday for a final decree in her divorce suit and asked that the petition be considered before Smith's.

Miss Shore was divorced from actor George Montgomery May 9, 1962, after 17 years of marriage. She married Smith May 26, 1963. They separated a year later.

ACTOR Zachary Scott was listed in critical condition at his home in Austin, Tex., today. The 51-year-old movie veteran reportedly was losing ground slowly in his fight to recover from brain surgery. He was flown to Texas from New York in July.

New Signals Proposed At Busy Spots

Perennial pleas for pedestrian and traffic lights at two busy city intersections may bear fruit at a meeting of Victoria council Thursday.

Council will be asked to approve spending $1,200 for a pedestrian-actuated light on Hillside at Belmont — where many Oaklands School children cross—and $400 for an amber-red flasher at St. Charles and Richardson.

The latter is controlled by a stop sign and residents point out that long delays result when cross traffic is involved.

Finance committee Monday recommended the expenditure out of the $40,000 remaining in the 1965 contingency vote.

"It's OK as long as we don't have a heavy snowfall," comptroller-treasurer James Bramley said.

CBC Documentary Wins Competition

OTTAWA (CP)—A CBC entry in an Italian competition for radio and television programs has won the 1965 Italia Prize in the radio documentary class, the corporation announced Monday.

Produced and written in Vancouver by Len Chapple, the program is called Rendez-vous With Death. It is the story of the sinking of the British liner Lusitania May 7, 1915, by a German submarine and is told by the last living member of the U-boat's crew.

VICTORIA B.C., WEDNESDAY, SEPTEMBER 29, 1965 —PAGE 23

Arthur Mayse

If you follow the market quotations which this newspaper serves hot off the exchanges, you may have puzzled over the fact that Consolidated Moonshine, which was racking up points a few weeks ago, is now plummeting as if someone had forgotten to yank the rip-cord.

I have been given reasons for this descent, all of which would carry conviction were the authentic answer not burning large, black - edged holes in my soul.

That stock dived because two presumably adult, considerably experienced people kidded themselves into believing they could lick the whammy that moves in to jinx them when they trifle with the market.

We had burned our fingers often enough to know better. After our last round of buying at the top and selling at the bottom, we vowed no siren song would ever again enchant us.

Let others drop their money down some hole at the end of a jeep trail. Next time we found ourselves with dollars to gamble, we'd wing them from a starting gate on the nose of a worthy thoroughbred.

★ ★ ★

This wasn't a hasty decision. Implementing it, in fact, were ventures that range all the way back to the flyer in an unlisted wildcat which we'll title Muskaluska.

This jewel in Bay Street's not-untarnished crown was bound to make us rich.

"Hang on till Christmas," we were told, "and you'll make the price of a Packard. Ride through till Easter, and you can order up a Rolls-Royce!"

Our oracle stopped there for lack of superlatives. A couple of weeks after we'd plunged, Muskaluska stopped too, with shattering finality. Tucked away somewhere, we still have a certificate attesting the fact that we own a 500-share portion of its barren quartz.

There were others. More non-metalliferous mines. Oil probings that never fetched the drillers more than mud in the face.

We could, of course, have listened to our broker when he suggested that New Bonanza might prove a doubtful prospect. But, heck, it was so much more fun to tag along with the Old Prospector.

This character appears in many likenesses. He may come in the guise of a friend whose wife got word of the big strike from her hairdresser, who is second cousin to the mine manager.

He may be a successful seeming type met casually on ship or plane.

Whatever his camouflage, he's the guy who knows where the high grade is, and who is going to bring it out, and what it will be selling for a year from next Tuesday.

Once when fortune had favored us with a stake somewhat larger than our necessities required, we decided to spurn Consolidated Moonshine and play it safe with a blue-chip investment.

That one was safe, alright. A couple of years later, our dough, with a miniscule increase, was all over blue mould. So we took it out of bondage and put it to brisker uses, which as I recall, included a disastrous flyer in penny stocks.

★ ★ ★

But now we're through with all that! The spectacle of Consolidated Moonshine tobogganing down the chute has finally and completely cured us.

One of these bland and hazy Indian summer afternoons, we will pouch what we can from the wreckage, and slip away to Sandown.

There, heedless of the tips that drift to and fro on the breeze, we will study every factor that bears on the outcome of each horse race.

Having made our choices, we will not depart from them, even though some steed that looks as if he could outrun the best should poke his nose over the paddock rail and whisper, "It's me all the way in the fifth!"

Then we'll watch them run, and holler them home, and win or lose, we'll get our money's worth.

As for the Old Prospector, next time he turns up on our doorstep croaking for water, we'll turn a hose on him.

But not, of course, until he's revealed the precise location of the Mother Lode.

WOODEN NICKELS—NO. Wooden cheques—Yes. It's good at any (bank) branch according to Nan Elliott. It better be, because Nan chipped this one in to the United Appeal today on behalf of Uvic students who took part in a log-saw Saturday. This sizeable chunk is worth $204.19. "We'll soon chop it up," quipped deputy appeal chairman J. R. Noble who received the cheque from Nan, Students' Council secretary. More than 400 students took part in the annual event of cutting and selling beach wood at Clover Point. (Times Photo.)

RCMP Probe Sniping At Oil Tank Truck

Five Bullets Hit Vehicle Near Duncan

RCMP Tuesday began an investigation into the sniping attack on a British-American Oil Co. tank truck on the Trans-Canada Highway five miles south of Duncan Monday night.

Five bullets from a high-powered rifle were pumped into the back of the empty tanker as it was returning from a delivery run to Lake Cowichan shortly before 11 p.m.

The shots were believed to have come from a following car which turned off on a side road after the shots were fired.

The slugs ripped through the rear of the truck and three inner compartments.

The driver and a passenger, both salesmen for B-A, were not injured.

B.C. company manager J. T. Lockhart said Tuesday: "We can only think the shots were fired because of the strike."

B-A employees are striking for an added 55 cents an hour over a two-year contract on their basic wage of $2.75 an hour.

Anti-automation job security is also an important part of the dispute.

The ambushed truck was the first scheduled out on a night-run since the strike began.

"Some kind of emergency came up and we decided to provide the service with this run," said a B-A official. "Normally we have only been working during the day.

SECURITY PRECAUTIONS

"Some security precautions may have to be taken to protect our personnel. After all, they are only doing a job."

Officials said there could have been a serious explosion.

"An empty gasoline truck is just as dangerous because of the fumes," he said.

In another development Tuesday, Imperial Oil Co. suspended at least 22 of its workers for refusing to handle the trucks of two transport companies the union has accused of handling "hot" B-A products.

The OCAW has served strike notice on Imperial, Shell and Standard refineries in B.C. but so far has not struck those companies.

In Vancouver, R. T. Philp, international representative for the striking Oil, Chemical Union, dismissed the idea that automation is no great factor in the strike.

"If it isn't a key issue, why does the company refuse to write anything about it in the contract?" he said.

Campaign Office

Campaign headquarters will be opened Friday by George Chatterton, Progressive Conservative MP for Esquimalt-Saanich in the last Parliament.

The office is in the Shelbourne Plaza.

DAMAGE TO A B-A OIL CO. tanker which was fired on Monday night is examined by company officials and RCMP. Five bullets from a high-powered rifle were fired into the rear of the empty truck as it was returning to Victoria from a delivery run to Lake Cowichan.

FLUORIDES REJECTED BY OAK BAY IN 1959

Through an error in checking records, an item in the Times Monday stated that Oak Bay voters approved fluoridation in 1959.

Referring to an area-wide referendum, the report incorrectly said Oak Bay had passed the question and the other Greater Victoria municipalities turned it down.

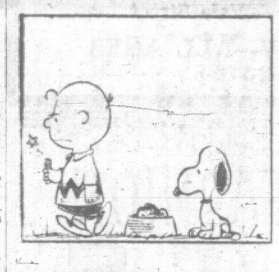

The facts were that Oak Bay voters came closest to approving domestic water fluorides as an anti-tooth decay measure, voting 2,109 against and 1,543 for the proposal.

Victoria voters rejected it by a 7-4 margin, and collectively, Oak Bay, Saanich and Esquimalt voted against fluordination by a 13-8 margin.

Oak Bay votes again on the subject Dec. 4.

Automation: We Can Only Delay Its Run

By BOB DONAHUE

Automation is here to stay—are you?

This ominous message appeared recently on the desk of New York economist Robert Theobald, an expert on the effects of a computerized society.

The meaning of the message was clear following an address by Mr. Theobald to delegate attending the American Public Welfare conference at the Empress Hotel today.

"Whatever we do, we can only succeed in delaying the inevitable; the attempt to keep demand growing as fast as supply to create jobs will inevitably fail.

"The effects of the computer in developing abundance and eliminating jobs will inevitably exceed our capacity to create jobs," said Mr. Theobald.

The situation will continue to deteriorate if present trends continue, he said. Eventually there will be large numbers of totally unemployed workers subsisting on government schemes; the greatest proportion of the population will work shorter hours and a small number of people with the highest level of education will be drastically overworked for very high salaries.

MISLEADING

"The recent downward drift of the unemployment rate is misleading. It results in part from distortion of economic activity due to strikes and threats of strikes, and it also reflects the discouragement and defeat of people who cannot find employment and have ceased to look for a job.

"An older person may choose to call himself retired and retain some of his tattered dignity rather than look for a job that doesn't exist.

"We have just begun to worry about the unskilled who are going to lose their jobs," said Mr. Theobald. "But we haven't even begun to comprehend the fact that a very wide range of middle-income jobs are going to be computerized.

"This group is going to create a drastic problem in the next 10 years.

"It is neither socially wise nor politically feasible to allow middle-income people to drop to the poverty level.

"We will have to accept methods of maintaining their income.

"As soon as a guaranteed income and committed spending are available, the individual would be able to break out of the consumption race.

"He will be able to say 'I opt out' because he will be entitled to an income.

"We could thus set free enormous potential energy and imagination to solve our urgent problems."

LOCAL SHIP MOVEMENTS

DEPARTMENT OF TRANSPORT

Camsel, Estevan and Stonetown are in port. Ready sails on patrol Thursday. Sir James Douglas is at Tofino. Racer is at Bamfield patrol area. St. Catharines is at weather station Papa.

NAVY

HMC Ships Saskatchewan, Mackenzie, Beacon Hill and St. Croix will return Saturday following naval exercises.

HMC Ships Skeena and Gatineau are expected in port Friday.

HMCS Antigonish in on cruise until Monday.

HMCS Sussexvale is in local waters for the day.

Word Thursday On Sooke Incorporation

A fact-finding committee will announce its decision on Thursday whether the unorganized district of Sooke should become a village or district municipality.

If the answer is yes, a vote on incorporation is expected within three months.

Chairman John W. Keating said today the department of municipal affairs favors incorporation.

The committee, composed of representatives of Sooke organizations has been studying incorporation for several months.

It's main problem has been to decide between village status and incorporation as a district municipality. Some members fear the latter would mean Sooke would have to take over and pay for policing and welfare.

But a government official has advised the committee that a municipality may be exempted from paying for the administration of justice and welfare if its population does not exceed 2,500 and land improvements taxable for school purposes do not exceed $2,500 per person.

Sooke's population is 1,900.

TREE FARM DECISION SURPRISE

The Tahsis Company today was granted an extension to its tree farm licence, but the company received much less than it applied for.

Lands and Forests Minister Ray Williston, in a surprise decision, eliminated more than half the 100,000 acres sought by the company.

Tahsis wanted the timber to help support its 750-ton kraft pulp mill being built at Gold River on Vancouver Island.

In lieu of the 51,600 acres he eliminated from the application, Mr. Williston added four small parcels along the western boundary of Tahsis' present licence.

Tahsis president J. V. Christensen said the terms were "a complete surprise."

"We will give the decision our best attention," he said.

Cafe Drinks All Right With Church?

Churchman today indicated there may be less opposition to liquor in McPherson Playhouse restaurant than there was to a proposed bar in the civic foyer.

"It may seem like hair-splitting, but there's a subtle difference here," said First United Church minister Rev. R. J. D. Morris.

"We do have licensed restaurants in the city, and this is like another city restaurant."

Last spring, when more than 10 church groups petitioned against the idea of liquor in the playhouse, Mr. Morris' congregation made the point that a bar in the foyer would be widening the area of liquor distribution.

"A restaurant license is a different affair," said Presbyterian Church minister Rev. J. L. W McLean.

"There are laws governing the licensing of restaurants, and if this one conforms, then a licence could be granted.

"The other matter would have been widening of the law.

"I don't think it is our business to say how the existing law should be interpreted or applied," Dr. McLean said.

Mr. Morris added:

"I don't think the theatre restaurant should be barred from having a licence when others in the city have them. Treat it like any other restaurant in the community."

Man Fined $250 For Contributing

Wallace Henderson Young was fined $250 in police court today for contributing to juvenile delinquency by supplying liquor to a 14-year-old.

He was also bound over to keep the peace for six months and was ordered to turn over to the police chief his driver's licence.

Young was charged after he telephoned police to report he could not get a boy out of his car. When police arrived, they found the youth inebriated.

LIQUIDATION

Nearly 60 Lose Jobs At City Firm

The 53-year-old Victoria firm, Pacific Sheet Metal, at 1009 Yates Street, is now in liquidation.

A receiving order has been issued against the firm and Ian H. Bell of Vancouver has been appointed official receiver.

A rumor that Pacific Sheet Metal had been bought by a Vancouver firm was denied by Mr. Bell today.

"We are trying to arrange a sale in Victoria," he said. "That is all I can say at present.

Meantime, most of the 60 craftsmen employed by the firm have been laid off. But the premises at 1009 Yates Street are still in operation.

The firm was started as a small sheet metal shop on Fort Street, by the late Percy Little, in 1912. It grew into the Pacific Sheet Metal Ltd. and, just before the Second World War, was sold to Western Steel Ltd.

SOLD BACK

Afterwards, Western Steel sold it back to Pacific Sheet Metal.

Last April, Herbert Playsted, general manager, flew to Boston and secured a $30,000 contract with the Industrial Air Company of Boston.

Pacific Sheet Metal also received a $160,000 contract for the production of ventilation and air-conditioning equipment for Victoria's new YMCA building, and a $108,000 contract for ventilating and roof work at St. Joseph's Hospital.

Hunter Fined For Failing To Cancel Tag

A Victoria hunter today was fined $25 for failing to cancel a deer tag after shooting a deer.

Wesley Allan Mottishaw, 1228 Pembroke, pleaded guilty to the charge, first of its kind on Vancouver Island this season.

The hunter was checked Sunday on Sooke Road by conservation officer Jack Lenfesty without the date clipped off his deer tag.

Magistrate D. G. Ashby also ordered the deer confiscated.

Saanich Launches Last-Ditch Bid To Keep Own Courtroom Facilities

A special closed meeting of Saanich council was held for several hours Tuesday night on the current magistrate's court controversy.

The meeting followed comments by Magistrate William Ostler that it was not entirely his decision to hold court in the city after Friday.

Reeve Hugh Curtis said this morning he cannot make any comment.

"We set out several steps last night," he said, "and these have to take place one at a time.

"Each step depends on the preceding step."

He confirmed a report that Saanich is sending a further communication to the attorney-general's department, but declined to say what is in it.

FIRST COMMENT

Magistrate Ostler made his first comment on the subject Tuesday afternoon when he declined a request from prosecutor Kenneth Murphy to hold an adjourned Saanich case in Saanich court.

After Friday, all cases at the central magistrate's court now held in Saanich will be heard in the new courtroom adjacent to the renovated police station by Centennial Square.

The move has been protested by Saanich, which wants its cases heard in its own courtroom completed just three years ago at a cost of $50,000.

Magistrate Ostler said the attorney-general has appointed a district magistrate for an area which is the county of Victoria.

"Now, as far as I am concerned, as the district magistrate so appointed, I will be sitting on and after the 1st of October in the courthouse on Fisgard Street in the city of Victoria, by the direction of the Hon. Attorney-General," he said.

"As I understand, and I sincerely desire to keep out of this matter entirely, I will confine myself to my magisterial duties and I regret being involved in any public way with this matter.

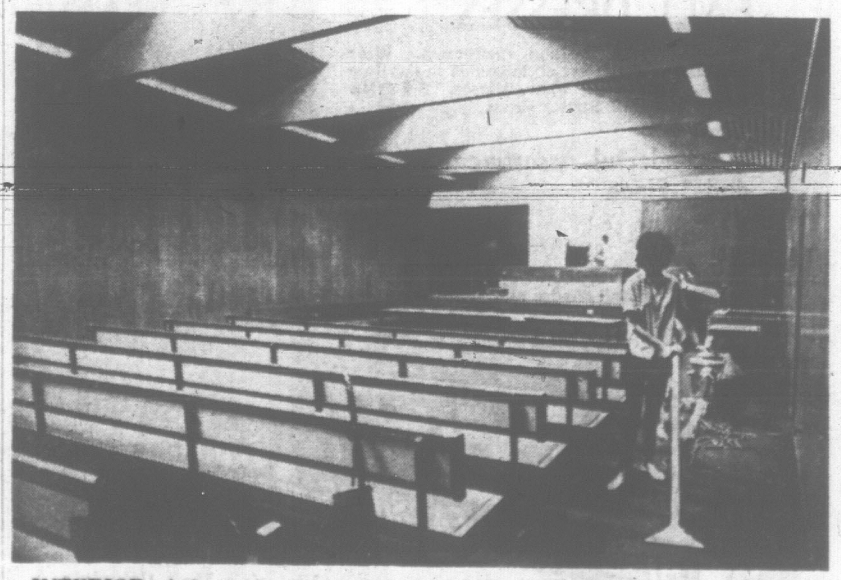

"I can only sit in one place and I am to sit on Fisgard Street as I have said."

Prosecutor Murphy quoted a section of the Municipal Act and said no copy of an agreement between Victoria and Saanich for the new facilities has been filed with the attorney-general.

Magistrate Ostler replied that while physical facilities are provided in Saanich, they do not make a court but simply provide a courtroom.

Attorney-General Robert Bonner was away from Victoria and could not be reached for comment. His deputy, Dr. Gilbert Kennedy, declined comment.

But two weeks ago, Reeve Curtis said he had received a letter from Dr. Kennedy which advised him it was the magistrate's decision to move downtown.

INTERIOR of the main magistrate's court of Greater Victoria, opening Friday, reflects modern functionalism in its design, bright lighting and airy ceiling. As in city hall legislative wing, across Centennial Square, finishing work for the dais, desks and enclosures is built-in and made of fine wood. Like the higher courts, there is carpeting on the floor — a first for municipal courts in this area.

Ask The Times

Q — What is the meaning of the name Saanich? D.F.

A — It has two meanings, "rising" and "always ready" or "always on the lookout," accordnig to provincial archives.

The first pertains to an Indian legend that Mount Newton (named Saanich mountain by the Indians) was not covered by the great flood in the time of Noah.

The second meaning refers to the wary thunderbird, the great power of the Indians.

DEAR ABBY ...

Harsh Punishment!

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I rent a room in the home of a very nice couple who have three children between the ages of nine and 14. They treat me like a member of the family.

A couple of months ago, I started to notice that a few things were beginning to disappear from my room. Nothing of value, just a few candy bars. Last week I noticed that some packages of cigarettes were missing from the carton I kept in my dresser drawer, so I mentioned it to the parents. They got the children together and found that the nine-year-old boy was the guilty one. The father spanked him very hard, took away his television privileges for two weeks and made him sit on the front porch with a sign around his neck which read, "I STEAL."

Abby, I am sick to have been the cause of all this. Now I wonder if I did the right thing in telling the parents. The things the boy took were of so little value. Had I known the lad would be punished so severely I would have kept quiet. Help me sleep nights.

ROOMER.

DEAR ROOMER: Yes, you did the right thing in telling the parents. You may have thwarted a tendency toward dishonesty before it grew to more serious proportions, which actually was a kindness to the child. The parents were cruel to have made humiliation a part of the punishment. But don't feel responsible for their actions.

DEAR ABBY: What do you think of a boy who calls a girl up and asks her if she wants to go out and park with him?

INVITED TO PARK.

DEAR INVITED: He sounds like an efficiency expert with a character deficiency.

DEAR ABBY: You recently published a letter signed "DEPRESSED." The woman had called a recent bride's mother, asking if the bride had ever received the wedding gift she'd sent. (The bride hadn't thanked her for it.) The bride wrote this woman a rude letter telling her the gift HAD been received but she was a little late in writing her thank-you notes, and that she didn't appreciate being "reported" to her mother for her tardiness.

For nearly 21 years I have wondered WHO sent me a pair of beautiful milk glass vases. If only the sender would have called MY mother and asked if I had ever received them, I would have been only too happy to thank her profusely. The gift came from a store in another city, with no card enclosed. I wrote to the store, trying to find out who sent it. They replied (I still have their letter), stating they had no record of the sender. I have enjoyed the vases all these years and haven't the faintest idea who sent them. I had many friends in that city at the time, but I'm sure I have one less now, through no fault of my own.

LEONE, R.

CONFIDENTIAL TO WANDA: You had better tell your friend exactly what to bring for the holiday. To some girls a "one-piece bathing suit" means a cap.

Erika Kurth, at left, well-known soprano, and Lorna Langley, harpist with the Victoria Symphony, will be the artists when the Royal Bride Chapter, IODE, holds a musicale and tea in the home of Mrs. Gerald Sullivan, 305 Dennison Road. The affair will be held this coming Saturday from 2 to 4 p.m.

Miss Judith Parker Wed

Rev. A. Calder officiated at the candlelight service in Oak Bay United Church when Judith Lynn Parker became the bride of Bruce Alan Wight. Organist was R. W. Kroeger, and the bride's uncle, Lance Whittaker, sang "The Wedding Prayer" during the signing of the register.

The principals are the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Parker, 27 Chester Avenue, and the son of Mr. and Mrs. C. R. Wight, 1033 Monterey Avenue.

The bride wore a full-length gown of white peau de soie, styled on classic lines with a slim skirt and sleeveless bodice, fashioned with a V at front neckline and deep scoop at the back. The gown was topped with a long-sleeved lace jacket and full overskirt. A pearl tiara held the fine net veil. Yellow roses were in her bouquet.

Gowns of emerald green peau de soie with tiny matching hats were the choice of maid of honor, Miss Judy Mason, Valois, P.Q.; bridesmaids, the Misses Jill Winnett and Julie Davis, the bride's cousin, and bridesmatron, Mrs. Robert Wilkins, the groom's sister.

Bob Wight was best man for his brother and ushering guests to their pews were Douglas Mace, Peter Coleman and Jan Wight.

J. I. Sylvestre proposed the toast to the bride's happiness at a reception in Holyrood House. Tables were decorated with candles and yellow and white roses.

Mother Designs and Makes Gown For Bride Evelyn Ann Zannet

A bell-skirted gown of satin and lace, designed and made by the bride's mother, was worn by Evelyn Ann Zannet when she recently became the bride of Stephen Merrimap in Metropolitan United Church.

The sleeveless bodice of the gown was highlighted with sequins and beads and topped with a lace redingote, styled with lily point sleeves and extending to a train. "Something old" was her great-grandmother's diamond earrings. A headpiece of roses and petals held her veil of silk. Pink rapture roses and stephanotis were in her cascade bouquet.

Baskets of white and pink gladioli were at the altar of the church when Rev. E. Laura Butler heard vows uniting the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Francis Zannet, 1234 Acton Street, and the son of Mrs. Velma Lien, 577 Michigan Street. Mr. Zannet gave his daughter in mariage.

Soloist Alan Husband sang "Because" and "Oh Promise Me," accompanied by organist Eric Boothroyd, during the candlelight ceremony.

Maid of honor, Miss Eileen Mellors, and bridesmaids, the Misses Linda Curry, Carol Bishop, Susan Wight, Arlene and Adele Zannet, all wore matching pink lace suits with accessories and headpieces en tone and bouquets of pink gladioli.

Flower girls Rena Laval and Paula Patzer were in frocks of white nylon, accented with pink cummerbunds. They wore pink lace headpieces and carried colonial bouquets of pink carnations.

Ralph Merriman was best man for his brother. Ushering guests were Ray Beech, Dave and Mike Woodley, Joe Iannarelli and Jim Haggarty.

A three-tier wedding cake, made by the groom's mother, centred the bride's table at a reception held in the Esquimalt Jubilee Hall.

Fred Baldwin proposed the toast to the bride.

Lovely Hand-Knits To Pamper Babies

By PENNY SAVER

In our grandmothers', or even our mothers' day, hand-knitted garments for babies and children were taken for granted.

Now it's not quite the same. Machine-knit children's woollies are turned out in such quantity that most mothers don't mind which they buy, as long as it "wears well." But to my mind, the hand-made garments still have that extra touch of luxury for the little ones.

A local store not only has the loveliest array of these hand-done articles in stock, but also takes orders for them. The garments are made by professional knitters here in Victoria, and are all of top quality wool and beautifully finished.

Lovely layettes—sweater, bonnet and booties—sell for $5.95 the set in either a popcorn or feather-and-fan pattern, with rosettes trimming the bonnet, and ribbon on the sweater and booties. They'd make any mother, or expectant mother, you know very happy.

Another layette, which was on display in a baby-blue color, was priced at $6.25. Most colors were conventional baby tones—pink, blue, white—but in ordering a layette, you can choose any color available.

An exquisite outfit of white crochet-work, embroidered with silk thread and trimmed with tiny colored rosebuds, is $7.50.

And, for when the youngsters get past the layette stage, knit dresses, for the little girls, are $6.95, and smart little knit suits for the boys are $7.50. Both would fit children of about 18 months.

Perhaps the most attractive article of all the knits was a lovely, cobweb-patterned wool shawl, about 48 inches by 48 inches. Just made to tuck baby snugly into his carriage or cot, the shawls . . . something no mother would be without not so long ago . . . sell for $15.95 each.

Besides the knits, the shop also takes orders on dainty, hand-smocked nighties of flannelette at $2.98 and up.

Next to the baby shawls, the most luxurious items are the hand-smocked dresses for little girls, made of top-quality cotton, with smocking almost from neck to waist. They have petal-shaped collars, puffed sleeves and full skirts, and are priced at $15.00 and up.

Smiling after performance of intricate Indian Kathakali dances, Hindu temple dancer Shivaram (left) consults his commentator, Australian-born Miss Louise Lightfoot. Shivaram's make-up, with eyes lengthened to look like lotus blossoms, is a simplified form of elaborate make-up used in actual temple dances, which takes three hours to apply.

Authority on Hindu Temple Dances

AUSTRALIAN INTERPRETER

By CANDIDE TEMPLE

For Louise Lightfoot, dancing is more than just a series of body movements gracefully performed; it is a subtle and highly sophisticated means of expression, one which requires total concentration and a high degree of dedication.

Australian-born Miss Lightfoot, who moves far from home in her pursuit of dance perfection, is producer, commentator and general road manager for Shivaram, one of the most famous Hindu temple dancers.

As Shivaram performed his strange and intricate art Tuesday noon for about 400 University of Victoria students, Miss Lightfoot stood by interpreting the movements to the audience.

The hand gestures, she explained, are based on a hand alphabet of 24 positions. The sliding neck movement, often done by eastern dancers, signifies pleasure.

As Shivaram danced to the accompaniment of bells, drums and cymbals, Miss Lightfoot named the characters he was impersonating—Brahma, Vishnu and Siva, the Hindu trinity.

The students sat uncomfortably on the gymnasium floor, enthralled by the panorama Shivaram was able to convey to them through his dancing.

In an interview after the performance, Miss Lightfoot a quiet-spoken, dignified woman, explained how she came to be an authority of Indian temple dancing.

Always interested in dance drama, she took dance training at Melbourne University, then turned to producing.

"I was very ambitious," she explained, "I formed the first Australian ballet company. Of course, ballet is very well established there now.

"It was only when I was on my way to London to get some orchestrated music for my company that I passed through India."

"I fell in love with it.

"It was just like a big dance drama," she said. "They had a different way of walking, talking and gesticulating.

"I could have just sat in the gutter and watched it all.

"I was there about 12 years, studying mostly. I just loved it and I didn't waste a moment."

Kathakali, the highly specialized type of dance drama practiced by Shivaram, is confined to southern India, where it is performed in temples.

"Some people regard the dance as a form of Yoga, a path to God," Miss Lightfoot said.

"It always deals with the triumph of good over evil."

Kathakali requires strict discipline and 12 years of training. Boys who are to become temple dancers begin learning the techniques at eight years of age, rising at 3 a.m. for the most intricate exercises.

"In Kathakali," Miss Lightfoot explained, "even the eyelids are trained."

Since Kathakali is practiced only in southern India she said, it is impossible to be trained as a Kathakali dancer if you don't speak the dialect.

How then can western audiences appreciate the strange and wonderful pictures Shivaram paints on stage?

"The dance, said Miss Lightfoot confidently, "doesn't depend on language.

"It has a universal appeal."

Housewives Driven to Drink

JOHANNESBURG (Reuters) The routine of housekeeping and the isolation in which housewives live are driving more and more South African white woman to drink, reports the South African National Council for Alcoholism.

The council estimates there are about 15,000 white women alcoholics in the country, which has a total white population of about 3,250,000.

The superintendent of a Pretoria clinic for alcoholics, J. A. Pienaar, said alcoholism in general is "much more serious than most people think."

"What is, above all, disturbing is the increase in women alcoholics. About one in five alcoholics is a woman."

He said most women alcoholics are housewives. The majority come from "good" families and their husbands are prominent people such as doctors, professors, magistrates and industrialists.

To celebrate National Jaycee Week, Victoria Jaycee-Ettes held a tea Sunday afternoon in the Surfside 66 restaurant. President, Mrs. C. Richards, and immediate past president, Mrs. R. Owens, received the guests. Also attending were Mrs. Percy B. Scurrah, honorary member; Mrs. D. Hardy, Mrs. M. Shepherd, Mrs. D. Dakers, Mrs. G. Nairn, Mrs. W. Garcin, Mrs. T. Barlow, Mrs. D. Mathison, Mrs. M. Simpson, Mrs. J. Fraser, Mrs. R. Taylor, Mrs. H. Belfie, Mrs. H. Yip, Mrs. D. Moss, Mrs. B. Squirrell, Mrs. W. Denson, Mrs. J. Moore, Mrs. D. Piket, Mrs. V. Tuban, Mrs. A. Wilson, Mrs. S. Britt, Mrs. B. Small and Mrs. D. Webb.

Bride-Elect Feted

The Earl Grey Street home of Mrs. R. L. Street was the scene of a recent shower for bride-elect Miss Trudy Darling, given by co-hostesses Mrs. Street, Mrs. G. O'Brien and Mrs. E. Genis. The guest of honor, her mother, Mrs. Mary Darling, and the groom-elect's mother, Mrs. J. Jones, were presented with corsages. Gifts were in a decorated laundry basket. Also attending were Mrs. B. Adair, Mrs. B. Bannister, Mrs. E. Banfield, Mrs. K. Casey, Mrs. A. Cullingford, Mrs. D. Alm, Mrs. E. Gillingham, Mrs. R. Hanley, Mrs. M. Harvey, Mrs. L. Jones, Mrs. M. Haynes, Mrs. G. Larsen, Mrs. Elaine Lynch, Mrs. I. McClure, Mrs. A. Price, Mrs. M. Purser, Mrs. D. Thorpe, Mrs. D. Tweed, Mrs. P. Warburton, Mrs. I. West, the Misses Wilma Farquhar, Susan Darling, June Gillingham and Sharon Staples.

Mr. and Mrs. K. Mikkelsen, 3054 Doncaster Drive, announce the engagement of their eldest daughter, Rinda Lone Mikkelsen, to Mr. Donald Edward Webb, son of Mr. and Mrs. P. Webb, 1950 Bourchier Street. The wedding will take place on Saturday, October 16, in Grace Lutheran Church. Rev. David Metzger will officiate. (Miss Mikkelsen's photo by Jorgan V. Svendsen, her fiance's by Campbell Studio.)

NO TOP HATS FOR BEATLES

LONDON (UPI) — The Beatles learned with relief Tuesday that they will not have to wear formal dress when they go to Buckingham Palace on Oct. 26.

The four singers are to be invested as "members of the Order of the British Empire" by Queen Elizabeth. Their inclusion in the Queen's honors list this spring raised the hackles of conservative Britons.

They will wear business suits for the occasion.

"We would never have found top hats to fit over our mops," said John Lennon.

Namesake and Great-Great Nephew Of William Lyon Mackenzie King

TORONTO (CP) — William Lyon Mackenzie King IV hasn't made up his mind yet whether to become a doctor or a politician.

Two W. L. M. Kings—William the fourth's father and grandfather—were doctors. The first W. L. M. King—William's great-great uncle — was Canada's prime minister for 21 years in the period between 1921 and 1948.

As he is only four days old, the latest W. L. M. King has many years in which to choose his profession.

"This seems like a medical family, so he probably will continue and be the same," his mother said in hospital here Tuesday.

"I'll leave that up to him, however."

His father is Dr. W. L. M. King, great-nephew of the prime minister. His grandfather on the paternal side was Surgeon-Lieut. W. L. M. King, the prime minister's nephew who went down with the Canadian destroyer St. Croix in 1943. His paternal grandmother is also a doctor, Dr. Marjorie King, of Toronto.

She's 97-Years-Young Today and Loving It!

Today is a "red letter" day at 2161 Foul Bay Road, where Mrs. Sophia Devine lives with her son, John, and daughter, Mrs. Christina Lennax. Mrs. Devine is celebrating her 97th birthday and the excitement is still as evident as when she blew out the candles on her first birthday cake.

As her daughter says, "Mum still enjoys life. Although she's now restricted to a wheelchair, there's lots to appreciate, good food, visits of friends and anticipation of a good night's sleep."

Mrs. Devine has two other daughters, Mrs. Peter (Margaret) Lucas of Lake Bay, Wash., and Mrs. Tony Slopak of Tacoma, Wash. There are 13 grandchildren, 34 great-grandchildren and eight great-great-grandchildren.

Born in South March, Ont., in 1868, Mrs. Devine came to Victoria in 1890. She met and married her husband, John, in the same year.

For many years they lived on Felton Road where they owned five acres, raising the odd dairy animal and crops.

While not looking after their small farm, Mr. Devine worked for 18 years as an engineer with the Giant Powderworks Company, which used to be at Telegraph Bay.

Mr. Devine died in 1926.

Mrs. Devine was an enthusiastic church worker for many years, attending St. Patrick's Church in Oak Bay.

Charter for City Unit

Members of the Victoria Parliamentary Law Study Unit received their club charter at a recent meeting held in the Amphion Street home of president Mrs. D. L. Campbell. The charter, received from the National Association of Parliamentarians, was awarded after several unit members had completed a course of instruction from registered parliamentarians.

Plans were made for a dinner party to be held at 7 p.m. Thursday at the Princess Mary Restaurant, to celebrate receiving the charter.

Members present at the meeting included Mrs. R. A. Caught, Mrs. T. F. Howe, Mrs. E. R. Ashbridge, Mrs. P. A. F. Peterson, Mrs. W. M. Martin, Mrs. R. Butt, Miss H. Jewell, Mrs. H. Donaldson and Mrs. H. L. Brigham.

Next meeting of the study unit will be held at 8 p.m. Oct. 12 in the home of Mrs. R. A. Caught, 3610 Quadra Street. Interested persons may attend.

TODAY'S RECIPE

RICE SOUFFLE

One cup heavy *white sauce, 4 eggs (separated), 1 cup cooked rice. Combine white sauce with slightly beaten egg yolks and rice. Beat egg whites until stiff but not dry. Fold into rice mixture. Pour into an ungreased two-quart casserole and bake for one hour in a 325-degree oven.

*White sauce.

Melt ¼ cup butter in a saucepan. Stir in ¼ cup flour. Then blend in 1 cup milk and ½ teaspoon salt. Cook, stirring constantly until thickened.

Variations:

1. Swiss cheese or sharp cheese—Blend 1 cup of grated cheese into the hot white sauce.
2. Apricot—Add 1 cup apricot pulp to the rice mixture before folding in the egg whites.
3. Fold in ¾ cup finely diced chicken, ¾ cup cooked rice, ¼ cup chopped nuts, and ¼ teaspoon nutmeg. Cook 50 minutes in a 325-degree oven.
4. Add to white sauce ¾ cup tuna fish, ¾ cup cooked rice, 1 teaspoon dillweed and ¾ teaspoon paprika. Bake 50 minutes in a 325-degree oven.
5. Add to white sauce ¾ cup salmon, ½ teaspoon liquid smoke which has been brushed over the salmon (liquid smoke can be bought in spice departments and lends a smoky taste to food), ¾ cup cooked rice, salt and pepper to taste. Bake for 50 minutes in a 325-degree oven.
6. Combine with the white sauce, ¼ teaspoon nutmeg, ½ teaspoon paprika, ½ teaspoon basil, 2 tablespoons minced parsley, ½ cup boiled onions (drained and minced), ¾ cup cooked rice. Bake for 45 minutes in a 325-degree oven.
7. Add to the white sauce, ½ cup whole kernel corn, ¾ cup cooked rice, 1 tablespoon chopped pimiento and 2 tablespoons minced green pepper. Bake for 45 minutes in a 325-degree oven.

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

This week I am bringing you a couple of letters, selected from recent correspondence, which have come to my desk.

"Dear Mrs. Lowman: "I am 50 years old. Because of the correct exercise and diet, my figure is as attractive as ever, and I always had a good one.

"I realized some time ago that I would have to work at it more as time passed because the weight distribution seemed to be changing. Although I weighed the same, I had little rolls over my girdle and a pad of fat on my abdomen which I had never had before.

"Do most women experience this at middle age or am I unusual? Anyhow I began concentrating on abdominal and waist exercises, and after a few months, had my youthful figure back. I have found, though, that I must make them a part of my daily routine forever in order to hold the line.

"I have a youthful face but I do not seem to be able to do anything about my neck. My face looks 35 or 40 and my neck 55 or 60. They don't match. I must admit that I have not taken facial exercises. Would this help? Please advise me."

First to answer your question about weight distribution. I think that most women have the same experience you have had. There is a change in measurements unless a woman exercises to avoid it. Bulges and rolls are apt to appear in spots we never had them before if we have not gained weight, that is, if we do not exercise. Then there is no doubt about it! A woman has to try harder to keep her figure after she has passed early youth.

Many readers have found my exercises for the neck to be most beneficial. Of course daily lubrication is also essential. Posture is important and you might try one of the hormone creams or oils. It is also wise to use a base with a moisturizer.

Try this exercise. Straighten your spine and keep your chin parallel to the floor as you turn your head as far to the right as you can. Turn head back and then to the left as far as you can. Continue turning head and alternating right and left. After a while turn head to right and then look up toward the sky. Turn back. Turn to the left and look up. Turn back and continue.

If any of you would like to have my exercises for the neck send a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request for them to Josephine Lowman in care of this newspaper. Ask for the leaflet "Is Your Chinline a Pain in the Neck?"

Tokyo Girls Lose Out to Gills

TOKYO (Reuters) — Japanese bar hostesses, who generally seem indifferent to almost everything, have a serious worry —the current business recession in Japan.

As money grows scarce, Japanese companies have been tightening their lavish expense accounts. The relatively junior "salary men," as they are called here, who used to sign bar bills with careless abandon, now find that they have to pay for their own and their friends' drinks.

This is a sobering thought in a city where entertainment, especially in hostess bars, can be staggeringly expensive and salaries are comparatively low.

To the dismay of the hostesses, who usually have little trouble in parting a man from his money, the young men have turned to the indoor Tsuribori or angling ponds which have sprung up by the hundreds in recent months.

Rummage sale, First United Church Women, Saturday, 9 a.m. to 12 noon, Fellowship Hall, Quadra Street and Balmoral Avenue.

An hour's discussion with a hostess on matters of mutual interest may cost about $10 while an hour's angling costs only some small change.

Moreover, everybody seems agreed that a carp is easier to catch than a hostess and certainly easier to take home.

cabbage rolls & rice casserole

DELTA RICE WHITE LONG GRAIN FOR MAIN COURSE MEALS 54 SERVINGS

The new cabbage crop is in . . . and here's your opportunity to discover DELTA LONG GRAIN RICE, the flavour secret for this quick, delicious main-dish casserole. Nothing is easier to use than versatile Delta Rice. Always fluffy, every grain stays separate – never breaks down.

CABBAGE ROLLS AND RICE CASSEROLE

Basic Ingredients

8 large outer cabbage leaves
1 cup cooked Delta Long Grain White Rice
1 lb. ground round steak
2 teaspoons salt
½ teaspoon pepper
2 tablespoons chopped onion
1 cup tomato juice
2 tablespoons sugar
2 tablespoons vinegar

Preparation

Wilt the cabbage leaves in boiling water. Combine meat, onion, rice and half of the salt and pepper. Form into 8 portions. Place one on each cabbage leaf, roll securely and fasten with toothpicks. Place in heavy skillet. Add tomato juice, sugar, vinegar and remainder of salt and pepper. Cover and simmer about one hour.

Variations: Try these intriguing and challenging variations of our basic recipe. For the meat, use ground beef, pork (or a combination of the two), lamb or ham. The seasoning may be salt and pepper or you can add cayenne, paprika or a dash of nutmeg or 2 tablespoons of cream of mushroom soup mix (dry) or ½ teaspoon poultry seasoning. For the liquid use tomato juice, or combine 2 cans tomato sauce with one of water, or one cup tomato soup with ½ cup of milk. Use brown sugar instead of white. Try adding ½ cup of cottage cheese and ¼ cup minced celery to meat mixture. Or combine ½ cup dairy sour cream to the cup of tomato soup to make the liquid. All variations can be baked at 350 degrees or simmered in a covered skillet for about an hour. But for best results always use Delta Long Grain Rice. These recipes are not suitable for instant pre-cooked rice.

. . . BUT STILL ABOVE POLITICS

Airline Grounds Legs

BONN (Reuters)—The West German publicity office of a British airline said no Tuesday to an advertisement featuring the world-famous legs of Berlin-born Marlene Dietrich.

"We've tried the picture out on 75 potential mail-order customers," said Paul Breur, German publicity chief for British Overseas Airways Corp., "and found that the majority associated Marlene Dietrich with hatred of Germany."

"Therefore, we told the head office in London the picture will not attract German customers to fly with BOAC and we don't propose to use it. London agreed."

The advertisement, designed to show that the airline's planes provided more leg room for passengers, shows the actress seated in an airliner chair with her celebrated legs comfortably extended. Miss Dietrich's name does not appear in the advertisement.

Hostility to her in Germany dates from the Second World War, when she made films in the United States and sang for allied troops. Miss Dietrich had left Germany for Hollywood before Hitler came to power.

'UNSEEMLY'

Some of the hostility to Miss Dietrich in Germany has also been traced by observers to the fact that, in a largely conservative country, it is regarded unseemly for a grandmother to display her legs in public and appear on stage in form-fitting gowns.

In London, a BOAC official said Tuesday night: "The idea of Miss Dietrich's legs becoming an international incident is ridiculous. They are above politics.

"In any case the advertisement was not meant for the German market. It was meant to demonstrate the comfort of tourist-class seats to potential American tourists. The fact that it appeared in the continental editions of American magazines Time and Life was a pure coincidence."

MARLENE DIETRICH . . . no honor at home

Rezoning Called Loss of Freedom By Land Owner

Central Saanich council Tuesday deferred for further discussion the proposed rezoning of 3.3 acres of property on Collins road from special commercial to agricultural land.

Philip Bushby, 7852 Collins, owner of the property, objected to the rezoning on the grounds it would take away his freedom to use the land as he wants.

Reeve R. Gordon Lee explain under the present zoning there is nothing to stop an undesirable business from using the property.

"We have no intent of penalizing people, but control over land use is a necessity," he said.

Beer Seized, 3 Held By Vancouver Police

VANCOUVER (CP) — Police seized 203 cases of beer and charged three men Tuesday and early today.

The seizures bring to 1,200 the number of cases police have seized since beer parlors closed after workers went on strike against major breweries six weeks ago.

The three arrests bring to nine the number of men charged with bootlegging since the strike began.

Tuesday 98 cases of beer from a small interior brewery, one of the two working the province, were seized. Robert Terrence Taylor, 29, was charged with keeping liquor for sale.

Another 105 were seized early today. Brian Hayes, 52, and George Miller, 50, were charged on two counts each of keeping liquor for sale.

The International Union of United Brewery, Cereal, Flour, Soft Drink and Distillery Workers of America is on strike against four major breweries. Some 450 workers seek a 10 per cent wage increase over a basic wage of $2.50 an hour.

Diefenbaker Warms Crowd Defending Record in Office

BROWNSBURG (UPI)—John Diefenbaker's two-day electioneering trip across Quebec ended Tuesday night in the Brownsburg arena where he was greeted by hundreds of flag-waving supporters and a lone, but loud, Scottish bag piper.

Facing the crowd in a pull-over borrowed from a supporter to match the cold, Diefenbaker repeated his well travelled phrase "I cannot contemplate Canada without Quebec nor Quebec without Canada."

The Tory leader soon switched to his main theme.

"Mr. Pearson, commenting on my campaign, said it is based on slander and scuttlebut. Let us examine the facts."

"When I was in office and sold wheat to Red China the Liberals were against it but now they are doing the same, and boasting about it," Diefenbaker told his audience.

DEFENDS RECORD

Applauded by his audience, Diefenbaker defended his record as prime minister.

"When I came into office I suggested to make Parliament bilingual. The result is that members of parliament now speak in both French and English, and all understand what is going on."

"I was told I should not go to Quebec, that I am an enemy of Quebec. Am I considered an enemy just because I recommended to the Queen the first French-Canadian governor general?" Dief asked.

The PC leader also hit the government over the rising cost of living. "Pearson promised to look into it," he said with a wry smile.

"We have raised the pensions from $46 to $65 and we shall raise them to $100 a month.

"We shall remove the 11 per cent tax on building materials.

"I hope to see the day when every Canadian will be a home owner."

MEETS STUDENTS

Earlier Tuesday afternoon, Diefenbaker attended a reception in his honor at the Ayersville market place where he met a delegation of Lachute high school students.

One student informed the visitor they did not favor any politician.

Another student asked why Diefenbaker had a Union Jack on his car while driving in the Maritimes.

Diefenbaker replied that he had no car of his own and all the cars he used had been decorated in advance.

A girl who asked why he did not support the new Canadian flag having lost his battle in Parliament, received no answer.

'BAREFACED PLOT' TO CONTROL MIND

BROWNSBURG, Que. (CP)—Conservative Leader Diefenbaker Tuesday night charged the Liberal government with trying to control the thinking of of Canadians.

He said a letter sent to private television station owners concerning the coverage of speeches by cabinet ministers was "one of the most unusual things that has ever happened."

"In all Canadian history," he said, "there has never been a more barefaced attempt to control the thinking of Canadians."

Mr. Diefenbaker spoke to about 700 people who heard him assail the Liberal government for what he called a lack of concern for the average Canadian.

He said the letter sent out to television station owners offering use of film clips of Liberal ministers contained this key paragraph:

"The most important thing about the six-week service is that the ministers and the people closest to them know what the private broadcasters are doing for them."

Mr. Diefenbaker said that the people close to the cabinet ministers are executive assistants.

'CLOSE TO RIVARD'

"Those are the people close to Rivard and all the others."

Mr. Pearson talked about a new Canada, he said, "the new Canada in which our thinking will be controlled."

Mr. Diefenbaker said he was going to deal with this letter a great deal more in the days ahead.

A Series Of Byelections

ST. THOMAS, Ont. (CP)—Social Credit Leader Thompson Tuesday night described Canada's forthcoming federal election as a series of byelections in which the decisive factor will be the quality of individual candidates rather than the parties they represent.

He told an audience of about 100 at his party's Elgin nomination meeting here integrity of leadership and not majority government is the real election issue.

"The steamroller tactics of majority government don't bring good government," he said.

'Chief Misunderstood Quebec's Outlook'

TORONTO (CP)—John Diefenbaker misunderstood Quebec's aspirations although he wanted to be its friend, was suspicious of big business and tended to listen too much to advisers who agreed with him, a former cabinet colleague said Tuesday night.

Pierre Sevigny, who quit the cabinet in 1963 over the nuclear weapons issue, outlined his opinions about Mr. Diefenbaker as prime minister on the Pierre Berton television show.

SEVIGNY
. . . wanted "yes" men

FORTHCOMING BOOK

Mr. Berton was interviewing the former associate defence minister about his forthcoming book, This Game of Politics. Although he is critical of the party leader in the book, Mr. Sevigny has announced he will campaign for the party in the Nov. 8 election.

SAYS PC's BLUNDERED

During the interview Mr. Sevigny said:

- The failure to have a French-Canadian second Mr. Diefenbaker's nomination at the 1956 leadership convention was a "ghastly blunder" that could have cost the party its 1957 victory had the Liberals been smart enough to exploit the point.
- French Canada would have been more pleased with Mr. Diefenbaker had either the justice or external affairs portfolios gone to a French-Canadian.
- Mr. Diefenbaker and his colleagues did more for Quebec than had ever been done before, but he never understood that Quebec wanted a master plan and not a piecemeal approach to its problems to bring the English and French nations together for a united Canada.
- The cabinet crisis of 1963, when Mr. Sevigny, trade minister Hees and defence minister Harkness resigned, could have been avoided if Mr. Diefenbaker and his key lieutenants and the cabinet had had better communications.

Mr. Sevigny said Mr. Diefenbaker was possibly too lonely a man, and it would have been better if persons who sincerely wanted to advise him had been able to reach him.

Mr. Diefenbaker sought opinions but "he frequently did not like too much people who disagreed with him or told him things that he didn't like to hear.

Police Open Fire —On Each Other

NEW YORK (AP)—Police said two policemen in civilian clothes shot each other Tuesday night in a west side cafe, each apparently thinking the other was a gunman. Police said the wounded men were detective Donald Rieney and off-duty patrolman Richard Selkowitz. Rieney was hit in the groin and Selkowitz in the right hand. Rieney was in critical condition.

NDP Forgot Role, Sharp Tells Rally

TORONTO (CP)—Trade Minister Mitchell Sharp said Tuesday night the Liberals have replaced the New Democratic Party as Canada's political party of social reform.

Mr. Sharp said there was a time when the old CCF—the Co-operative Commonwealth Federation, forerunner of the NDP—was the conscience of the House of Commons. But the NDP had forgotten its role.

"It is neither in the forefront of social reform nor is it a national party," Mr. Sharp said. "It's main purpose is to divide the forces of Liberalism in Canada."

He spoke to 250 persons at a Liberal nomination rally which chose Tim Reid, 30, as candidate for Toronto Danforth in the Nov. 8 federal election.

A York University economist and Rhodes Scholar, Mr. Reid is the son of Escott Reid, the former Canadian ambassador to India. He was a halfback with Hamilton Tiger-Cats of the Eastern Football Conference and played in a Grey Cup game.

FORMER labor minister Michael Starr charged the Liberals have been indulging in "influence, padding, bribery and corruption," he was speaking at a rally in Clinton, Ont.

No Objection To Stations Using Films

OTTAWA (CP)—The Board of Broadcast Governors has no objection to the use on television newscasts of election film-clips distributed by plitical parties, chairman Andrew Stewart said today.

He told an interviewer the board is concerned with the amount of political coverage given the various parties, not the source of news.

"It is up to the discretion of the individual station to take or reject the film clips," he said.

The Progressive Conservatives have charged the Liberals with attempting to influence coverage of the Nov. 8 federal election campaign with an arrangement to distribute film clips of campaign speeches by cabinet ministers.

Dr. Stewart said the Broadcasting Act orders equitable treatment for all political parties and this principle applies to newscasts. This is what the board watches particularly towards the end of the campaign.

Earlier, Dr. Stewart said he saw nothing wrong with political parties arranging for the distribution of film clips to television stations.

"Any party can do it," he said. "There is nothing to prohibit it."

Weather Snag Forces Tommy To Miss Meet

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont. (CP)—T. C. Douglas' election campaign in Northern Ontario ran into weather snags Tuesday which forced him to miss one speaking engagement and drive 270 miles over bush road to keep another today.

The New Democratic Party leader's troubles began after a noon luncheon talk here to 100 persons. His flight to Kapuskasing, some 300 miles northeast, where he was to address an evening rally on his party, was cancelled because of fog.

Mr. Douglas decided to drive 220 miles to Sudbury, intending to catch an Air Canada flight to Timmins where he is due to speak today. However, halfway to Sudbury, he learned in a telephone call that flights to Timmins also had been cancelled because of bad weather.

Undaunted, the NDP leader took off in the car directly for Timmins over a bush road.

Mr. Douglas had missed speaking engagements in Kapuskasing in the last two election campaigns for the same reasons—poor flying weather.

However, about 300 people showed up at the Kapuskasing community centre Tuesday to hear Donald C. MacDonald, Ontario NDP leader, who drove 140 miles to attend the rally when he learned Mr. Douglas would be unable to make it.

WOULD SET GOALS

In his speech at Sault Ste. Marie, Mr. Douglas said his party, if elected, would create a planning body to set realistic goals for the entire economy and lay down guidelines for production, prices and wages.

"Many people get frightened when you talk of planning the economy," he said. "This is ridiculous. We all have to plan our future and a nation should, too."

He said an objective would be to outlaw unjustified price increases by putting teeth into present anti-combines legislation.

Where's Maldive Man?

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — A week ago the United Nations admitted three new members—Singapore, Gambia and the Maldive Islands. So far no delegate from the Maldive Islands — a coral chain in the Indian Ocean inhabited by 82,000 people—has shown up to take his country's seat in the 117-nation General Assembly.

MAJOR TRAGEDY, is the way in which Charles Templeton described the last session of Parlament to a Regina audience. Vice-president of the Ontario Liberal Association, Mr. Templeton asked that the West help to return a majority government.

Journalist To Run In Montreal

MONTREAL (CP)—Raymond Eudes, 53, Liberal MP for Montreal Hochelaga, Tuesday announced he will not run for re-election Nov. 8.

Published reports in Montreal had predicted Mr. Eudes would step down and be replaced as Liberal candidate in the constituency by Gerald Pelletier, prominent Montreal journalist.

Conferences have been going on for some days in an effort by Liberal party officials to find a constituency where Mr. Pelletier, a journalist and former editor of Montreal La Presse, could seek a Liberal nomination.

Mr. Pelletier announced his plans Sept. 10 to seek a Liberal nomination.

Announcing their entry into the political race the same day were Jean Marchand and Pierre Elliott-Trudeau.

The entry of all three was described as an attempt by the Liberals to give their party a "new look" in Quebec.

Mr. Trudeau, a law professor, said Sunday he will seek the Liberal nomination in Montreal Mount Royal.

Mr. Marchand, former president of the Confederation of National Trade Unions, was nominated Monday night as the Liberal candidate in Quebec West.

Million Cigars Stolen

BRISTOL, Pa. (AP) — The Consolidated Cigar Corporation reported that burglars sawed through a chain and drove a truck into the company yard Monday and stole 1,000,000 cigars. Company officials estimated their loss at $127,000.

PM Campaigning By Press Notes

Confine Vote Barnstorming To Four Weeks Before Nov. 8

OTTAWA (CP)—While trains and aircraft have been carrying other party leaders in their search for votes in the Nov. 8 federal election, a mimeograph has been working at full clip in Prime Minister Pearson's office on Parliament Hill.

A sort of campaign-by-press release has been conducted for the last week, with announcements covering international crises to fishing troubles issuing from Mr. Pearson's office.

According to Liberal strategists the prime minister plans to confine his barnstorming of the country to the final four weeks of the campaign to prevent his campaign reaching a climax too many days before voting day.

But some public exposure has been thought necessary.

Informants say policy announcements by all government departments are being cleared through Mr. Pearson's office. Some are then put out under the prime minister's name.

Last Thursday, while Health Minister Judy LaMarsh was opening a conference with provincial health ministers on proposals for a nation-wide medical insurance program, Mr. Pearson announced the government would set up a $500,000,000 fund to pay for medical training and research.

Beats Martin to Announcement

That evening Mr. Pearson announced Canada had agreed to provide the nucleus for a new ceasefire force between India and Pakistan. This press release was handed out in Ottawa about 15 hours before External Affairs Minister Martin was to announce the same thing before the United Nations General Assembly in New York.

The next day Mr. Pearson announced at the same time as the UN the name of the Canadian-Maj. Gen. Bruce F. Macdonald—picked to head the mission.

The same day Mr. Pearson also announced Toronto lawyer Cyril Carson would study the Canada Elections Act to give an opinion on whether some way can be found to permit several thousands students to vote in the election. As the act is interpreted by officials, students who were not at university before the election writ was issued Sept. 8 must return to their place of residence to cast ballots Nov. 8.

At the same time, he announced provinces whose quota of loans from the student loan fund have been used up for this year could increase the quota.

The problem of the students and the Elections Act has been handled by the prime minister from the start but in the last session the loan fund was under the wing of Finance Minister Gordon.

On Monday a short statement from the prime minister said the government is planning to consider ways of helping inshore fishermen if, after the fishing season ends, their profits are as poor as the catch to date indicates.

Fisheries Minister Robichaud was button-holed by reporters after a cabinet meeting to explain what this meant. He said the government is prepared to pay out grants or deficiency payments. But he said he could not go into details about the specifics of a plan.

Later Monday the prime minister's office duplicated an announcement from New York that Mr. Pearson is to receive the Family of Man Award Nov. 17 for his work in international affairs.

N.B. Grits Hold Seat

SHEDIAC, N.B. (CP)— Attorney-General W. W. Heldrum of Sackville retained a Westmorland County seat for the Liberal party Monday, defeating Progressive Conservative candidate Robert V. Landry of Moncton in a provincial byelection.

Homeowners Oppose New Gravel Pit

Establishment of an industrial site in the Turgoose Point district was vigorously protested by homeowners Tuesday night.

Ocean Cement Ltd. has asked Central Saanich council to rezone 17 acres immediately south of James Island Road from agricultural to industrial classification. The property has waterfrontage.

It plans to establish a plant on the site to sort and process gravel.

Home owners in a subdivision immediately north of the property strongly urged council to turn down the application on the grounds the district is residential.

R. N. Samson, lawyer, writing on behalf of a resident, said any commercial site or industrial development on the site would not only lessen property values but change the atmosphere of the area.

Council decided not to deal with the application until the Capital Region Planning Board submits a report.

Low Fog No Excuse, Says Ostler

Russell A. Watson, 388 Caldecote Road, was in a fog the early morning of Aug. 1.

But Magistrate William Ostler Tuesday in Saanich court ruled it was not the misty variety as he found him guilty of impaired driving.

Watson said low-hanging ground fog obscured his vision, causing him to run off the road at the intersection of Sparton and Old West Road.

The tie bar between the front wheels caught on a rock abutment stranding the auto as it crashed through a fence.

Police said the rear wheels of the car remained on the roadway.

RAINCOAT SHREDDED

Court was told at an earlier hearing Watson placed a near-new raincoat under one of the rear wheels trying to get traction.

He ruined the raincoat and shredded the left rear tire, police said.

Magistrate Ostler adjourned the trial to Oct. 14 for pre-sentence report and sentence.

Taylor Speaking To Convention In Vancouver

Greater Victoria school trustees will travel to Vancouver Oct. 3 for the 61st annual convention of the B.C. School Trustees Association.

All 85 B.C. school districts will be represented.

The main business of the convention will be the consideration of 44 resolutions ranging from problems in sex education to the difficulty of taxing mobile homes.

The keynote speaker of the convention is Dr. Malcolm Taylor, president of the University of Victoria. His topic: "Education in a Dynamic Society."

Education Minister L. R. Peterson will also deliver his annual address to trustees at the convention.

Clinic will be held on a variety of subjects including sex education, political freedom in the school system; a federal office of education, teacher utilization and co-operation between schools and industry.

Buffaloes to Welcome New Calf on Friday

Langford Buffaloes will welcome a new calf into the herd Friday.

To be initiated into the Royal Antediluvian Order of Buffaloes, Langford Lodge, is Raymond Ker, 37, of 595 Hanson Road.

The new Buffalo will be introduced to the herd by his father Harold, of 1744 Duchess. Harold Ker has grazed with the Buffaloes for more than 40 years. He is a charter member of the Langford Lodge.

Initiation at 8 p.m., at 1011 Goldstream Avenue, will follow the lodge's traditional rites.

9 IN MEMORIAM

DOLPHIN—In loving memory of a dear husband and father, William Dolphin, who passed away suddenly Sept. 29, 1938.

Our family circle has been broken,
A link gone from our chain;
But though we're parted for awhile,
We know we'll meet again.
Sunshine passes, shadows fall,
Love's remembrance outlasts all.
—Dora, Eva and Ted.

Andy Stephen Looks at TV

It's that time of year again. Baseball's World Series will go before NBC-TV cameras on Oct. 6.

The Minnesota Twins are already waiting in the wings while the National League representative is to be decided.

Stephen

ABC-TV has announced that if a National League playoff is necessary to determine one of the series' participants, it will carry the telecast. At the same time a preview of the series will be offered Saturday, Oct. 2, on its Wide World of Sports.

But the actual coverage of the series games will be again the sole responsibility of NBC-TV. This year the network has introduced a new wrinkle in a unit designed specifically for the expansion of its color programming, with emphasis on sports coverage.

It's a new, ultra-modern, five-vehicles, color mobile unit, seven months in construction at a cost of $1.5 million.

Three of the vehicles, each a 40-foot tractor-trailer, comprise one primary five-color-camera mobile unit. The other two vehicles are 2½-ton trucks, designed as an adjunct to the five-camera unit and combined to form a one-color camera unit.

Technical operating facilities supplied with the three trailers consist of five color cameras; a black-and-white insert camera, pulse generation and distribution equipment, two color tape recorders capable of "instant replay" during football and baseball coverage, a video switching system accommodating 17 different inputs from cameras and remote lines, and chroma key facilities.

The new color television complex represents a great step forward in the design of mobile TV facilities. Not only is it equipped to handle virtually every type of sports event, but it also can colorcast stage productions such as Perry Como, Dean Martin or Andy Williams' shows.

We've given some of the details because sure-as-shootin' the units will be part of some announcers' commentary during the series games.

★ ★ ★

TID BITS: Yul Brynner, Jack Hawkins, Omar Sharif, Richard Widmark and Eli Wallach have been added to the cast of the next TV fiction special about the work of the United Nations.

"Poppies Are Also Flowers" is based on an Ian (James Bond) Fleming story about narcotics smuggling and tentatively scheduled for Dec. 16.

Britain's Stock Low In India

LONDON (AP)—Mrs. Vijayalakshmi Pandit, sister of the late prime minister Jawaharlal Nehru and former envoy of India in London, said Monday night: "Britain's stock has never been so low in India as it is today."

But she said she would not back moves for India to leave the Commonwealth. She is a former cabinet minister and a former president of the United Nations General Assembly.

Asked in a BBC television interview what India now thinks of Britain, Mrs. Pandit said:

"At the moment, it thinks very little of Britain.

"The last few weeks have saddened us immeasurably, because we felt we had the right to expect understanding from Britain—even if we did not receive a clear indication that it supported our stand."

Mrs. Pandit said she thought this attitude would be only a temporary feature of Indian political life if Britain were to reassess its views in relation to the two warring Commonwealth partners, India and Pakistan.

She did not want Britain to indict Pakistan in the India-Pakistan conflict, she said, but to say where the truth lay. She was sure this would help Pakistan as well.

OAK ISLAND

Island Treasure Lures Another

By DON ANGUS

OAK ISLAND, N.S. (CP)—A California petroleum geologist, who read about this tiny island and its mystery-shrouded treasure troves as a boy in Colorado, has renewed the hunt for buried wealth that six weeks ago lured four men to their deaths.

Robert R. Dunfield, 39, of Canoga Park, Calif., said in a interview Tuesday he has purchased the controlling interest in treasure rights from the widow of Robert Restall, a 59-year-old Hamilton steelworker and motorcycle acrobat whose six-year search ended in tragedy Aug. 17.

Mrs. Restall, her son and daughter are to retain a small percentage, Mr. Dunfield said, but major shares in the venture are held by Jack Nethercutt of Beverly Hills, Calif., Dan Blankenship of Miami, Fla., G. R. Laperle of Bakersfield, Calif., and himself.

KNOW IN MONTH

He said his share probably would amount to 37 per cent and total investment by the four chief participants would run to about $35,000. Mr. Dunfield was optimistic about reaching whatever is hidden beneath this 275-acre island's hard clay surface within a month.

"The way we are going about it we certainly should know within a month. I'm convinced there is something there. What it is and who put it there I couldn't venture any opinions."

Mr. Restall, a few months before he died in a gas-filled shaft, estimated the fortune to be at least $30,000,000. But Mr. Dunfield would not "hazard a guess." He also holds no theories of his own regarding where the legendary treasure came from and who buried it under its confounding layers of oak platforms and intricate network of drain tunnels.

Generations of romantics have speculated that the English pirate Capt. Kidd, other Caribbean pirates or the crew of a French pay ship on an ill-fated voyage to beseiged Louisbourg in 1758 placed the booty here—a snug shelter one mile from the Nova Scotia coast in Mahone Bay.

The island is pockmarked with numerous shafts and drill holes clawed or bored in the earth by several unsuccessful expeditions since two young boys found the "money pit" in 1795. The futile efforts brought up only three pieces of gold chain, a fragment of parchment, now in the possession of owner M. R. Chappell of Sydney, and some scraps of cocoanut fibre. There were never any records of serious injuries or fatalities.

FELL IN SHAFT

Mr. Restall died, apparently of carbon monoxide poisoning, when he tumbled into a water-filled shaft and three others, including businessman Karl Graeser of Long Island, N.Y., and Robert Restall, Jr., 24, perished after they went to his assistance.

Mr. Dunfield said he has been interested in Oak Island since reading its history in the Denver Post as a youth, but only decided to invest in the venture earlier this year after he had corresponded with Mr. Chappell and Mr. Restall.

He came to Nova Scotia in July to work at the enterprise and was with Mr. Restall a few days before he died. He said Mrs. Restall asked him to purchase a share of the treasure-seeking rights from the estate and to continue the search.

Now employing a crew of five and heavy machinery, Mr. Dunfield said two bulldozers have flattened most of the island in preparation for the arrival of a "digging clam"—a 100-ton machine with which the new operator hopes to dig a hole 200 feet deep and 100 feet in diameter.

"If there is anything there it should come out," he said.

Where Are You Lemay? —Newsboy

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (AP) — A Daytona Beach newsboy, who last year delivered papers to a man whose yacht was docked at Daytona Beach, has sent a letter to Dade County jail.

It says: "Dear Mr. Rennie, this is the name I knew you as in Daytona Beach. However, I have learned that your real name is Georges Lemay. I have been trying to locate you for several months now about a paper bill you left here owing me in the amount of 65 cents . . . ."

On the outside of the envelope, the boy had written: "Please forward."

But it may be a while before Lemay gets the letter.

Lemay, 39, from Montreal, escaped from the jail near Miami Tuesday. He had been held there pending his appeal against an order that he be deported to Canada.

Lemay faces charges in connection with the 1961 burglary at a downtown Montreal branch of the Bank of Nova Scotia in which 377 safety deposit boxes were looted.

The FBI has joined the hunt for Lemay, who was charged in absentia Friday with trying to buy his way out of the jail with a $35,000 bribe. Also charged with conspiracy to offer the bribe were Lemay's wife, Lise, 29, and Earl Mixon, 31, a jail bondsman.

They were accused of offering the bribe to Harold Algar, 27, a jail guard. Florida State lawyers said Algar would be charged with accepting it.

Rites Thursday For Retired Maple Bay Realtor

DUNCAN — Funeral services will be held Thursday for Charles St. L. Ferguson, 78, of Maple Bay.

Mr. Ferguson died in Royal Jubilee Hospital in Victoria on Sunday.

He will be buried from St. John's Church, Duncan, at 2 p.m.

Born in Ireland, he was a First World War veteran.

In his early years he was in the theatre business as a manager, and latterly in the real estate business. He retired four years ago.

Mr. Ferguson is survived by the widow; two sons, Richard in Vancouver and Robert at Youbou, and a daughter, Mrs. Jerry Foard of Los Angeles.

CHARGE DENIED

Province To Probe Waste Fires

VANCOUVER (CP)—A forest service spokesman Tuesday denied charges that government policy on burning waste timber is causing millions of dollars worth of unnecessary forest fires.

The charges were made by B.C. Truck Loggers' Association in a telegram to Forests Minister Ray Williston, who has ordered an investigation.

The association attacked government regulations of having to burn waste from logging operations once a year.

VALUABLE TIMBER

"An association spokesman said Tuesday the forest service decides where, when and how the slash is burned, without regard for local conditions or weather. It results in fires spreading to valuable timber and destroying equipment, he said.

The protection officers said it is not true the forest service decides when slash is to be burned within a 12-month period. It orders the slash to be burned, leaving the time up to the logging contractors the spokesman said.

INADEQUATE PATROLS

"There is every indication that sometimes a major slash burn is followed by other fires because of inadequate planning or patrolling by the operators," the government spokesman said.

He said burning slash reduced the danger of fires the following summer when waste timber dries out. It is also necessary to ensure land can be planted with new trees, he said.

Wages Double

BONN (Reuters)—Real wages have doubled in West Germany since 1953—the biggest increase in any country in the world, the labor ministry announced Tuesday. Wages increased by 85 per cent in The Netherlands, 80 per cent in Italy, and 58 per cent in France. In Britain, they rose by only 36 per cent, in Canada by 35 per cent, and in the United States by 25 per cent.

Freudian Teachings For Church?

VATICAN CITY (AP) — A group of Latin American bishops urged Tuesday the Roman Catholic Church make use of the psychological lessons of Freud.

They told the Vatican ecumenical council that "psychoanalysis can be useful in all fields of church activity."

Bishop Sergio Mendez Arceo of Cuernaccca, Mexico, speaking for 10 Latin American bishops, told the council the modern world document needed considerable revision. He complained it overlooked the anthropological and psychological factors of the individual man.

"It would be a mistake to ignore the conclusions of Freud," the bishop said, referring to the Viennese pioneer in psychoanalysis, Sigmund Freud.

FIGURES FILLED WITH SENSE OF HUMANITY

'Ancient Mexico in Miniature' Tops

By ROBIN SKELTON

It is pleasant to be back in Victoria again after experiencing yet another of those English unsummers redolent with diesel fumes and clammy with grey rain, and it is the more pleasant because, on visiting the Victoria Art Gallery, I discovered an exhibition which, for sheer fascination, matched many and surpassed most of the shows I have seen while I have been away. This is the exhibition Ancient Mexico in Miniature: it consists of more than a hundred small clay figurines, most of them of the period 200 BC to 900 AD.

Skelton

These figurines are roughly of two kinds. There are those which relate to religious beliefs and rituals, and those which, with powerful simplicity, relate to the ordinary day-by-day lives of the communities in which they were made.

★ ★ ★

The dividing line between the two groups is not easy to draw, however, for even the most bizarre of the gods or animals are postured with such certainty that they appear to be the results of familiar observation rather than imagination.

It is, of course, possible that this is the case; the masked figurines and the fantastic animals are very like many of the larger carvings to be found on the architecture of the region.

I'd hazard the guess, in spite of the informed uncertainty of the scholars, that some at least of these figures were household versions of public sculptures, and may have served as the Lares and Penates of ancient Mexican homes. Be that as it may, the figures are all filled with a sense of humanity.

The majority are, indeed, both simple and moving. The Embracing Couple from Colima is at once tenderly erotic and slyly humorous. The Reclining Figures, also from Colima, have a monumental strength reminiscent of a Moore maquette, but have also considerable individuality. They could be portraits. On the other hand, the Warrior With Shield peering cautiously out at the enemy is a generalization, and a very funny one indeed.

★ ★ ★

Ken McAllister's exhibition of photographs also at the Art Gallery), is poor stuff in comparison. Mr. McAllister is an excellent photographic technician, and when he sticks to straightforward portraiture his work is admirable. His experiments, however, are often pretentious, and sometimes silly. Three pictures of Phyllis Webb as the Muse struck me as being merely wanton cleverness and reflecting nothing of the quality of Miss Webb's poetry, or of the attributes of any Muse whatsoever.

The political montages, Pray for Peace and War Crimes seemed to me to be derived from the work of John Heartfield but entirely to lack Heartfield's passionate and cruel imagination. But perhaps I am being unfair. Mr. McAllister may not have studied Heartfield at all.

In which case I advise him to dig out a copy of Wieland Herzfelde's monograph, published in Leipzig in 1962. Examination of it might prevent him from perpetrating any more fragmentary and ill-composed photo-montage screens, and give his imagination a much needed fillip.

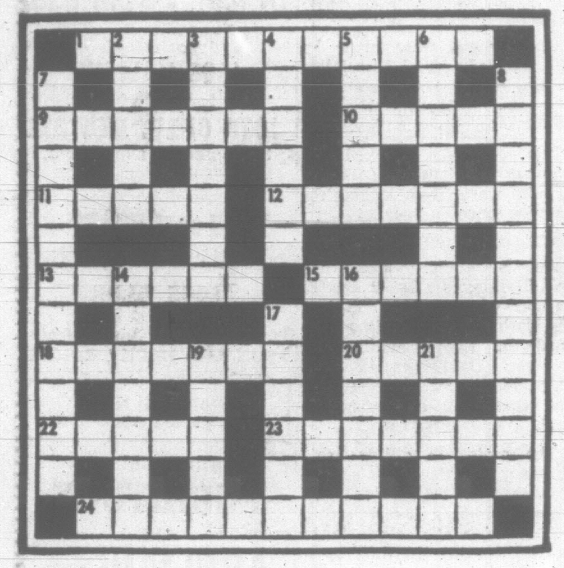

Or perhaps, still better, he should stick to straight portraits or continue to make photographs like Japanese Maple in the Snow and Wave Line. Those two are really first class.

HE GIVES AWAY GRAND PRIZES

Is there something you want to know? Do you want to win a set of valuable books or other instructive prizes? Then ask Andy.

Andy will answer questions submitted by child readers and those who submit the questions he selects to answer will receive worthwhile prizes.

The youngster who asks the first question answered each day receives a 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia and of the second question a Hammond Atlas or Globe.

Andy sends a complete, 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia to Aron Wolf, age 10, of Broomall, Pa., for his question:

Can a Peacock Fly?

The biggest birds are not built for flying, and they are too heavy to lift themselves above the ground. With his splendid train spread out in full display, the peacock is an enormous bird. But most of this bulky size is made of feathers, and feathers are famous for their lightness.

One of Andy's favorite zoos is in San Francisco where one of the most eye-catching items is the peacocks. They are free to roam the grounds among the visitors, and the gaudy show-offs take every chance to display their glistening plumage. You may see one perched upon the roof of the lion house, another preening himself upon the red tiles of the monkey house.

If you watch them long enough, you will see how the big birds get to a roof from the ground. They fly. The male is the proudest bird and more likely to show off in company than the female. Her coloring is more modest and she has no train of razzle-dazzle feathers. The male is the most likely one to appear on top of a roof.

True, the peacock is rather a clumsy flyer. He begins his flight somewhat like an over-excited chicken and launches himself with short, choppy wing strokes. In the air, his long train feathers follow in a straight line behind him, folded together like a fan. When he lands he shrieks a few shrill notes to tell the world that, for all his size and beauty, he also can fly like other less handsome birds.

Flies Short Distances

The ostrich cannot fly for two reasons. He is too heavy and his breast bone is shaped like a raft and unable to support the strong muscles needed for flight. The breast bone of a flying bird is shaped like the tapered keel of a ship. But among the many flying birds there are different wing shapes to cope with different ways of flying.

Gulls and soaring sea birds have long and narrow wings while hawks and birds that soar above the land have wide, strong wings with slotted tips. The peacock's wings are cupped and stubby. They are best suited to quick take-offs and short, choppy beats through the air. He can fly, but the handsome fellow does not fly very far or very fast.

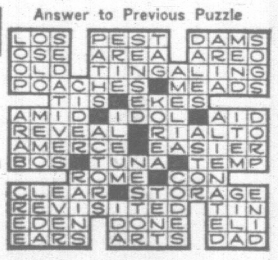

The proud peacock is the biggest member of the pheasant bird family. He has about 170 cousins and all of them have wings of the same type. They scratch and peck on the ground for a living and most of them take to the air only when startled. And of all things, one cousin of the razzle-dazzle peacock happens to be the humdrum barnyard chicken.

Birth Control Draft Hit As Vague by RC Prelates

(Times News Services)

VATICAN CITY (CP) — Progressive and Conservative bishops alike joined today in an attack on the Vatican ecumenical council's draft statement on birth control.

Representatives of both groups opposed the text for various reasons, but all generally denounced it as too vague, badly written, and too broad to serve as a guide for Roman Catholic couples.

Neither side specifically urged the council to speak out for or against the use of contraceptives, but both progressives and conservatives demanded a clear statement on the problems of fecundity and family planning.

The 2,200 cardinals, patriarchs, archbishops and bishops took up the question of birth control as they moved to the second chapter of a 126-page schema (draft decree) on modern world problems.

CALLED INADEQUATE

Ernesto Cardinal Ruffini of Palermo, Sicily, a leading conservative among the council fathers, scored the text as inadequate, complained it lacked a specific condemnation of divorce and said the section on birth control "raises grave doubts."

He told the prelates assembled in St. Peter's Basilica:

"It is not only a question of the pill, which has been impudently called the "Catholic pill.'"

The new contraceptive pill has sometimes been called "the Catholic pill" by Italian newspapers because of discussion in some Catholic circles that its use might be approved by the church.

The modern world schema calls on Roman Catholic couples to practise "responsible procreation" but it does not specifically go into contraception. This has been left to a papal study commission now reviewing the entire question of birth control.

Cardinal Ruffini suggested that the vagueness of the schema opened the way for the use of other means of contraception.

"The schema speaks of the acceptability of period continuance (rhythm system), but does not emphasize that every act aimed at artificially depriving marriage of its natural procreative purpose is dishonest and against nature," he said.

SILENT ON DIVORCE

The text condemns abortion and infanticide, but remains silent on divorce.

Attacks on the text from council fathers identified with the assembly's progressive current came from two other cardinals, Paul - Emile Leger of Montreal and Leo Jozef Suenens of Brussels.

"I believe that the doctrine proposed in the text will not be any great help to the Christians of our time," Cardinal Leger said. "And I feel it deceives their legitimate expectations"

Cardinal Leger complained that the text overlooks the meaning of marriage for the individuals involved.

Pacifist Returns To Help LBJ

NEW YORK (AP)—Whitebearded Max Daetwyler still was on the road today, preaching peace among the nations.

The 79-year-old Swiss pacifist has come back to the United States, saying he wants to "help President Johnson bring peace to Viet Nam."

"I can help him," he said. "It is time to quit shooting."

It was something of an anniversary for the "peace prophet." For 50 years he has been travelling the international highways, often afoot, in behalf of peace.

Daetwyler still carries a tall bamboo pole with a worn white truce flag which he said he first used in a 300-mile walk from his home near Zurich to a meeting of the League of Nations in Geneva.

"I protested then," the spry former hotel keeper said, "because the league had no courage, no character."

'MADE A SCANDAL'

Later, in 1938, he said he "made a scandal" for League of Nations officials "when I told them to unite the whole world against Hitler."

Daetwyler said he flew here from Zurich in the hope that President Johnson would see him during the president's visit to New York Sunday and Monday.

Since Pope Paul also will be in New York Monday, Daetwyler said that perhaps he would see him, too, "if I can."

"I would tell him that we are no Christians, otherwise we would take up no arms in the West."

Daetwyler said he has carried his white flag of peace for thousands of miles —"I couldn't estimate how many!" since he took up his mission.

Has his peace mission produced any results? "Oh yes," he replied. "I have given an example to the world. I am a man with God, and a man with God is mightier than a nation without God."

Family of 10 Slept in Station Wagon

CHICAGO (AP)—A church worker has come to the rescue of a family of 10 which has been sleeping in a station wagon for four weeks because nobody would rent them an apartment.

Landlords have rejected the Kozinski family because it is too big.

But Mrs. Arlene Tomko, a secretary at St. Patrick Church, read about the plight of the John Kozinski family. She took them into the bungalo she shares with her husband, Elmer, a machinist, and their two youngsters.

Kozinski, 38, and his wife, Lorraine, 37, and their eight children, aged 2 to 11, slept Monday night in the basement on a bed and a rug.

It was a penthouse compared to what the Kozinskis have endured since a fire burned them out of their home.

Kozinski makes $24 a day as a boilermaker. They stayed at motels while they had cash. Then they started sleeping in the station wagon in Calumet Park.

They drove to drive-ins for food and visited restrooms in service stations.

Each morning Kozinski drove the nomads to St. Patrick school where five attended classes. His wife, who does not drive, and the three youngest children stayed in the parked station wagon there while Kozinski walked to his job, a 20-minute hike.

Mrs. Tomko said the Kozinskis have leads to some vacant places and hope to find a landlord with a heart big enough for eight youngsters.

CLERIC SUGGESTS:

Sterilize Retarded People

PETERBOROUGH, Ont. (CP)—A United Church minister here thinks retarded persons should be sterilized.

Rev. T. B. Asbell thinks incorrigible persons and habitual criminals should be sterilized, too.

He made these and other suggestions Tuesday in a 20-page private brief to the Ontario legislature's select committee on youth.

Among his other suggestions were:

—Parents should be charged as accessories if their children break the law.

—Sit-ins and protest marches should be curbed.

—Smoking by students and teachers should be prohibited on school property.

—Persons younger than 18 years should not be imprisoned with adults.

Mr. Asbell also wants what he termed pornographic literature removed from Peterborough newsstands because it can be picked up too easily by young people. Some books on sale make Fanny Hill look like a grade school primer, he said.

CHINESE DELEGATION BEGINS TOUR

VANCOUVE (CP)—A seven-man Communist Chinese delegation arrived here Tuesday on an inspection tour of Canadian grain production and shipment facilities.

They were welcomed by W. C. MacNamara, chief commissioner of the Canadian Wheat Board, which is paying expenses of the delegation.

UNDERSTANDING OF HEREDITY?

'Dream Experiment' Now a Success

WASHINGTON (AP) — The National Science Foundation reported Tuesday one of its research - grant teams had achieved the dream experiment of modern biology: artificial production of a self-duplicating substance in a test tube. The substance is an infectious acid similar to one present in a certain living virus.

Without saying so flatly, the announcement indicated that the development, achieved at the University of Illinois, could be a step towards better understanding of heredity and of certain disease processes. And possibly even a step towards the goal of producing living organisms in a test tube.

The achievement was credited to Prof. Sol Spiegelman and four co-workers including two foreign researchers, Ichior Haruna, on leave from Kyoto University, Japan and Ian B. Holland, on leave from the University of Leicester, England.

The scientists synthesized—that is, built up from other materials—a self-propagating, infectious ribonucleic acid.

Ribonucleic acid is one of the key materials of which the genes, or heredity-carrying entities of living cells, including viral cells, are made.

U.K. Labor Backs Wilson on Viet

Peking, Hanoi Blamed by PM

BLACKPOOL, England (CP) — Prime Minister Wilson and his cabinet colleagues today beat down a rebel move in the Labor party against the government's support for United States policy in Viet Nam.

Resolutions at the annual party conference demanding cessation of U.S. bombing raids on North Viet Nam were defeated by big margins after Wilson and Foreign Secretary Michael Stewart argued that such action should be matched by a demand that the Communist withdraw troops and arms from South Viet Nam.

Wilson and Stewart firmly repudiated the riote of anti-Americanism among campaigners for peace in Viet Nam.

"Some who carry banners do not want peace," Wilson said. "They want a Chinese victory on Chinese terms."

Wilson also denied suggestions that the Labor government's policy on Viet Nam was dictated by its dependence on U.S. help in protecting the pound sterling from devaluation during the past year.

"At no time has there been any attempt to link economic strength to any aspect of foreign policy," he said. "This nation is not to be bought. This nation is not to be corrupted."

Ready for Talks Any Time, Place

Wilson insisted he was ready at any time and any place for talks on Viet Nam with Communist Chinese Premier Chou En-lai or Soviet Premier Kosygin "if it will lead to peace."

Earlier Foreign Secretary Michael Stewart appealed for a conference on Viet Nam and called for a speedy end to the fighting there.

Stewart said he wants Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko to join him in calling the Geneva conference on Viet Nam back into session. Gromyko and Stewart are co-chairmen of the Geneva conference.

Wilsbn disclosed that when the pound sterling was recently under pressure—he did not say exactly when — the U.S. had asked Britain to put troops in South Viet Nam.

"We turned them down," he said. "And there was never any attempt to link this with economic co-operation."

Wilson urged his followers to accept that in its quest for peace the British government had been as active in Washington as it has been in other capitals.

"We have spoken up frankly in Washington on what we have felt about the use of napalm and the use of gas in Viet Nam," he said.

He squarely placed the blame for the continuation of what he called "a brutal and a bloody war" on the Communist side and more directly on the Hanoi and Peking regimes. They were against peace talks, he asserted. And he added:

"The enemies of negotiations are the enemies of peace."

Cut In Arms Spending Approved

Stewart preceded Wilson to the rostrum. The foreign secretary predicted the war in Viet Nam would be settled sooner or later by a compromise leaving the divided country neutralized.

"Since this is the sort of solution that will emerge in the end, I say why not now before more lives are lost," he said.

The conference approved by a show of hands a resolution urging a drastic reduction in military spending. An amendment calling specifically for a £500,000,000 ($1,500,000,000) a year cut was rejected.

Wilson in his speech declared that by 1970 Britain's defence budget would be no more than £2,000,000,000 ($6,000,000,000) a year. The estimate for the current year is £2,120,500,000.

The delegates also debated one of the issues that has caused a deep split in party ranks—the government's immigration policy.

A resolution urging the government to withdraw its curbs on Commonwealth immigration was defeated.

Left-wing Labor members of Parliament backed the move to rescind the government's new 8,500-a-year limit on work permits for immigrants from the British Commonwealth.

Opponents of the new regulation charge it embodies a form of racial discrimination and is aimed at preventing any substantial increase in the size of Britain's non-white population. The government has denied the charge. There are about 1,000,000 non-whites in Britain.

BY RED CHINA

U.S. Invited To Die

By VERGIL BERGER

PEKING (Reuters) — China invited the United States to invade it tomorrow — and be wiped out.

Foreign Minister Marshal Chen Yi climaxed a marathon press conference here today by shouting:

"I hope that tomorrow U.S. imperialists will come to China.

"Let them come when they like. Let the Indians come with them. Let the British come too. Let the (Soviet) revisionist leaders in the north combine with them."

For the U.S. and its "puppets" to send a few million troops would not be enough, Chen said.

Racing ahead of his interpreter and waving his arms, he said China would recognize no limits nor restrictions in the pursuit of the Americans who would be "thoroughly wiped out."

300 REPORTERS ATTEND

Chen's outburst came as he was talking about Viet Nam and alleging that the U.S. used Hong Kong as "an American base."

In an unprecedented series of policy declarations in answer to questions from some of the 300 correspondents who attended his four-hour press conference, the Chinese leader:

1. Demanded an assurance of success in advance if China were to support the holding of the second Afro-Asian summit conference in Algiers this fall.

2. Expressed the hope that more Asian and African nations would develop their own nuclear weapons on a "do-it-yourself basis."

3. Set two new stiff conditions for Peking's acceptance of a seat in the United Nations in the event of the Chinese Nationalists being voted out. These are: The world body would have to declare openly that the UN resolution condemning China for aggression in the Korean War was wrong; all countries should review the UN charter together, all independent countries should then be admitted and all "imperialist puppet states" should be driven out.

ATTACK U THANT

In a bitter attack on both the UN and its secretary-general U Thant, Chen said neither should have anything to do with the Afro-Asian conference.

The U.S. and the UN were identical — "the head of the United Nations is the United States, not U Thant."

China, Chen said, has nothing to gain for itself at the Afro-Asian conference, but he feels that unless the parley's main purpose is an open condemnation of U.S. imperialism, it would be better to postpone the meeting "until conditions are right."

VISIT to London next week by Rhodesian Prime Minister Ian Smith is anticipated by British cabinet ministers. Talks would concern independence for his internally-self-governing colony, British sources said.

WIRE BRIEFS

Last Rebels Pressed

LEOPOLDVILLE (UPI) — Two mercenary-led columns were reported advancing today over rugged mountainous terrain toward the last rebel stronghold in the eastern Congo after capturing an important town in heavy fighting.

Ford Drops Prices

DETROIT (UPI) — Ford Motor Co. of the U.S. today announced prices for its 1966 model cars that are slightly below comparably equipped 1965 models.

Flooding Threatens

PENSACOLA, Fla. (AP) — Tropical storm Debbie, its faltering winds reduced to 45 miles an hour, hung off the Alabama-Florida Gulf of Mexico coast today. Forecasters saw local flooding as its worst threat if the storm moved inland.

'Candy' Obscene

REGINA (CP)—Saskatchewan District Court Judge R. H. McClelland of Regina has filed judgment declaring the novel, Candy, obscene, as defined by the criminal code of Canada. The code says a publication is obscene when a dominant characteristic is undue exploitation of sex.

Subway Opening Set

TORONTO (CP)—The $160,000,000 east-west subway, now under construction, will officially open Feb. 26, the Toronto Transit Commission announced today. The opening of the eight-mile subway had been scheduled for Dec. 31 but was delayed because of construction strikes.

'Infiltrators' Leave; Homes, Bridges Burn

NEW DELHI (UPI)—India said today fighting continued in the Sind Desert but reported 1,000 Pakistani infiltrators were withdrawing from Kashmir. It said they were burning bridges and houses as they left.

The defence ministry also accused Pakistani of loosing what it called "bad characters" to loot Indian villages in the Khem-Karan sector of the Lahore front in areas still under Pakistan control

By CONRAD FINK

NEW DELHI (AP)—The outceasefire remained bleak today as both sides made new demands and neither showed any signs of withdrawing from positions seized during their undeclared war.

A spokesman for the Indian foreign office said the withdrawal of armed personnel should include an estimated 3,000 guerrillas which the Indians claim Pakistan trained, equipped and sent into the Indian sector of Kashmir for subversion and sabotage.

Pakistan has denied the Indian claim, contending that the guerrillas whose operations touched off the war are Kashmiri nationalists fighting for freedom from Indian control.

Reuters news agency quoted an authoritative Indian source as saying Tuesday night that India would keep its forces on the ceasefire line in West Pakistan despite the United Nations demand that both sides honor the conditions of the ceasefire, which called for all troops to be pulled back to the positions of Aug. 5.

The source estimated that 5,000 guerrillas invaded the Indian-held part of Kashmir last August and 3,000 still remain. The source said the infiltrators were hiding in forest areas but held fortified positions and some were being supplied by air drops.

The source added, however, that although the ceasefire that came into effect last week was an uneasy one, India expected it to last.

Indian Prime Minister Shastri told reporters the most urgent task facing the UN Security Council "is to ask Pakistan to desist from its declared path of aggression."

Shastri said Pakistan had been threatening in the Security Council to unleash a wider conflagration if its desires were not met. He said India had acepted the ceasefire vote by the council "in complete good faith, unconditionally but not unilaterally."

Shastri said Indian forces were under strict orders not to violate the ceasefire, but he added: "Indian forces are under instructions to defend themselves wherever and whenever attacked by Pakistan."

AVOID resorting to force, French Foreign Minister Maurice Couve de Murville told the United Nations today in a major policy speech. He said the world organization not only lacks the material means for military action but such action would result in disuniting the UN.

New Tensions Building

SANTO DOMINGO (UPI)—A heated confrontation between Provisional President Hector Garcia Godoy and powerful Dominican military leaders created new political tension in this divided capital today.

AIR UNIT DEPARTS

TRENTON, Ont. (CP)—The 117th air transport unit, a nine-aircraft formation mobilized Thursday to operate out of Rawalpindi, Pakistan, left here today on an 18-hour flight to the area.

Departure of the unit, controlled operationally by the United Nations, was two hours late due to heavy fog which delayed the three Hercules transports and six Otter utility aircraft.

'Prevent India From Moving In'

UNITED NATIONS (UPI)—Pakistan declared today that it would not withdraw its forces from Kashmir unless a UN peace force or other machinery is present to prevent India from moving in.

Pakistani Foreign Minister Zulfikar Al Bhutto said today Pakistan was not interested in offers by Russia and Canada to mediate its Kashmir dispute with India until the security council had exhausted all efforts to settle it.

He said Pakistani President Mohammed Ayub Khan had accepted President Johnson's invitation for a visit to the United States and would come to the United Nations when he came to this country.

But, Bhutto said, Ayub is commander-in-chief of Pakistan's armed forces as well as its president and could not leave the country in the present emergency.

Bhutto said Pakistan stood ready to implement fully the security council resolutions which call on it and India to honor a ceasefire, withdraw all forces to posiitons held at the outset of hostilities on Aug. 5, and consider steps for a political settlement of the future of the disputed former princely state.

"But," he added, "it is dangerous to create a vacuum. If we withdraw our forces from Kashmir, India will fill the vacuum.

"We will not vacate unless machinery is brought in to take its place on the ground. This could be a UN force or any other machinery."

Ottawa to Continue Giving Housing Aid

TORONTO (CP)—Prime Minister Pearson said today the objective of decent housing "simply has to be achieved in our democratic society."

In a non-political speech to the Ontario Association of Housing Authorities, Mr. Pearson said the federal government will continue to pour millions of dollars into housing.

"Do we have to organize everything today by state action in the interests of mechanical efficiency which will ultimately reduce us all to cyphers in an equation? I hope not.

"Voluntary and private action, however, will be quite inadequate without governmental support and assistance."

Mr. Pearson said "we no longer accept the fact that skid row and Park Avenue should co-exist."

PRETTY SQUEEZE-PLAY ON BA

Bunnies Hop Picket Line

CLARKSON, Ont. (CP) — Two bunny girls paraded on behalf of 380 striking oil refinery workers in a picket line set up today in front of the downtown Toronto headquarters of British-American Oil Co. Ltd.

The girls, members of the American Guild of Variety Artists (CLC) carried signs reading: "B-A stop hopping around. Bargain."

The workers went on strike against the B-A refinery here Sept. 15 for higher wages and certain fringe benefits. About 800 of the company's hourly-paid workers are on strike at several refineries and storage depots in other parts of Ontario, Saskatchewan and British Columbia. They are members of the Oil, Chemical and Atomic Workers Union (CLC).

John Kane, president of Clarkson local 9-593, said B-A is running the refinery here with salaried personnel brought from across Canada and is ignoring its striking workers.

"We will use the 'don't buy B-A' campaign to bring the company to the bargaining table," he said.

Security Force Makes History

United Press International

NEW YORK — The largest security force ever assembled here will be on duty next Monday when Pope Paul makes his unprecedented visit to the UN and confers for an hour with President Johnson.

Johnson and the Pope, who will spend 13½ hours in the city, will meet in the Waldorf-Astoria suite of U.S. Ambassador to the United Nations Arthur J. Goldberg, beginning at 12:30 p.m. (EDT). The president, who arrives Sunday night, is expected to leave the city shortly after the visit with the Pope.

Eighteen thousand police will be on duty at a cost of an estimated $1 million in overtime pay. In addition, secret service agents, FBI agents and Port of New York Authority policemen will be used. The security force will dwarf those assigned during the visits of Khrushchev and Castro.

A total of 10,000 men will line the 24-mile route between Kennedy airport, where the Pope arrives at 9:30 a.m., and St. Patrick's Cathedral and residence house, which the Pontiff will use as headquarters.

The Pontiff in adidtion to seeing Johnson will make a two-hour motorcade tour of the city including Harlem and Central Park, address the United Nations on behalf of world peace, recite low mass at Yankee Stadium in evening and meet with representatives of other faiths.

There's almost as much shootin' durin' th' Kashmir truce as there wuz durin' th' peace.

Victoria Daily Times

VICTORIA B.C., WEDNESDAY, SEPTEMBER 29, 1965 —PAGE 23

Arthur Mayse

If you follow the market quotations which this newspaper serves hot off the exchanges, you may have puzzled over the fact that Consolidated Moonshine, which was racking up points a few weeks ago, is now plummeting as if someone had forgotten to yank the rip-cord.

I have been given reasons for this descent, all of which would carry conviction were the authentic answer not burning large, black-edged holes in my soul.

That stock dived because two presumably adult, considerably experienced people kidded themselves into believing they could lick the whammy that moves in to jinx them when they trifle with the market.

We had burned our fingers often enough to know better. After our last round of buying at the top and selling at the bottom, we vowed no siren song would ever again enchant us.

Let others drop their money down some hole at the end of a jeep trail. Next time we found ourselves with dollars to gamble, we'd wing them from a starting gate on the hose of a worthy thoroughbred.

★ ★ ★

This wasn't a hasty decision. Implementing it, in fact, were ventures that range all the way back to the flyer in an unlisted wildcat which we'll title Muskaluska.

This jewel in Bay Street's not-untarnished crown was bound to make us rich.

"Hang on till Christmas," we were told, "and you'll make the price of a Packard. Ride through till Easter, and you can order up a Rolls-Royce!"

Our oracle stopped there for lack of superlatives. A couple of weeks after we'd plunged, Muskaluska stopped too, with shattering finality. Tucked away somewhere, we still have a certificate attesting the fact that we own a 500-share portion of its barren quartz.

There were others. More non-metalliferous mines. Oil probings that never fetched the drillers more than mud in the face.

We could, of course, have listened to our broker when he suggested that New Bonanza might prove a doubtful prospect. But, heck, it was so much more fun to tag along with the Old Prospector.

This character appears in many likenesses. He may come in the guise of a friend whose wife got word of the big strike from her hairdresser, who is second cousin to the mine manager.

He may be a successful seeming type met casually on ship or plane.

Whatever his camouflage, he's the guy who knows where the high grade is, and who is going to bring it out, and what it will be selling for a year from next Tuesday.

Once when fortune had favored us with a stake somewhat larger than our necessities required, we decided to spurn Consolidated Moonshine and play it safe with a blue-chip investment.

That one was safe, alright. A couple of years later, our dough, with a miniscule increase, was all over blue mould. So we took it out of bondage and put it to brisker uses, which as I recall, included a disastrous flyer in penny stocks.

★ ★ ★

But now we're through with all that! The spectacle of Consolidated Moonshine tobogganing down the chute has finally and completely cured us.

One of these bland and hazy Indian summer afternoons, we will pouch what we can from the wreckage, and slip away to Sandown.

There, heedless of the tips that drift to and fro on the breeze, we will study every factor that bears on the outcome of each horse race.

Having made our choices, we will not depart from them, even though some steed that looks as if he could outrun the best should poke his nose over the paddock rail and whisper, "It's me all the way in the fifth!"

Then we'll watch them run, and holler them home, and win or lose, we'll get our money's worth.

As for the Old Prospector, next time he turns up on our doorstep croaking for water, we'll turn a hose on him.

But not, of course, until he's revealed the precise location of the Mother Lode.

WOODEN NICKELS—NO. Wooden cheques—Yes. It's good at any (bank) branch according to Nan Elliott. It better be, because Nan chipped this one in to the United Appeal today on behalf of Uvic students who took part in a log-saw Saturday. This sizeable chunk is worth $204.19. "We'll soon chop it up," quipped deputy appeal chairman J. R. Noble who received the cheque from Nan, Students' Council secretary. More than 400 students took part in the annual event of cutting and selling beach wood at Clover Point. (Times Photo.)

RCMP Probe Sniping At Oil Tank Truck

Five Bullets Hit Vehicle Near Duncan

RCMP Tuesday began an investigation into the sniping attack on a British American Oil tank truck on the Trans-Canada Highway five miles south of Duncan Monday night.

Five bullets from a high-powered rifle were pumped into the back of the empty tanker as it was returning from a delivery run to Lake Cowichan shortly before 11 p.m.

The shots were believed to have come from a following car which turned off on a side road after the shots were fired.

The slugs ripped through the rear of the truck and three inner compartments.

The driver and a passenger, both salesmen for B-A, were not injured.

B.C. company manager J. T. Lockhart said Tuesday: "We can only think the shots were fired because of the strike."

B-A employees are striking for an added 55 cents an hour over a two-year contract on their basic wage of $2.75 an hour.

Anti-automation job security is also an important part of the dispute.

The ambushed truck was the first scheduled out on a night-run since the strike began.

"Some kind of emergency came up and we decided to provide the service with this run," said a B-A official. "Normally we have only been working during the day.

SECURITY PRECAUTIONS

"Some security precautions may have to be taken to protect our personnel, after all, they are only doing a job."

Officials said there could have been a serious explosion.

"An empty gasoline truck is just as dangerous because of the fumes," he said.

In another development Tuesday, Imperial Oil Co. had suspended at least 22 of its workers for refusing to handle the trucks of two transport companies the union has accused of handling "hot" B-A products.

The OCAW has served strike notice on Imperial, Shell and Standard refineries in B.C. but so far has not struck those companies.

In Vancouver, R. T. Philp, international representative for the striking Oil, Chemical Union, dismissed the idea that automation is no great factor in the strike.

"If it isn't a key issue, why does the company refuse to write anything about it in the contract?" he said.

Campaign Office

Campaign headquarters will be opened Friday by George Chatterton, Progressive Conservative MP for Esquimalt-Saanich in the last Parliament.

The office is in the Shelbourne Plaza.

DAMAGE TO A B-A OIL CO. tanker which was fired on Monday night is examined by company officials and RCMP. Five bullets from a high-powered rifle were fired into the rear of the empty truck as it was returning to Victoria from a delivery run to Lake Cowichan.

FLUORIDES REJECTED BY OAK BAY IN 1959

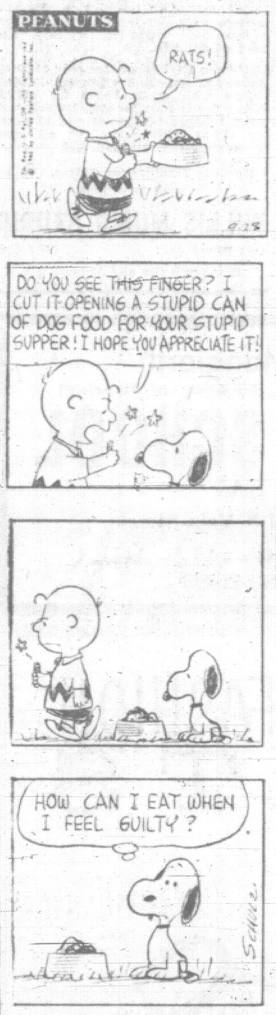

Through an error in checking records, an item in the Times Monday stated that Oak Bay voters approved fluoridation in 1959.

Referring to an area-wide referendum, the report incorrectly said Oak Bay had passed the question and the other Greater Victoria municipalities turned it down.

The facts were that Oak Bay voters came closest to approving domestic water fluorides as an anti-tooth decay measure, voting 2,109 against and 1,543 for the proposal.

Victoria voters rejected it by a 7-4 margin, and collectively, Oak Bay, Saanich and Esquimalt voted against fluordination by a 13-8 margin.

Oak Bay votes again on the subject Dec. 4.

IT'S HERE TO STAY

Automation: We Can Only Delay Its Run

By BOB DONAHUE

Automation is here to stay—are you?

This ominous message appeared recently on the desk of New York economist Robert Theobald, an expert on the effects of a computerized society.

The meaning of the message was clear following an address by Mr. Theobald to delegates attending the American Public Welfare conference at the Empress Hotel today.

"Whatever we do, we can only succeed in delaying the inevitable; the attempt to keep demand growing as fast as supply to create jobs will inevitably fail.

"The effects of the computer in developing abundance and eliminating jobs will inevitably exceed our capacity to create jobs," said Mr. Theobald.

The situation will continue to deteriorate if present trends continue, he said. Eventually there will be large numbers of totally unemployed workers subsisting on government schemes; the greatest proportion of the population will work shorter hours and a small number of people with the highest level of education will be drastically overworked for very high salaries.

MISLEADING

"The recent downward drift of the unemployment rate is misleading. It results in part from distortion of economic activity due to strikes and threats of strikes, and it also reflects the discouragement and defeat of people who cannot find employment and have ceased to look for a job.

"An older person may choose to call himself retired and retain some of his tattered dignity rather than look for a job that doesn't exist.

"We have just begun to worry about the unskilled who are going to lose their jobs," said Mr. Theobald. "But we haven't even begun to comprehend the fact that a very wide range of middle-income jobs are going to be computerized.

"This group is going to create a drastic problem in the next 10 years.

"It is neither socially wise nor politically feasible to allow middle-income people to drop to the poverty level.

"We will have to accept methods of maintaining their income.

"As soon as a guaranteed income and committed spending are available, the individual would be able to break out of the consumption race.

"He will be able to say 'I opt out' because he will be entitled to an income.

"We could thus set free enormous potential energy and imagination to solve our urgent problems."

LOCAL SHIP MOVEMENTS

Saanich Launches Last-Ditch Bid To Keep Own Courtroom Facilities

A special closed meeting of Saanich council was held for several hours Tuesday night on the current magistrate's court controversy.

The meeting followed comments by Magistrate William Ostler that it was not entirely his decision to hold court in the city after Friday.

Reeve Hugh Curtis said this morning he cannot make any comment.

"We set out several steps last night," he said, "and these have to take place one at a time.

"Each step depends on the preceding step."

He confirmed a report that Saanich is sending a further communication to the attorney-general's department, but declined to say what is in it.

FIRST COMMENT

Magistrate Ostler made his first comment on the subject Tuesday afternoon when he declined a request from prosecutor Kenneth Murphy to hold an adjourned Saanich case in Saanich court.

After Friday, all cases at the central magistrate's court now held in Saanich will be heard in the new courtroom adjacent to the renovated police station by Centennial Square.

The move has been protested by Saanich, which wants its cases heard in its own courtroom completed just three years ago at a cost of $50,000.

Magistrate Ostler said the attorney-general has appointed a district magistrate for an area which is the county of Victoria.

"Now, as far as I am concerned, as the district magistrate so appointed, I will be sitting on and after the 1st of October in the courthouse on Fisgard Street in the city of Victoria, by the direction of the Hon. Attorney-General," he said.

"As I understand, and I sincerely desire to keep out of this matter entirely, I will confine myself to my magisterial duties and I regret being involved in any public way with this matter.

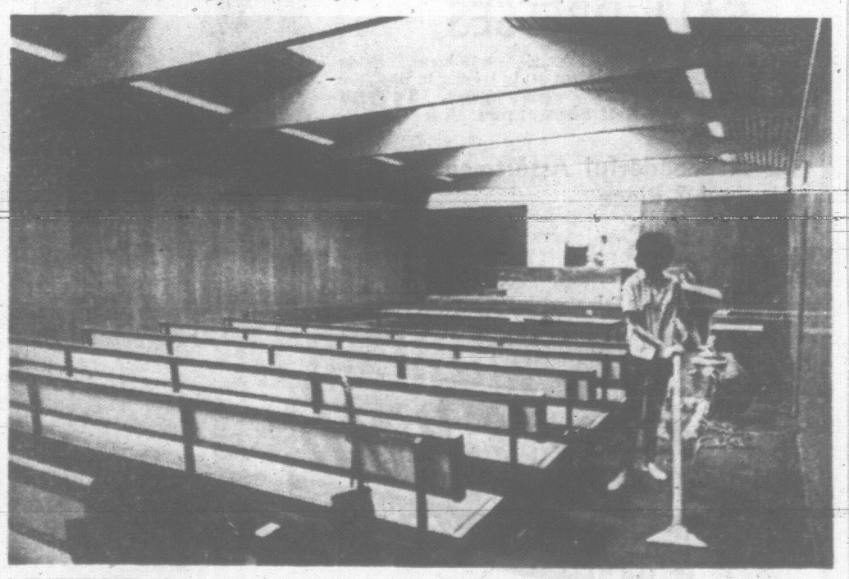

"I can only sit in one place and I am to sit on Fisgard Street as I have said."

Prosecutor Murphy quoted a section of the Municipal Act and said no copy of an agreement between Victoria and Saanich for the new facilities has been filed with the attorney-general.

Magistrate Ostler replied that while physical facilities are provided in Saanich, they do not make a court but simply provide a courtroom.

Attorney-General Robert Bonner was away from Victoria and could not be reached for comment. His deputy, Dr. Gilbert Kennedy, declined comment.

But two weeks ago, Reeve Curtis said he had received a letter from Dr. Kennedy which advised him it was the magistrate's decision to move downtown.

INTERIOR of the main magistrate's court of Greater Victoria, opening Friday, reflects modern functionalism in its design, bright lighting and airy ceiling. As in city hall legislative wing, across Centennial Square, finishing work for the dais, desks and enclosures is built-in and made of fine wood. Like the higher courts, there is carpeting on the floor — a first for municipal courts in this area.

Word Thursday On Sooke Incorporation

A fact-finding committee will announce its decision on Thursday whether the unorganized district of Sooke should become a village or district municipality.

If the answer is yes, a note on incorporation is expected within three months.

Chairman John W. Keating said today the department of municipal affairs favors incorporation.

The committee, composed of representatives of Sooke organizations has been studying incorporation for several months.

It's main problem has been to decide between village status and incorporation as a district municipality. Some members fear the latter would mean Sooke would have to take over and pay for policing and welfare.

But a government official has advised the committee that a municipality may be exempted from paying for the administration of justice and welfare if its population does not exceed 2,500 and land improvements taxable for school purposes do not exceed $2,500 per person.

Sooke's population is 1,900.

TREE FARM DECISION SURPRISE

The Tahsis Company today was granted an extension to its tree farm licence, but the company received much less than it applied for.

Lands and Forests Minister Ray Williston, in a surprise decision, eliminated more than half the 100,000 acres sought by the company.

Tahsis wanted the timber to help support its 750-ton kraft pulp mill being built at Gold River on Vancouver Island.

In lieu of the 51,600 acres he eliminated from the application, Mr. Williston added four small parcels along the western boundary of Tahsis' present licence.

Tahsis president J. V. Christensen said the terms were "a complete surprise."

"We will give the decision our best attention," he said.

Cafe Drinks All Right With Church?

Churchman today indicated there may be less opposition to liquor in McPherson Playhouse restaurant than there was to a proposed bar in the civic foyer.

"It may seem like hair-splitting, but there's a subtle difference here," said First United Church minister Rev. R. J. D. Morris.

"We do have licensed restaurants in the city, and this is like another city restaurant."

Last spring, when more than 10 church groups petitioned against the idea of liquor in the playhouse, Mr. Morris' congregation made the point that a bar in the foyer would be widening the area of liquor distribution.

"A restaurant license is a different affair," said Presbyterian Church minister Rev. J. L. W McLean.

"There are laws governing the licensing of restaurants, and if this one conforms, then a licence could be granted.

"The other matter would have been widening of the law.

"I don't think it is our business to say how the existing law should be interpreted or applied," Dr. McLean said.

Mr. Morris added:

"I don't think the theatre restaurant should be barred from having a licence when others in the city have them. Treat it like any other restaurant in the community."

Man Fined $250, For Contributing

Wallace Henderson Young was fined $250 in police court today for contributing to juvenile delinqenucy by supplying liquor to a 14-year-old.

He was also bound over to keep the peace for six months and was ordered to turn over to the police chief his driver's licence.

Young was charged after he telephoned police to report he could not get a boy out of his car. When police arrived, they found the youth inebriated.

LIQUIDATION

Nearly 60 Lose Jobs At City Firm

The 53-year-old Victoria firm, Pacific Sheet Metal, at 1009 Yates Street, is now in liquidation.

A receiving order has been issued against the firm and Ian H. Bell of Vancouver has been appointed official receiver.

A rumor that Pacific Sheet Metal had been bought by a Vancouver firm was denied by Mr. Bell today.

"We are trying to arrange a sale in Victoria," he said. "That is all I can say at present.

Meantime, most of the 60 craftsmen employed by the firm have been laid off. But the premises at 1009 Yates Street are still in operation.

The firm was started as a small sheet metal shop on Fort Street, by the late Percy Little, in 1912. It grew into the Pacific Sheet Metal Ltd. and, just before the Second World War, was sold to Western Steel Ltd.

SOLD BACK

Afterwards, Western Steel sold it back to Pacific Sheet Metal.

Last April, Herbert Playsted, general manager, flew to Boston and secured a $30,000 contract with the Industrial Air Company of Boston.

Pacific Sheet Metal also received a $160,000 contract for the production of ventilation and air-conditioning equipment for Victoria's new YMCA building, and a $108,000 contract for ventilating and roof work at St. Joseph's Hospital.

Hunter Fined For Failing To Cancel Tag

A Victoria hunter today was fined $25 for failing to cancel a deer tag after shooting a deer.

Wesley Allan Mottishaw, 1228 Pembroke, pleaded guilty to the charge, first of its kind on Vancouver Island this season.

The hunter was checked Sunday on Sooke Road by conservation officer Jack Lenfesty without the date clipped off his deer tag.

Magistrate D. G. Ashby also ordered the deer confiscated.

Ask The Times

Q — What is the meaning of the name Saanich? D.P.

A — It has two meanings, "rising" and "always ready" or "always on the lookout," accordnig to provincial archives.

The first pertains to an Indian legend, that Mount Newton (named Saanich mountain by the Indians) was not covered by the great flood in the time of Noah.

The second meaning refers to the wary thunderbird, the great power of the Indians.

Anyone wishing a question answered is invited to send the problem along to the Times, addressed to "Ask the Times" Editor. Questions and answers will be published daily.

All questions should deal with matters of fact and be of general interest. The Times does not undertake to solve conundrums or legal problems. Nor will it attempt to put a value on old coins, stamps or antiques. These should be submitted to a dealer.

Do Canadian Voters Look For Strong Leadership?

By DOUGLAS FISHER
Former NDP MP for Port Arthur

Do Canadians want strong leadership? I sense that party is becoming less important, the leader more important to the average voter. So many voters seem to feel the country is in a bind between internal Quebec pressure and external American influence. Won't someone show them the way out from between these forces? Television prompts the voter to look to one because it focusses so much on the party leader. When were solid politicians like Mike Starr, Arthur Laing, Stanley Knowles and Alvin Hamilton last shown at any length on TV news?

Fisher

Despite this emphasis on party leaders there is skepticism and cynicism about leaders in Canada. Many of the party faithful in each party have to keep reassuring their acquaintances that their particular leader is just great.

Much of the skepticism is of recent origin. It was in 1957 and 1958 that the intense TV intimacy with leaders got under way—with a bang; An unprecedented number of Canadians turned to a new prime minister who held out the hope that Canadians could do grand things. He offered a "vision." What followed faded into fratricidal argument and cabinet conflict.

Much less certain, Canadians turned in 1963 to another leader, a Nobel Peace Prize winner. He was presented as a man "leading a team" who would bring back the C. D. Howe days of "administrative expertise." "Sixty days of decision!"

★ ★ ★

The crisp promise faded into a succession of parliamentary crises. Twice-bitten, twice given less authority in direct leadership than expected, the voters may shy away the third time.

And yet, they want leadership. In the earlier days of my generation, in fact until recent date, there were few qualifications upon our pride in being Canadians. Then relations with a quiescent Quebec were a periodic, not a constant problem. American civilization pressed less heavily upon us.

Whatever the verdict of historians when they sum up these post-war years, their concern is certain to be with the failure to establish a national direction and identity. They will examine our leadership. Let us anticipate them, with an opinion and a comparison of the leaders of the three parties which will contend in most of the ridings.

First, it is fairly clear that Lester Pearson and Tommy Douglas inspire almost fanatical loyalty in their followers while John Diefenbaker, on the record, has excited rather enthusiastic disloyalty. Of course, the record does show that Canadian Conservatives have a tradition of devouring their leaders. The success of Mr. Pearson in this aspect of leadership is more surprising. He is not what comes to mind when one thinks of a "true leader"; there isn't any suggestion of "charisma" about him; nor do Canadian Liberals remind one of a host of "true believers."

To understand Mr. Pearson, one must never forget his training as a history student, teacher, and as a civil servant. He amasses information, weighs the pros and the cons, and then tends to feel his job is done. For example, he shared with the public much of his agony over whether to call this election. Even in announcing the election on television he was weighing the "fors" and "againsts."

Mr. Diefenbaker is no mediator; he is the prosecutor, the cross-examiner. Not for him the bulging brief case! Two or three arguments will do, spun out in a familiar liturgy: ". . . they said we were wrong . . .; "they were against it . . ." The continuity of the argument can largely disappear, often in brilliant asides, but the chorus is consistent.

Just as Mr. Pearson must possess all the pros and cons, just as Mr. Diefenbaker is content with two or three simple arguments, Mr. Douglas is obsessed with the general idea, the philosophy behind the matter, and especially in its embodiment in a clear policy. He is policy-conscious and much more the classic politician in the British style. He demands working papers from his aides on almost every subject in order to have a policy which expresses the general viewpoint of his party on the subject. This is a characteristic of left of centre parties everywhere.

★ ★ ★

Many journalists have noted that Mr. Pearson is "paralyzed" in the Commons by the leader of the opposition. It doesn't follow that Mr. Pearson would act much differently if faced with another opposition leader less convinced of his sense of destiny. The PM hates electioneering, dislikes partisan controversy, admires reasonableness. The rip of party fighting conflicts with his long career training.

What are the main fields of interest of the leaders?

Mr. Pearson is intent on foreign affairs, English-French relations, and the civil service. With Mr. Diefenbaker, it is justice and agriculture. With Mr. Douglas it is federal-provincial relations, welfare and, increasingly, the national economy.

★ ★ ★

The main weakness of both the major party leaders is a common one of Canadian politicians. It is economics. Mr. Pearson is vaguely Keynesian and Mr. Diefenbaker indistinctly Adam Smithian, with a dash of William Jennings Bryan. Mr. Douglas has his teeth into the new economic orthodoxy of Samuelson and Gunnar Myrdahl, giving him an academic advantage that is not popularily recognized. An Ottawa wag has said that "Pearson doesn't have to know anything about economics because he has Walter Gordon behind him, and Gordon doesn't have to know anything about economics because he has John Diefenbaker in front of him."

Mr. Douglas has two weaknesses. In foreign affairs "Sawdust Ceasar" still comes too easily to his lips. There are still sawdust Ceasars to be dealt with but you can leave the impression that you have mixed up your priorities in the modern world. The evidence isn't too clear but another weakness may be a failure to discriminate between different elements in the labor movement. (This will be the subject of a later column.)

Demand for Indian A-Bomb Increased by Pakistan War

By SELIG S. HARRISON
The Washington Post

NEW DELHI—Prime Minister Lal Bahadur Shastri had just announced the cease-fire ending the Indo-Pakistan war. As he gathered up his papers and turned toward the Parliament corridors, K. C. Pant, the influential young secretary of Shastri's governing Congress Party, dashed after the prime minister and handed him an envelope with a big red seal.

What Shastri carried away to his office was an appeal by 106 members of parliament—from the Hindu nationalist An Sangh (Peoples Party) on the right to the Communists—demanding a crash program to make nuclear weapons. Nearly 80 congress deputies joined in the manifesto, which attacked the great powers for their neutrality in the war and declared that "the security of India can no longer be left to the mercy or whim of the so-called friendly countries."

Index of Change

The rapid crystalization of sentiment last week for a nuclear program as part of a general militarization is an index of the profound change in the mood of the country generated by the war. India has thrown off much of the defeatism left by the Chinese military successes of 1962, and the question people are asking is not whether the war with Pakistan should have been fought but whether it should have been stopped so soon. It is widely assumed that this was only round one in what will be an intermittent struggle over a period of years to decide the regional balance of power in South Asia.

Even if the military postmortems gradually reveal somewhat less of a resounding Indian triumph than the nationalist press here has trumpeted so far, the mere fact that the Shastri government had the grit to respond with a counterattack in the Punjab folowing the Sept. 1 Pakistani armored offensive in southern Kashmir has given the country an enormous lift. India has lived in psychological misery for the past decade in the face of an assertive Pakistani posture on Kashmir and other issues which implied in Indian eyes an unforgivable lack of deference on the part of their considerably smaller neighbor. The defensive stance of the Indian Army during the Kutch crisis in May left the country seething and very nearly resulted in a serious challenge to Shastri's leadership by hard-line Hindu leader Morarji Desai at the Bangalore Congress session in July.

Outraged

For the army, in particular, the deepening sense of outrage at Pakistani "provocations" was compounded by the fact that Rawalpindi's posture was backed up by U.S. arms which were more sophisticated than anything in Indian arsenals. "They used to put their American tanks out in front," remarked a general's wife, "and say 'This shall be done'."

Now that the army's image has been more or less restored, the country, too, has regained some of its self-respect and is searching for ways to make the world acknowledge India as the central power in South Asia. This is where the bomb comes in. Economist Ra Krishna, a leading advocate of an Indian nuclear build-up, likens India to an individual who has shaken off an inferiority complex and feels impelled to prove his new strength dramatically in a spiral of ambitious ventures. "This is all to the good," he argues. "We believed the BBC when it ran down the Indian army and gave us the image of the spindly-legged Hindu. With this out of our minds, we can get down to work and build."

In contrast to the transient and superficial sense of national unity felt here in 1962 after the attack by China—a relatively unknown and distant enemy—the conflict with Pakistan has touched visceral feelings focused on an old, familiar rival. Together, Pakistan and China are evoking a spirit of Indian unity surpassing the spirit of '62 yet it is far from clear whether this wartime nationalist feeling can be transferred to peacetime as a constructive force. Many observers are concerned that Indian leaders may instead fall into the habit of using the Pakistan bogey as a diversion for failures of leadership on the home front—gradually embracing a negative, belligerently Hindu nationalism.

Secularism

India gave a resounding demonstration of its secularism by getting through the war period without communal disturbances. It appears obvious though, that this was made easier by the fact that the country suffered no serious reverses. Hindu nationalists could afford to be large-hearted in a time of success. There have also been discernible anti-Moslem undercurrents in the statements of some local politicians. And one of the more significant political changes growing out of the war has been the new respectability conferred overnight on Hindu nationalist groups.

Shastri included the leader of the para-military, Hindu extremist Rashtriya Swayamsevak Sangh (RSS)—who had been blackballed in Nehru's day—in his war briefings with opposition leaders. To the distress of Moslems, RSS "volunteers" took over traffic management in parts of Delhi to free the police for civilian defence duties. The RSS and its political offshoot, the An Sangh, appear to be gaining sympathizers rapidly in the North Indian political climate accompanying tension with Pakistan.

Economically, experts say, the full impact of the war is not likely to be felt for months until shortages resulting from the emergency military procurement and defense production of recent weeks eat into reserve stocks of scarce raw materials such as zinc, copper and alloy steels. Initial economic dislocations have resulted mainly from transportation snafus. With railroads taken over for troop movements and trucks commandeered in many areas for defence purposes, many industrial firms have found their deliveries behind schedule. But there has been a compensating effect in a spurt of defence contracts and in the unloading of blackmarket hoards by traders briefly caught up in the wave of patriotic sentiment.

Clamor for Arms

The most serious economic implications of the war do not lie in the damage done to the civilian economy during the period of the fighting but rather in the growing clamor to increase future defence spending—or at least to rebuild the Indian army to what it was before the conflict started.

No one seeks to disguise the continuing hopes entertained here that U.S. and Soviet help will make it possible to have both guns and butter. Where the present atmosphere differs from what has been known in the past, though, is that a growing number of people now feel India should try to go its own way whether or not the great powers help.

Bishops Set Church On Road to Freedom

By GEORGE ARMSTRONG
Manchester Guardian

ROME—One of those now familiar midnight manoeuvres—when it appears that the Curia is determined to live up to its worst publicity—was stopped by the Pope himself.

The Curia and its fearless band, The Glorious Minority, as they call themselves, had devised a plan which would have resulted in the document on religious liberty not being brought to a vote, at least at this time and in its present form.

Meeting early in the morning with the Council's four moderators and his personal theologian, Cardinal Colombo of Milan, the Pope decided that it was time for him to stop the manoeuvre.

●

The issue of religious liberty, after four years' deliberation and four days of debate, should be brought to a vote. Not a final vote, but a vote of simple approval of the basic outline from which the final, doctrinal decree will be taken. The vote was called: 1,997 bishops in favor, 224 opposed.

Everyone seemed greatly cheered with the hurdle behind them and with no attempt at any secondary manoeuvre to take the draft out of the hands of its original authors. The same small group of two bishops and five periti (experts in the material) will now prepare the final version. This cannot differ much from the version approved.

For Pope Paul's forthcoming trip to the United Nations, the vote will be a handsome piece of additional luggage. Its value was indicated by the non-Catholic observers in St. Peter's who broke into a rare outburst of applause when religious liberty became (in the practical, if not yet official, sense) the binding doctrine of the Roman Church.

●

Schema 13. "The Church and the Modern World," returned to the Council floor as a modified 30,000-word document which all speakers agreed was too long and in atrocious Latin. Cardinal Bea, the 84-year-old floor manager for religious liberty, seemed to be getting his second wind with "13" as he began scolding the Schema's authors for not remembering their Scripture. He also gave them zero in Latin.

"For example, it is stated here that the Church seeks no domination just as Christ refused all earthly authority. The authors seem to forget that Christ declared that 'All authority is given me in heaven and on earth.'" As for their Latin, well, Cardinal Bea said that, even after 50 years of teaching it, he had to turn to the French version (the original but unofficial version) to find out what "13" was all about.

Two concrete suggestions were made for bringing the Church face to face with the modern world. Cardinal Spellman, of New York, would like the virtue of the Church's authority emphasized and the citizen reminded that it is the State who must decide if he is to bear arms.

Cardinal Jaeger, of Paderborn, said that when the Schema was approved he would like to see a compendium of theology for modern man drawn up, "just as the Catechism of the Council of Trent served as a compendium of the teaching of its time," guiding layman and priest through the thicket.

Famous Last Words

Jay Gould
1836-1892

The stock manipulations of this financial pirate helped wreck the Erie Railroad, and he was largely responsible for "Black Friday" (1869) when his attempt to corner the gold market ruined thousands. Gould died a multimillionaire at 56, sighing: "I suppose I am the most miserable man on earth . . ."

Etienne de la Boetie
1530-1563

Montaigne, about his dying friend: "He whispered: 'Please God I shall see in reality what I have just seen as in a dream . . .' 'What did you see?' 'Great things.' 'You have never,' I protested, 'concealed anything from me.' 'True' he replied, 'And I should like—but I can't. Oh, they were marvelous, infinite, but not to be said.'"

Two Sides to Understanding Between Students, Professors

By ELIZABETH FORBES

The mythical ivory tower from which university professors were once supposed to view the campus, would seem to have collapsed. The long distance binoculars with which they were credited as viewing their students, have been cast aside.

Forbes

Today, university professors are presenting a new image, far removed from towers of any sort.

Take last Saturday, when University of Victoria students were doing their bit for this year's United Appeal, by sawing, chopping and selling beach wood at Clover Point.

Who manned the barbecues, and served their supper? It was members of the faculty.

With coats off and sleeves rolled up, two of the busiest men on campus, Dr. Malcolm Taylor and R. R. Jeffels, assisted in cooking the beef roasts.

Casual observers thought they were "two of the gang." Few, except the wood choppers themselves, knew that here was the university president and the registrar, respectively.

This is only one of many occasions on which professors have deserted their ivory towers to rub shoulders with those whose lives they hope to influence.

I only hope young men and women to whom the hands are held out are mature enough to realize that understanding has two sides, and that one of those sides is in front of the lecture desk.

What makes me a little dubious about this maturity is a small booklet produced by University of British Columbia's students' council and titled "Black And White."

It purports to be a guide to first year students in "signing up" for classes.

Every UBC faculty member is named. Close to each name appears praise or indictment of teaching methods, ability to impart knowledge and some brutally frank sentences about popularity, or lack of it.

"It's all true," a third year student told me, "so why shouldn't we pass the information on to the frosh?"

He couldn't see that such truths, once printed in bold lettering, become cruelties it is impossible to erase.

No one is naive enough to believe that every university professor is in the top echelon. No one thinks that all professors have the same ability to impart knowledge or to hold the attention of students.

At the same time, it is commonly known, that while one student may find a certain professor a complete "wash out," another student will learn much from the same professor.

So, why pin labels on them and name them good, or bad or indifferent?

To my mind, the booklet is rude, calloused, and, at the same time, childish.

Certainly, it gives some professors full marks, with extra golden stars. (One wonders how they will cope with the rush of students it should send to the doors of their lecture rooms.)

In few instances, it does point a finger at places where change is needed.

But, for the most part, it crucifies well-meaning men and women and, through the bluntness of its words, it threatens their life work.

Resounding Title Important To Many Leaders in Africa

BLANTYRE, Malawi (AP)—What's in a name For some African leaders, struggling to make something of their recent independence, the right title enhances their chances of topping the African popularity poll.

Presidents or prime ministers don't really mean much to millions of Africans living in dusty, mud-hut villages and clinging to age-old tribal adoration of their chiefs and clan elders.

They prefer something more resounding — like redeemers, saviours, messiahs and lions.

Ethiopia's Emperor Haile Selassie has a long string of Biblical titles. Legend has it that he is a direct descendant of King Solomon and the Queen of Sheba.

His titles include King of Kings, Conquering Lion of Judah and Elect of God. Among the septuagenarian's royal courtiers he is referred to as Imperial Majesty. But the people of his country prefer the title of Conquering Lion.

On Africa's steamy West coast, Ghana's President Kwame Nkrumah has taken the title of Osogyeto, which broadly translated likens him to redeemer, saviour or messiah.

The fact that he has survived bullet and bomb attacks on his life adds weight to his spiritual title, which impresses the Ghanian people. Some of them believe their messiah immune from killing.

Down on the palm-fringed East African coast, Tanzania's President Julius Nyerere, architect of Tanganyika's independence and a former school teacher, is known as Mwalimu—a Swahili term for teacher.

Kenya's President Jomo Kenyatta, elder statesman of African nationalism and the man the British believe was leader of the country's former Mau Mau terrorist organization, originally was called Burning Spear.

This now has been replaced with a simple "Mzee"—a Swahili term meaning old man. Among Kenya's white population, many of whom recall the terrible jungle savagery of Mau Mau days, he is sometimes jocularly known as Jolly Jomo.

Malawi's fiery Dr. Hastings Banda, prime minister of a land-locked Central African country (formerly Nyasaland), has taken the title of Malawi. In official government records he is referred to as founder of the nation.

Moise Kapenda Tshombe, prime minister of the bloodied Congo, is best known by his real name, which means Moses, My Darling.

MAJOR B.C. HOSPITALS CLAIMED 'OBSOLETE'

BY RED CHINA

U.S. Invited To Die

By VERGIL BERGER

PEKING (Reuters) — China invited the United States to invade it tomorrow — and be wiped out.

Foreign Minister Marshal Chen Yi climaxed a marathon press conference here today by shouting:

"I hope that tomorrow U.S. Imperialists will come to China.

"Let them come when they like. Let the Indians come with them. Let the British come too. Let the (Soviet) revisionist leaders in the north combine with them."

For the U.S. and its "puppets" to send a few million troops would not be enough, Chen said.

Racing ahead of his interpreter and waving his arms, he said China would recognize no limits nor restrictions in the pursuit of the Americans who would be "thoroughly wiped out."

300 REPORTERS ATTEND

Chen's outburst came as he was talking about Viet Nam and alleging that the U.S. used Hong Kong as "an American base."

In an unprecedented series of policy declarations in answer to questions from some of the 300 correspondents who attended his four-hour press conference, the Chinese leader:

1. Demanded an assurance of success in advance if China were to support the holding of the second Afro-Asian summit conference in Algiers this fall.

2. Expressed the hope that more Asian and African nations would develop their own nuclear weapons on a "do-it-yourself basis."

3. Set two new stiff conditions for Peking's acceptance of a seat in the United Nations in the event of the Chinese Nationalists being voted out. These are: The world body would have to declare openly that the UN resolution condemning China for aggression in the Korean War was wrong; all countries should review the UN charter together, all independent countries should then be admitted and all "imperialist puppet states" should be driven out.

ATTACK U THANT

In a bitter attack on both the UN and its secretary-general U Thant, Chen said neither should have anything to do with the Afro-Asian conference.

The U.S. and the UN were identical — "the head of the United Nations is the United States, not U Thant."

China, Chen said, has nothing to gain for itself at the Afro-Asian conference, but he feels that unless the parley's main purpose is an open condemnation of U.S. imperialism, it would be better to postpone the meeting "until conditions are right."

'Prevent India From Moving Into Kashmir'

UNITED NATIONS (UPI)—Pakistan declared today that it would not withdraw its forces from Kashmir unless a UN peace force or other machinery is present to prevent India from moving in.

Pakistani Foreign Minister Zulfikar Al Bhutto said today Pakistan was not interested in offers by Russia and Canada to mediate its Kashmir dispute with India until the security council had exhausted all efforts to settle it.

He said Pakistani President Mohammed Ayub Khan had accepted President Johnson's invitation for a visit to the United States and would come to the United Nations when he came to this country.

But, Bhutto said, Ayub is commander-in-chief of Pakistan's armed forces as well as its president and could not leave the country in the present emergency.

Bhutto said Pakistan stood ready to implement fully the security council resolutions which call on it and India to honor a ceasefire, withdraw all forces to posiitons held at the outset of hostilities on Aug. 5, and consider steps for a political settlement.

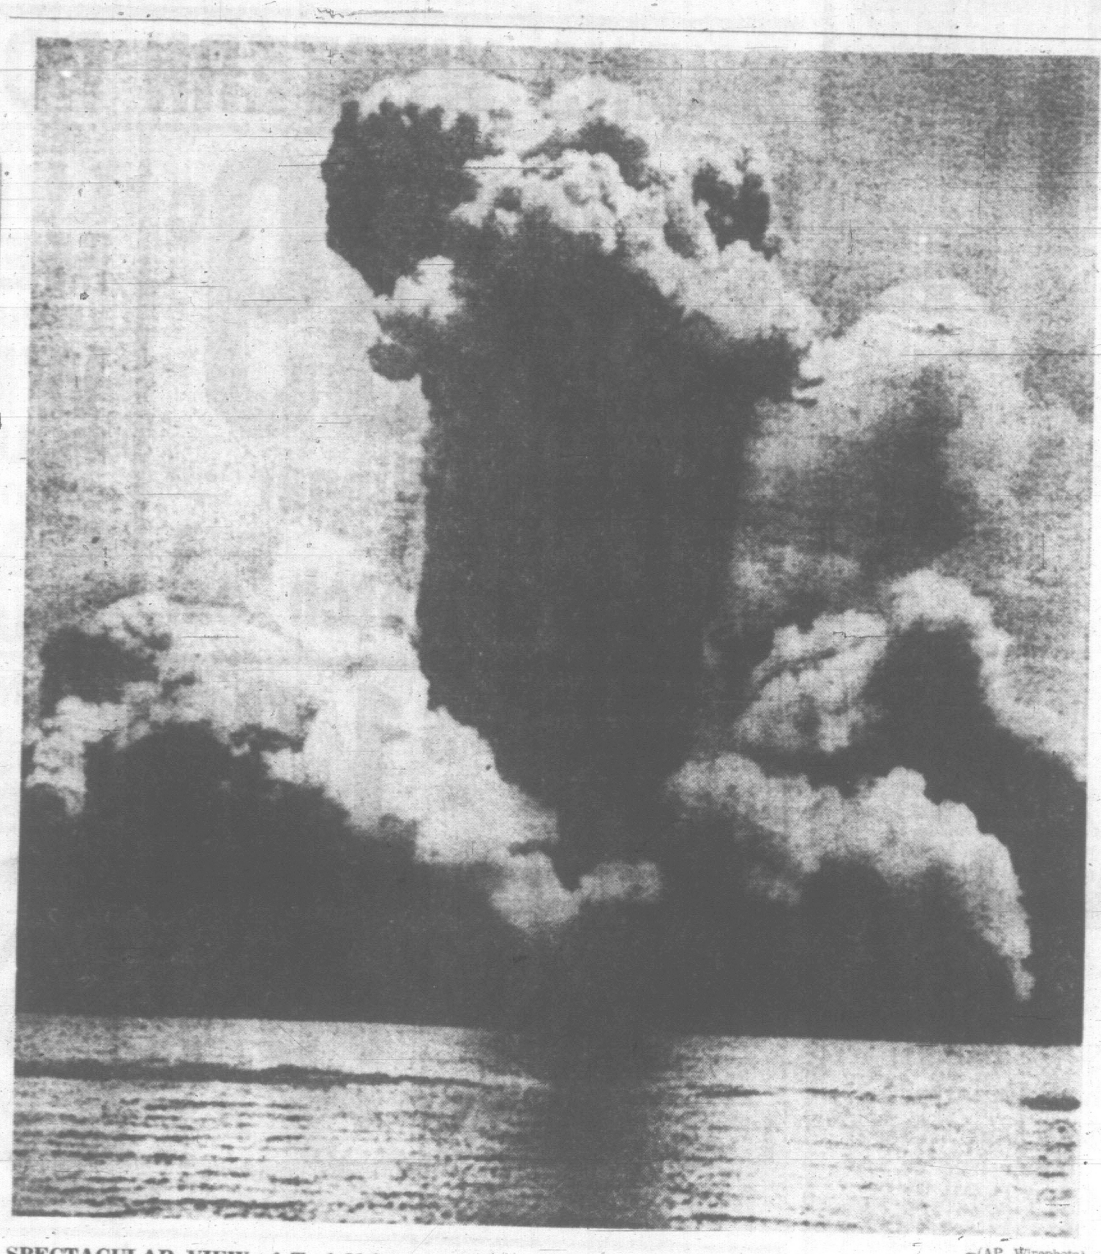

"But," he added, "it is dangerous to create a vacuum. If we withdraw our forces from Kashmir, India will fill the vacuum.

"We will not vacate unless machinery is brought in to take its place on the ground. This could be a UN force or any other machinery."

AIR UNIT DEPARTS

TRENTON, Ont. (CP)—The 117th air transport unit, a nine-aircraft formation mobilized Thursday to operate out of Rawalpindi, Pakistan, left here today on an 18-hour flight to the area.

Departure of the unit, controlled operationally by the United Nations, was two hours late due to heavy fog which delayed the three Hercules transports and six Otter utility aircraft.

City Hospitals Among Them

VANCOUVER (CP)—A report of a committee of the British Columbia Hospitals' Association says the province's five major hospitals are obsolete and inadequate in many respects.

The report, presented at the opening of the association's annual conference here, blamed government and the community for the inadequacies.

It did not identify the hospitals by name but delegates said there is no doubt that it was referring to the Vancouver General and St. Paul's here, the Royal Columbian in New Westminster and Royal Jubilee and St. Joseph's in Victoria.

The report said the hospitals have fallen behind the advance in medicine's ability to provide improved care for patients and they lack much modern equipment.

The hospitals were unable to develop certain essential services to the degree deemed necessary for modern patient care and they were short of some types of highly-trained personnel.

The report divided the blame for the inadequacies this way:

Lack of money for construction and equipment;

Procrastination by federal, provincial and municipal governments; lack of responsibility and direction on the part of the community, hospital and professional groups and government agencies.

Health Minister Martin, who opened the conference, said later it would be "difficult to assess the factual basis of the report" because the five hospitals were not identified.

He said if the boards of management of the five hospitals accepted the report's criti-

Labor Backing Wilson on Viet

BLACKPOOL, England (CP) — Prime Minister Wilson and his cabinet colleagues today beat down a rebel move in the Labor party against the government's support for United States policy in Viet Nam.

Resolutions at the annual party conference demanding cessation of U.S. bombing raids on North Viet Nam were defeated by big margins after Wilson and Foreign Secretary Michael Stewart argued that such action should be matched by a demand that the Communist withdraw troops and arms from South Viet Nam.

Wilson and Stewart firmly repudiated the note of anti-Americanism among campaigners for peace in Viet Nam.

"Some who carry banners do not want peace," Wilson said. "They want a Chinese victory on Chinese terms."

Wilson also denied suggestions that the Labor government's policy on Viet Nam was dictated by its dependence on U.S. help in protecting the pound sterling from devaluation during the past year.

"At no time has there been any attempt to link economic strength to any aspect of foreign policy," he said. "This nation is not to be bought. This nation is not to be corrupted."

Ready for Talks Any Time, Place

Wilson insisted he was ready at any time and any place for talks on Viet Nam with Communist Chinese Premier Chou En-lai or Soviet Premier Kosygin "if it will lead to peace."

Earlier Foreign Secretary Michael Stewart appealed for a conference on Viet Nam and called for a speedy end to the fighting there.

Stewart said he wants Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko to join him in calling the Geneva conference on Viet Nam back into session. Gromyko and Stewart are co-chairmen of the Geneva conference.

Wilson disclosed that when the pound sterling was recently under pressure—he did not say exactly when — the U.S. had asked Britain to put troops in South Viet Nam.

"We turned them down," he said. "And there was never any attempt to link this with economic co-operation."

Wilson urged his followers to accept that in its quest for peace the British government had been as active in Washington as it has been in other capitals.

"We have spoken up frankly in Washington on what we have felt about the use of napalm and the use of gas in Viet Nam," he said.

He squarely placed the blame for the continuation of what he called "a brutal and a bloody war" on the Communist side and more directly on the Hanoi and Peking regimes. They were against peace talks, he asserted. And he added:

"The enemies of negotiations are the enemies of peace."

Cut In Arms Spending Approved

Stewart preceded Wilson to the rostrum. The foreign secretary predicted the war in Viet Nam would be settled sooner or later by a compromise leaving the divided country neutralized.

"Since this is the sort of solution that will emerge in the end, I say why not now before more lives are lost," he said.

The conference approved by a show of hands a resolution urging a drastic reduction in military spending. An amendment calling specifically for a £500,000,000 ($1,500,000,000) a year cut was rejected.

Wilson in his speech declared that by 1970 Britain's defence budget would be no more than £2,000,000,000 ($6,000,000,000) a year. The estimate for the current year is £2,120,500,000.

The delegates also debated one of the issues that has caused a deep split in party ranks—the government's immigration policy.

A resolution urging the government to withdraw its curbs on Commonwealth immigration was defeated.

Left-wing Labor members of Parliament backed the move to rescind the government's new 8,500-a-year limit on work permits for immigrants from the British Commonwealth.

Opponents of the new regulation charge it embodies a form of racial discrimination and is aimed at preventing any substantial increase in the size of Britain's non-white population. The government has denied the charge. There are about 1,000,000 non-whites in Britain.

VISIT to London next week by Rhodesian Prime Minister Ian Smith is anticipated by British cabinet ministers. Talks would concern independence for his internally-self-governing colony, British sources said.

Denver Jolted By Earthquake

DENVER, Colo. (AP)—Sections of metropolitan Denver were jolted by an earthquake about 2 p.m. today.

At Stapleton International Airport, Judd Strunk said the walls of his office "started moving and my phone was knocked off the desk. People were running around the halls and wondering what happened." The jolt appeared to be the worst in a series of quakes through the metropolitan area for the last year.

Negro Cameraman Hit By Youth

CRAWFORDVILLE, Ga. (AP)—Violence erupted during an attempt by Negroes to board school buses with white pupils today when a white youth struck a Negro photographer with his fists. State troopers moved in quickly to separate the pair.

Hull Climbs Down In Dispute

CHICAGO (UPI)—The Chicago Black Hawks said today star left wing Bobby Hull has decided "to rejoin the club," ending a three-day boycott of drills triggered by a personal dispute.

"He came down to meet me, I didn't meet him," said general manager Tommy Ivan.

Murder Charge Laid at B.C. Mine

ENDAKO, B.C. (CP)—Daniel McMaster, 38, today was charged with capital murder following a shooting in the Burns Lake area.

Police said Harvey Franklin Zelkie, 27, employee of Endako Mines, was shot to death overnight in the front yard of a home occupied by McMaster.

'Infiltrators' Leave; Homes, Bridges Burn

NEW DELHI (UPI)—India said today fighting continued in the Sind Desert but reported 1,000 Pakistani infiltrators were withdrawing from Kashmir. It said they were burning bridges and houses as they left.

The defence ministry also accused Pakistani of loosing what it called "bad characters" to loot Indian villages in the Khem-Karan sector of the Lahore front in areas still under Pakistan control.

By CONRAD FINK

NEW DELHI (AP)—The outlook for the India-Pakistan ceasefire remained bleak today as both sides made new demands and neither showed any signs of withdrawing from positions seized during their undeclared war.

A spokesman for the Indian foreign office said the withdrawal of armed personnel should include an estimated 3,000 guerrillas which the Indians claim Pakistan trained, equipped and sent into the Indian sector of Kashmir for subversion and sabotage.

Pakistan has denied the Indian claim, contending that the guerrillas whose operations touched off the war are Kashmiri nationalists fighting for freedom from Indian control.

Reuters news agency quoted an authoritative Indian source as saying Tuesday night that India would keep its forces on the ceasefire line in West Pakistan despite the United Nations demand that both sides honor the conditions of the ceasefire, which called for all troops to be pulled back to the positions of Aug. 5.

The source estimated that 5,000 guerrillas invaded the Indian-held part of Kashmir last August and 3,000 still remain. The source said the infiltrators were hiding in forest areas but held fortified positions and some were being supplied by air drops.

The source added, however, that although the ceasefire that came into effect last week was an uneasy one, India expected it to last.

Indian Prime Minister Shastri told reporters the most urgent task facing the UN Security Council "is to ask Pakistan to desist from its declared path of aggression."

Shastri said Pakistan had been threatening in the Security Council to unleash a wider conflagration if its desires were not met. He said India had acepted the ceasefire vote by the council "in complete good faith, unconditionally but not unilaterally."

Shastri said Indian forces were under strict orders not to violate the ceasefire, but he added: "Indian forces are under instructions to defend themselves wherever and whenever attacked by Pakistan."

There's almost as much shootin' durin' the Kashmir truce as there wuz durin' th' peace.

Both leading horses hung back for five-eighths of a mile, then drove together down the back stretch. Bango Dancer won by a neck.

Bango Dancer paid $8.40, $4 and $3.20. Cor Asia paid $3.10 and $2.60 and Squirt High $5. The Quinella paid $13.70.

Ford Drops Prices

DETROIT (UPI) — Ford Motor Co. of the U.S. today announced prices for its 1966 model cars that are slightly below comparably equipped 1965 models.

Fertilizer 'Raid' Hits 3,000 Acres

DUNCAN—Largest commercial application of fertilizer from the air ever carried out in North America is under way in the Cowichan Valley.

Pacific Logging Ltd. is spraying 3,000 acres of Douglas fir.

Two Stearman aircraft of Skyways Air Services, Langley, make their runs from Rajindi Mayo's private airstrip at Paldi.

In 1963 Pacific Logging experimented by air spraying 350 acres at Lake Cowichan, Port Alberni and Paldi.

The next year some 1,500 acres in the Malahat, Lake Cowichan and Port Renfrew areas were sprayed.

This year the program will cover 3,000 acres at Lake Cowichan, Paldi and new Pacific Logging holdings in the Chemainus River Valley, according to the company's forest manager, Ian Macrae.

70-FOOT SWATH

The two aircraft, flying in formation, carry 1,120 pounds of fertilizer each, and each run covers a 70-foot path.

Fertilizer being used is Urea which has 46 per cent nitrogen.

The present Pacific Logging operation is twice as big as anything carried out elsewhere.

Mr. Macrae said: "We are fertilizing young Douglas fir, covering stands from 50 years up to about 90 years.

"We expect an increased yield in the region of 25-30 per cent."

He said it required up to 200 pounds of nitrogen to trigger a response from Douglas fir.

The response would last anything from five to eight years.

How To Hold FALSE TEETH More Firmly in Place

Do your false teeth annoy and embarrass by slipping, dropping or wobbling when you eat, laugh or talk? Just sprinkle a little FASTEETH on your plates. This alkaline (non-acid) powder holds false teeth more firmly and more comfortably. No gummy, gooey, pasty taste or feeling. Does not sour. Checks "plate odor" (denture breath). Security Making History

United Press International

NEW YORK — The largest security force ever assembled here will be on duty next Monday when Pope Paul makes his unprecedented visit to the UN and confers for an hour with President Johnson.

Johnson and the Pope, who will spend 13½ hours in the city, will meet in the Waldorf-Astoria suite of U.S. Ambassador to the United Nations Arthur J. Goldberg, beginning at 12:30 p.m. (EDT). The president, who arrives Sunday night, is expected to leave the city shortly after the visit with the Pope.

Eighteen thousand police will be on duty at a cost of an estimated $1 million in overtime pay. In addition, secret service agents, FBI agents and Port of New York Authority policemen will be used. The security force will dwarf those assigned during the visits of Khrushchev and Castro.

A total of 10,000 men will line the 24-mile route between Kennedy airport, where the Pope arrives at 9:30 a.m., and St. Patrick's Cathedral and residence house, which the Pontiff will use as headquarters.

The Pontiff in addition to seeing Johnson will make a two-hour motorcade tour of the city including Harlem and Central Park, address the United Nations on behalf of world peace, recite low mass at Yankee Stadium in evening and meet with representatives of other faiths.

SANTO DOMINGO (UPI)—A heated confrontation between Provisional President Hector Garcia Godoy and powerful Dominican military leaders created new political tension in this divided capital today.

'KEEP IT FOR ELDERLY PEOPLE AND NEEDY FAMILIES'

Pensioners Protest Sale of Sunshine Camp

By HUMPHRY DAVY

A last-ditch attempt to stop sale of the Fred Lansberg Sunshine Camp at Sooke is being made by old age pensioners' organizations.

They want the land retained as a camp for elderly people and needy families.

The Family and Childrens' Service, which owns the land, has decided to sell the property, which overlooks Sooke Harbor, and develop a new camp.

Gordon R. Wright, executive director, said today the money from the sale would permit the service to continue with its children's camp program.

"We haven't sold it yet, but a committee is working on the matter," he said.

UNSUITABLE

He said the the service feels the present camp is not suited for a full summer program, such as boating and swimming or any sort of winter program. The water is too cold.

The area is largely becoming residential and no longer suitable for camping, he said

Mrs. Phyllis Johnson, president of the Sooke branch, Old Age Pensioners Organization, conducted a poll in her district and found most residents oppose the sale.

"Many Victorians also feel that the land should be retained for elderly people and needy families," she added.

GAVE TIME, MONEY

She felt it was wrong to sell the property because many private individuals, and organizations such as the Junior Chamber of Commerce, the carpenters and electrical unions, have given time and money to develop the site.

The 4.7-acre camp was originally founded for the benefit of children, but over the years the property has also been used as a holiday place for elderly people and welfare mothers.

"The land in time could be used as the site for a nursing home," said Mrs. Johnson. "I've heard the argument that it's too far from the city, but Toronto has established a nursing home miles outside the city limits."

She felt certain a logging company would donate land for a new camp.

"B.C. Forest Products has already offered acreage at Grassey Lake, near Sooke, to the Boy Scouts," she said.

She proposed that Sunshine camp be developed as a year-round camp for elderly people.

"This would mean winterizing the cabins," she said. "This could be done at not too great a cost."

The property has been evaluated at about $35,000. It is the only publicly-owned waterfront property left in Sooke.

cisms, "then they have a great responsibility to take immediate remedial action.

"I can promise full government support."

MAXIMUM USE

The committee said all five are operating at or near their maximum capacity. One had an occupancy rate considered too high for good patient care.

Other sources said the five hospitals contain 42 per cent of all general hospital bdes in the province and account for 32 per cent of all patients admitted to hospital. All receive patients from smaller hospitals for specialized treatment.

The report also said:

The five hospitals had inadequate emergency departments, three had laboratories totally inadequate in size, three had X-ray departments that were too small and equipped with obsolete equipment so inadequate that the full potential cannot be realized."

The five were struggling to provide medical care with facilities designed a generation ago—60-bed wards, narrow corridors, operating suites too small for modern surgery, obsolete dietary services.

Lack of space and obsolete design had made it impossible for the hospitals to develop essential new services.

The hospitals had not kept pace with the dramatic development of new medical and surgical techniques. "Much of the equipment presently in use is antiquated and many of the newer techniques for diagnosis and treatment cannot be used."

It quoted one eminent medical authority:

"If half our existing hospital beds were moved out, it is doubtful whether there would be room enough left for the modern equipment and facilities that we can usefully employ."

Flooding Threatens

PENSACOLA, Fla. (AP) — Tropical storm Debbie, its faltering winds reduced to 45 miles an hour, hung off the Alabama-Florida Gulf of Mexico coast today. Forecasters saw local flooding as its worst threat if the storm moved inland.

Over to You, Chilliwack!

LADYSMITH — The White Heather concert will go on here Wednesday, Oct. 13, as scheduled.

Burns Club officials were confused Monday when it was learned Chilliwack also had the Scots' entertainers booked the same night.

But Tuesday it was confirmed the itinerary brings the troupe to Ladysmith as planned.

If anyone has a problem now it's Chilliwack.

The sponsors there are still waiting word from New York promoter Neil Kirk but hope to have the party headed by Andy Stewart in the Fraser Valley Tuesday, Oct. 12.
